Two Ex-GIs Arrested On Spy Charge

Pair Accused For Selling Of Defense Secrets To Soviet

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two former U.S. Army buddies, in jail on opposite sides of the continent, face charges of involvement in an 11-year spy plot to sell defense secrets to the Soviet Union for $250 to $350 a month.

Sgt. Robert Lee Johnson, a Army courier, was arrested Monday while making his rounds in the Pentagon. James A. Mintkenbaugh, a silver-haired 46-year-old salesman, was arrested by FBI agents about the same time in Castro Valley, Calif., near his San Martin home.

San Francisco's U.S. attorney, Cecil Poole, said a federal grand jury will consider the case today in Richmond, Va.

Mintkenbaugh was held in Alameda County jail.

Johnson, 43, was in an Alexandria, Va., jail awaiting a preliminary hearing April 15.

Neither man was able to make $20,000 bail bonds.

They are charged with espionage. The maximum penalty is death.

"It's news to me," Mintkenbaugh said when arraigned in Oakland, Calif. Neighbors described the quiet-mannered real estate salesman as "about the nicest guy you'd want to know."

The complaint said Johnson was working in the Army's intelligence section in February 1953 and contacted Soviet agents in Karlhorst, East Berlin.

Ohio House Votes Today On $1.4 Billion Fund Bill

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes' two-year apropriations bill calling for a record outlay of $1.46 billion was up for a vote today in the Ohio House.

The measure calls for expenditure of $1.42 billion from the state's general fund and the balance from wildlife and liquor funds.

Rep. Ralph E. Fisher, R-Wayne, said the bill is little changed from the one the Finance Committee started hearings on seven weeks ago. Fisher is committee chairman.

One change by the committee added to the governor's teacher pay raise proposal of $200 a year funds to cover the 11 per cent employer's payment to retirement systems on the increases. Under the original proposal, school boards would have had to absorb that amount.

The committee added a $1.3 million appropriation for the Ohio Historical Society, recognized for the first time as a state agency.

The budget breakdown shows 56.5 per cent for education, 35.2 per cent for mental hygiene, correction, and welfare, and 8.3 per cent for government operations.

Seven bills were introduced Monday night as the lawmakers returned from weekend recess, including another bill to boost the School Foundation Program and a fifth school bus proposal.

Rep. A. G. Lancione, D-Belmont, house minority leader, joined 19 House Democrats to introduce a measure boosting state payments to the School Foundation Program by $115 million.

Lancione said the measure differs only slightly from one offered last week by 33 House Republicans. The Republican bill calls for an increase in payments of $104 million.

Sen. Ross Pepple, R - Allen, introduced in the Senate a bill that would set up a school transportation office in the Highway Safety Department to provide bus transportation to all pupils who live more than two miles from their schools.

The House passed five bills and the Senate one as the legislature began its fourth month of work.

One measure receiving house aproval would permit dog wardens to pick up licensed or unlicensed dogs 24 hours a day, instead of only at night, unless they are on a leash or otherwise under "reasonable control of the owner."

Joint Offer Of 2 Akron Firms Best

$612,814 Under Road Department's Project Estimate

Two Akron firms bidding jointly today submitted the apparent low offer of $3,272,186 to the State Highway Department at Columbus for construction of the third area segment of the Lake Erie-Ohio River Highway, extending from Route 170 at Substation to an interchange with Route 267 at Apples Corners.

The apparent low offer was submitted by W. E. Ringwald Construction Co. and John G. Ruhlin Construction Co., both of Akron.

Their offer was $612,814 under the Highway Department's official estimate of $3,835,000.

The award of the contract probably will be made officially next week, the Highway Department said.

There was no immediate indication when construction will begin. The Highway Department said the date depends in part on what jobs the contractors now are involved and how quickly they can move equipment to this area.

The new stretch of four-lane, limited access highway will extend 2.94 miles at an overall cost estimated at approximately $5 million dollars.

It's the next segment of an 86-mile highway that eventually will connect Ohio River ports at East Liverpool with Lake Erie docks at Ashtabula. The overall estimated cost is $67 million.

The last stretch in the long-range project is scheduled for bids in 1969, which means the highway probably will be complete by 1970. The final stretch will extend from Lisbon to Columbiana, according to present plans.

The date of the latest bidding was announced Feb. 18, when the Lake Erie - Ohio River Highway Association heard an address by Highway Director P. E. Masheter at a dinner meeting in Youngstown.

The association has worked for years to encourage rapid construction of the highway as an economic asset to the four-county area — Columbiana, Mahoning, Trumbull and Ashtabula. It will serve an area of 716,-

120 Reds Killed, 6 Yanks Dead Or Missing

Casualties Reported High In Bloody Viet Nam Battle

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — More than 120 Communist Viet Cong were killed and six Americans were dead or missing today in one of the bloodiest engagements in the Mekong delta in months, U.S. officials said.

Initial reports indicated that South Vietnamese government forces suffered more than 60 casualties, including about 16 killed.

The confirmed American dead were a U.S. Army officer and a U.S. Navy officer. Their deaths brought to 323 the number of Americans killed in combat in South Viet Nam since December 1961.

Four U. S. Army helicopter crewmen were missing and believed dead. Their aircraft was hit by 50-caliber Viet Cong machine-gun fire and exploded in air.

The helicopter had been providing cover for a downed Vietnamese air force fighter-bomber.

A second U.S. Army helicopter was shot down while covering the same crash. Its four crewmen were rescued and were reported only slightly injured.

Heavy fighting was reported still in progress. The scene was the Ca Mau Peninsula, about 130 miles southwest of Saigon.

U.S. Air Force B57 jet bombers flew 16 strikes against Viet Cong in the area today.

Elsewhere in South Viet Nam, 32 American strikes were flown, making today one of the heaviest days of air operations in South Viet Nam to date.

Military sources said a Communist captain was among the Viet Cong killed in the Ca Mau fighting. Many of the enemy casualties were reported brought down by fire from American helicopters.

An American source said the Viet Cong casualty count was confirmed by American officers.

Under the heavy battering from land, water-borne and air units, the Viet Cong apparently were forced to make tactical withdrawals leaving their dead on the battlefield. Usually they try to carry off the bodies.

A heavy haul of Communist weapons was reported captured.

More U.S. Air Raids Loom In Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. bombers are expected to hit more hard-to-rebuild targets in coming days as the United States gradually tightens military pressure on Communist North Viet Nam.

After two months of steadily intensifying air attacks on North Viet Nam, U.S. authorities still are waiting for some sign that these strikes are serving their objectives of "turning Hanoi's mind around."

Over the weekend, escalation went up another notch as U.S. Navy and Air Force bombers ruined steel and concrete bridges and a steam power plant.

Thus, North Viet Nam began to experience loss of what some analysts refer to as property — assets of economic as well as military value. One of the bridges, only 76 miles south of Hanoi, took three years to build

Beaver Local Revises Pupil Age Standard

Revision of age requirements for entering Beaver Local first grade classes was approved by the Board of Education Monday night when the retirement notices of four teachers were received.

The board changed the age requirements, ruling youngsters must be 6 on or before Sept. 15 to enter first grade. The previous age deadline had been Sept. 1.

Several parents had written, asking the dates be changed because children would be 6 even before school opened Sept. 8 but could not begin first grade.

Retirement notices were received from Mrs. Florence Carlisle, second grade teacher at Elkton; Mrs. Helen Gonzales, fifth grade teacher at Calcutta; Mrs. Grace McFarland, second grade teacher at Rogers, and

Councilmen Rap Meter Rejection

Several members of Council Monday night attacked Mayor Merrill D. Hall and Safety - Service Director Robert E. Vodrey on their action March 25 in which they rejected all bids received on new parking meters March 8 and decided to call for new offers.

The two officials, comprising the Board of Control, said they rejected the offers to allow a Mississippi concern to file a legal bid on an automatic type device that would result in a saving of $2,500 for the city on about 409 meters.

Councilman James Cunningham said he feels a new investigation of the whole question should be made by Council's planning committee.

COUNCILMAN Floyd Murray, also questioning the administration decision, said he feels Council should seek an opinion on its legality from Solicitor Joseph W. Cooper.

The mayor and director comprise the Board of Control, which was given legislative authority by Council to call for bids on 450 "more or less" automatic meters.

They said on March 25 that the apparent best offer was filed by Karpark Corp. of Starkville, Miss. Its net offer would have cost the city $18,854 for 409 meters, the mayor and director said.

BECAUSE THE bidding had been limited to so-called automatic meters, the only other offer that could be considered was a $21,268 bid from Rockwell Manufacturing Co. of Pittsburgh, distributor of the Park-O-Meters, the officials said.

The city's legal advertisement for bids called for a certified check based on a per centage of each bid to guarantee the firm would execute a contract if it received the award.

The Mississippi firm's offer was accompanied by a cashier's check, not a certified check. In order to receive a bona fide offer from the Mississippi firm and take advantage of the lower price, the two officials decided to advertise again, they said.

THE DISCUSSION was opened last night by Councilman William E. Davis, head of the planning committee, which had recommended the Park-O-Meter.

"It seems like every time we try to buy meters, somebody tries to stop us," he said. "We recommended one type, but another firm bid from Alabama or somewhere. We investigated that meter and Mr. Cunningham has some notes on it."

Council Acts On Projects For 3 Streets

Improvement Also Eyed For Shadyside And W. 9th Ramp

Council moved ahead Monday night with preliminary steps for three major East Liverpool street projects.

In rapid-fire order, the councilmen agreed to:

Consider a $10,800 appropriation as the municipality's share of a $54,000 State Highway Department Project for resurfacing of Pennsylvania Ave., Elizabeth St. and Harvey Ave.

Instruct Engineer George S. Bloomgren to draft "a feasible plan" for the improvement of the section of Shadyside Ave. inside the city limits and seek the county's co-operation on the balance of the project.

Consider legislation authorizing hiring of an engineering firm to prepare plans for an auto-pedestrian ramp to tie together the two dead-end sections of W. 9th St. bisected by the California Hollow Freeway.

The councilmen also discussed the need for studying the next

6th Home Show To Open Doors Wednesday Night

The new, 1965 lines of merchandise and home products will be displayed during the sixth annual Home Show sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce Wednesday through Saturday at the former American Paper Products Co. building on Walnut St.

The show will open Wednesday night at 6 and will continue until 10. The same hours will be observed Thursday and Friday. The hours Saturday will be from 1 to 10 p. m.

Sixty - five booth spaces have been erected and exhibitors already have started moving in merchandise for their displays. Area concerns in the show have until Wednesday afternoon at 5 to complete the booths.

A special feature this year is an Air Force rescue helicopter which will be parked on Walnut St. for viewing by the general public. The street will be blocked off to permit the vehicle to land. It will be flown here from the Wright - Patterson Base at Dayton. An Air Force representative will be on hand to answer questions.

Nightly entertainment will be provided.

The Ohio Bell Telephone Co. will screen a movie entitled "Welcome To Ohio" each night at 8 and 8:45.

The East Liverpool Shrine Club Band will play Wednesday night.

Miss Kathy Jones, winner of the Columbiana County Junior Miss pageant, will appear Thursday night and Miss Kathleen

Council Discusses Plans To Combine Health Areas

City Council and four of the five members of the Health Board held an hour-long caucus session Monday night on questions surrounding a proposal to merge the East Liverpool and County Health Districts, but no decision was reached.

Council, which must give final approval to the plan, indicated it feels there should be more investigation before a decision is made.

The discussion brought together President George E. Willshaw, Councilmen Donald Hancock, Norman Bucher, James Cunningham, William Davis and Floyd Murray and these Health Board members—Dr. J. Keith Rugh, chairman, Dr. C. M. Mayberry, Frank Dales and Paul Zehnder. Mrs. Ila Finney Johnston, the fifth member of the Health Board, did not attend.

The Health Board members said unanimously that they feel a merger of East Liverpool with the county system would be beneficial to the city, particularly because the municipality has not had a physician as health commissioner — as state law requires — since the death of Dr. E. G. Kuhlman. With the combination, the services of Dr. Merle Singer, county health commissioner, would be available to the city, they said.

The Health Board previously recommended to Council that the city proceed with the consolidation, but no action was taken.

"I feel it would give East Liverpool a more efficient, functioning health service," Dr. Rugh said. "I feel in the long run it would save the city money. We would gain an experienced health officer. Now the city has no plumbing code or any other basic health code."

Dales said he feels the merger "would be a move forward." Both he and Dr. Mayberry said

Figures Tell The Story On Need For Boost

Ohio Insurance Rates Due To Rise

This is the first of a four-part series by John F. Wheeler, Associated Press writer, explaining the complexities of insurance in Ohio. He explains why rates are going up, what power the insurance commissioner has, what state laws regulate insurance companies and how the firms manage to stay in business even though they claim their rates are too low.

By JOHN F. WHEELER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Insurance rates are going to climb in Ohio and there is nothing you can do about it except quit driving, stop having fires and never get sick.

Otherwise, like the price of almost everything else, casualty rates are bound to go up, the industry says.

Auto insurers, apparently looking ahead to the next round of increases, have begun to smooth the way with a flood of literature on why rates must go up.

—:—

DON'T COUNT on the state to stop the spiral. It doesn't have the power.

"The public sets the rates on auto insurance," says Ohio Insurance Supt. William R. Morris.

"The director has no authority to keep the lid on rates," says Columbus lawyer Arthur I. Vorys. "For the director to continue in force a rate which is losing money . . . is plain unlawful."

Why must the rates go up? Aren't insurance companies still making a profit?

The industry answers with some impressive figures.

In 1964, the Ohio Insurance Information Service reports, the 20 companies affiliated with it paid out $1.04 for every $1 they took in.

The service estimates traffic accidents cost Ohioans a million dollars a day.

"It is equivalent," the service says, "to a bill of $38.10 for every man, woman and child in Ohio."

WILLIAM C. COOK, president of Republic-Franklin Insurance companies, says the casualty insurance industry in Ohio has been in the black in only two years of the past 13. Investment income—which doesn't count in figuring rates—keeps them going.

From 1959 through 1963, the industry says, traffic fatalities in Ohio increased 8 per cent, reported accidents increased 19 per cent. In 1964, fatalities were up another 4 per cent and accidents up 10 per cent. Ohio Department of Highway Safety records confirm what the industry says.

Furthermore, says the industry, bodily injury liability claims jumped 18 per cent and the amount of the average

Housing Plan Bill Advanced

Council gave first reading Monday night to a resolution asking the State Housing Board to establish a Metropolitan Housing Authority comprised of East Liverpool and adjoining Liverpool Township — the first step toward a program for construction of low-cost housing.

The measure was given only first reading for lack of sufficient votes for immediate enactment under suspension of rules. With two members absent, Council could not muster the six votes required for immediate approval. The resolution will be presented for second reading April 19.

In a discussion in caucus session prior to the general meeting, councilmen said the resolution may not be in its final form, but added they were anxious to take official action to inform the state that the city is interested in the program.

Law allows only one housing authority in a county, comprised of at least two political subdivisions. Salem and Wellsville, among others, have indicated interest in similar programs.

Mayor Merrill D. Hall told Council in caucus it might be necessary to amend the legislation later to embrace most of the county.

Councilman William E. Davis commented that he and his wife inspected a low - cost housing project in Steubenville and saw a typical apartment. He said they were surprised at the quality of the accomodations provided for $33 monthly, including utilities.

Councilman James Cunningham moved to thank Liverpool Township trustees for their willingness to co-operate with the city in the plan.

Girl Scout Units From Wellsville Aid In Workshop

Wellsville Girl Scout troops were represented at the patrol workshop for Juniors and Cadets Saturday at Steubenville.

Those attending and the junior troops are: Janice Salajczyk and Beth DeLauder, 541; Gerry Stevens and Brenda Saxton, 542; Stephanie Shively and Connie Clark, 543; Cindy Shepherd and Crystal Gooch, 545.

From the cadet troops were: Linda Reese and Sherry Howell, 547, Denise Clark and Connie Lanam, 550.

Chaperones were Miss Betty Foley, Mrs. Barbara Salajczyk, Mrs. Grace DeLauder, Mrs. Jane Reese, Mrs. Oda Mae Howell and Miss Jane Morris.

Mrs. Lenoir Boner, executive head of the Upper Ohio Valley Girl Scout Council, was in charge of the workshop. She will be a guest at the next neighborhood meeting April 28 at 7 p. m. at the First Methodist Church in Wellsville.

Ceramists Schedule Meeting For April 13

Miss Mary Eber of the Bell Telephone Co. will speak on "Adventures in Sound" at the April 13 meeting of the Pittsburgh Section of the American Ceramic Society at Stouffer's Restaurant in the Oakland section of Pittsburgh.

She will discuss the history of recorded sound from the beginning through the most recent hi-fi and stereophonic recordings. K. K. Kappmeyer of U. S. Steel Corp. is the section chairman.

Lausche Says France Should Pay U.S. Debt

WASHINGTON (AP)—France should be made to pay $6.6 billion in World War I and II debts to the United States before collecting on short term credits extended to this country, Sen. Frank J. Lausche, D-Ohio, says.

French President Charles de Gaulle is "unjustifiedly drawing on our gold, creating difficulties with our balance of payments," Lausche told the Senate. He said that if de Gaulle persists in his course the United States ought to demand payment of the old world war debts.

Stanton Urges Phone Excise Tax Dropped

WASHINGTON (AP) — Elimination of the present 10 per cent excise tax on telephone service has been proposed by Rep. J. William Stanton, R-Ohio.

Referring to President Johnson's recommendation that Congress enact an excise tax cut this year, Stanton said taxes on non-luxury items should certainly be given priority in any tax reduction.

"To millions of Americans the telephone is more of a necessity than a luxury," he said.

Improved Program Seen

Vocational Phase Eyed In New High School Plans

The new senior high school is being designed with plans for a better vocational program, Supt. Paul H. Blair told members of the Board of Education Monday night after Mrs. Nessie R. Dunlop, vice president, raise the question of what will be done for students who do not plan to continue to college.

Mrs. Dunlop said provisions have been made for students planning to attend college and the Kent State University academic center will enable those with limited funds to continue their education.

"But I wonder if anything is planned for students who do not plan to go to college or take courses at the academic center, not because of a lack of money but because of a lack of desire or ability?", she asked.

The superintendent replied there has been "quite a bit" of discussion but the district may not be able to realize a better vocational program until the new high school is opened.

As an example, he said a course in auto mechanics is being considered "because of tremendous interest."

He also pointed out there has been discussion of either one centralized vocational high school in the county or two smaller vocational schools in the southern and northern portions.

"The students who do not plan to continue their education are not being overlooked," he told the board.

Asst. Supt. George Hargraves said the problem is of "great concern" and explained the subject is probably discussed more than any other part of the curriculum.

Harry D. McConville, board president, asked Blair, Mrs. Dunlop and Miss Kathryn Liebschner, clerk - treasurer, to compile a mimeographed list of board policies for the guidance of present and future board members.

Richard Smith raised the question of who grants authority for photographers to take pictures of school students.

Smith called it "a waste of time and money; I don't like it and I'm sure other parents don't."

The superintendent explained the students are not compelled to purchase the pictures, adding that the school gets a commission on those sold an also is furnished with small identification pictures for each student's cumulative file.

"I believe if we didn't offer it, many parents would be inquiring," he said.

Smith replied that he would like to see a slip sent to homes on which parents could authorize the pictures. He said he realizes that they are not compelled to purchase the pictures, but there is a form of pressure from the youngsters "because Johnny got some."

Washington's Pentagon is the largest building in the world. Completed in January of 1943 at a cost of $83 million, the five floors enclose a floor area of 6½ million square feet. Each of the outermost sides of the Pentagon is 921 feet long, and the perimeter of the building is ⅞-mile.

State To Get Final Plans For School

Members of the Board of Education and the school administration will submit final plans for the proposed senior high school to the building section of the State Department of Education Wednesday at a meeting in Columbus.

The group is scheduled to leave East Liverpool at 5:30 a. m. for the conference later in the morning.

No major changes in the plans for the three - building high school on Maine Blvd. are anticipated.

As designed by Robert F. Beatty, architect, the main structure will have two classroom wings flanking a circular tower which will house the administrative offices, cafeteria and library.

The main building will be two stories fronting on the parking lot and three stories at the rear. There also will be a separate auditorium - gymnasium linked to the main building by a covered passageway and a one-floor structure for vocational training classes.

Approval of the plans will clear the way for preparation of detailed specifications and advertising of bids.

At a similar conference two weeks ago, plans for elementary buildings in East End, LaCroft and North Side were approved.

Legion Backs 2 For Offices

American Legion Post 4 Monday night instructed its delegates to the County Council to endorse two members of the post for county offices.

The post will back Ray Cunningham, post first vice commander, for second vice commander and George E. Grafton for chaplain of the county organization.

The council will meet Friday night at Post 70 in Wellsville.

Isaac Jones, chairman, reported the banquet committee is considering two or three locations for the annual birthday dinner with a final decision to be made soon.

He also reported on the progress of the Veterans City Council's drive for memorial funds.

Dave Sakol, chairman of the anti - molestation drive, said the first phase has been completed with the presentation of certificates and cash awards to three city winners in a poster coloring contest.

Plans now are under way to show films furnished by the Federal Bureau of Investigation to children through co - operation of the prosecuting attorney's office and school officials.

The date and place for the film will be announced later, he reported.

Cunningham presided in the absence of Charles Boso, commander. Refreshments were served by Emmett Blake and committee.

Group Seeks Delegates In St. Clair Plan

Invitations to all St. Clair Township social, civic and governmental groups to appoint representatives to the township's Development Association were authorized at a meeting of the association Monday night.

Plans for reorganization of the association were discussed at the meeting at the Calcutta fire station.

Organizations will be questioned about the most convenient meeting date for the association.

Richard Mattern, president, and other officers will continue their duties until the reorganization is complete. Election of new officers had been scheduled.

Discussion was held on plans for transferring the Southeastern Water and Sewer District to the newly - formed Columbiana County Water and Sewer District.

Court action will be required for the changed authority. The Southeastern District was unable to begin financing arrangements because of technicalities. The association will meet May 3.

Two Men Are Killed When Car Hits Tree

CLEVELAND (AP) — A car veered off a roadway early today and slammed into a tree, killing two men.

Dead are Otillo, F. Santiago, 46, Lorain, the driver, and Calixto R. Rodriguez, 27, of Youngstown.

The accident occurred at the intersection of Clague and Lake roads in suburban Bay Village. The car's engine ignited by the fire was extinguished quickly.

Leetonia Man To Head Jury

LEETONIA — Russell Smith of Leetonia, an enamel mixer at the Mullins Manufacturing Co. in Salem, was appointed by Common Pleas Judge Raymond S. Buzzard as foreman of the April Grand Jury, which convened this morning to investigate criminal charges against approximately 30 persons.

Also sworn in on the panel of eight other men and six women were:

Alice Lamping and Dorothy Boley, both of East Liverpool; May H. Walton and Emma R. Pacey, both of Wellsville; Jeannette Rice, Richard D. Miller, Wilda Tennant, Alex Simion and Hazel Heinbuck, all of Salem; Tony Catanzarite, Phyllis Rupp and Harry R. Risinger, all of Lisbon, James E. Hunt of Columbiana and Gail J. Ruble of Hanoverton.

The Grand Jury first made its usual inspection of the County Jail. It was to return to the Courthouse after lunch to begin investigation of three cases involving eight witnesses.

Twenty-one witnesses in 11 cases are scheduled for Wednesday. Three witnesses will appear in one case Thursday, plus others concerned in several secret presentments.

GOP's Best Foot Forward

Robert Taft, Jr., who said in Cleveland last week he has no present plans to run for office is continuing to think about public affairs.

His defeat for the U. S. Senate in last year's races was one of the most unfortunate by products of the adverse reaction to Barry Goldwater's Republican candidacy, but Mr. Taft is young enough to try again — and again.

He thinks the 1964 experience of Republicans were a horrible example of what can happen when a political party is taken over by a faction of its membership. Apparently, he has given this the benefit of serious thought, because he has proposed to the new GOP chairman, Ray C. Bliss, a way to minimize the possibility it might happen again.

MR. TAFT'S proposal is a "shadow cabinet," borrowing a device from British politics.

In Britain, the party out of power appoints a leading member to take responsibility for forming policy in every government department. In this way, the "loyal opposition" keeps itself in public attention, keeps its policies up to date and in public view and insures in this manner that its policies will be officially formed and officially declared.

This is in contrast with the planlessness of the U. S. practice. Here, the party out of power lacks both policy cohesion and an official voice. The closest it comes to official declarations is through its spokesmen in Congress, who are rarely of one mind and at this particular time are violently contradicting each other on many issues.

If a "shadow cabinet" existed, there would be an official party position on everything that comes before the members of President Johnson's cabinet.

THERE WOULD BE, it is granted, a knock-down-and-drag-out fight over "shadow cabinet" appointments, but when the fight was over the party would be represented by the best men it could put in charge of its public image.

Among them might be Mr. Taft, himself, perhaps Charles H. Percy, the former governor of Illinois, who also was swept away by the anti-GOP tide last November, and Mark Hatfield of Oregon, party keynoter for the 1964 convention.

As it is now, all three are out of sight and out of mind.

Off And Running!

They're off and running again in Hancock County! We're speaking of the gamblers, not the horses.

The word comes from some of those who have been taken at the gaming tables.

"Crackdowns" have been only temporary arrangements regardless of who is in office.

Difference Is Substantial

Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace cannot be blamed for wanting to make it appear that violence in Alabama is not peculiar to that strife-riddled state. He is on the defensive.

When another collection of powerful time bombs had turned up in Birmingham and one of them had gone off, wrecking the home of a Negro family, the governor pointed out that bombings also had occurred in Youngstown, Ohio, and Chicago.

After a Detroit woman had been murdred on an Alabama highway during the tension that prevailed during the Selma-to-Montgomery march, Gov. Wallace recalled that a white person recently had been murdered in a New York subway.

Though even Gov. Wallace would have to strain for an incident to match the fatal assault by Alabama street bullies on a Boston pastor, he could find plenty of examples of helpless people being struck down by criminals in other states.

The thing that the Gov. Wallaces of the Southern states cannot grasp is the difference between criminal violence committed by criminals and violence committed by Southerners who have been annoyed by civil rights agitation.

The difference was dramatized in its most horrible aspects last summer when three young men were murdered and their bodies buried in an earthen dam by a local mob in Mississippi. Among the suspects were a local sheriff and a deputy.

There is no possibility of bringing Southerners to justice for deeds of violence committed in connection with civil rights agitation. Many times the deeds of violence are done with the knowledge and participation of law enforcement officials.

The difference between this and violence by professional criminals is substantial, even if Gov. Wallace and other Southerners cannot detect it.

Why Not A Modern Militia?

A year ago, the country heard about a civilian patrol called the Maccabees that had been organized in the Crown Heights section of Brooklyn, to assist the New York Police Department. The idea was intriguing. Was it the answer to public security?

The idea of civilan patrols is still catching on. A patrol was set up last week in an adjoining section of Brooklyn, the Bedford Stuyvesant area. In another part of the New York metropolitan area, Staten Island, a civilan patrol has been organized in the Midland Beach section.

Elsewhere in the city, civilians have taken responsibility for patrolling housing developments, large apartment houses and private neighborhoods. A significant thought lies behind all this activity.

It is the same thought that once lay behind the creation of militia, to exercise local responsibility for maintenance was an overgrown and inordinately costly standing army. The alternative in today's sprawling cities is an overgrown and prohibitively expensive police force.

The truth is, there couldn't be enough policemen in New York City to keep track of everything happening not only in the streets but in the towering buildings.

Is it not infinitely more sensible for the civilian population to organize "militia" than to clamor endlessly for ever-larger police forces?

While Waiting

By Truman Twill

Hadn't thought about our fallout shelter lately. But a piece in the paper about people's indifference to the idea of going underground to save their skins made me think about it.

An appraisal of the damage our bombing planes are doing in North Viet Nam also prodded me into mindfulness of the survival problem. It is a problem — no mistake.

Despite multi-millions of dollars frittered away and enough publicity to launch a new toothpaste, we cannot make ourselves believe in going underground for survival. It reminds me of a thing I heard about cyclone cellars in the twister belt.

A cyclone cellar is the only safe place to be when a funnel-shaped cloud is spotted. The natives know this. But few have provided cyclone cellars, and few of those who have them ever use them.

This fits in with another behavior pattern — the reluctance of residents of river valleys to flee when the water is rising. People are like horses that burn up in their barns, instead of running away. They are destroyed by their instinct to stay in familiar surroundings.

OUR FALLOUT shelter is in familiar surroundings.

It is a corner of the cellar covered by a concrete slab and encased in stone, tile and brick. Before the oil furnace was installed, it was a coal bin.

When the bomb scare began, after Hiroshima, Nagasaki and Russian alacrity in closing the nuclear-fission gap, this basement hideaway became important.

The supply cupboard was near by, with its shelves of tomato paste, canned pumkin, asparagus tips, mixed peas and carrots and canned milk.

A few feet away was the hot-water tank, with enough water in it to constitute a drinking-water supply for weeks.

Within darting distance was the work bench, with an assortment of tools.

It looked like a reasonable compromise between the unrealistic kind of shelter the experts said everybody should have and being destroyed outright, like a housefly in a puff of fly spray.

IT LOOKED even better after the experts admitted no one could be safe in a direct hit like Hiroshima, or Nagasaki, but with a little luck there could be survivors several hundred miles away.

The Twillery was several hundred miles away from anything worth a nuclear bomb, we hoped.

But now there is something else to think about.

Our shelter might keep us safe from radioactive fallout as well as direct radiation, but it wouldn't be impervious to gas.

And — terrible thought — it wouldn't be worth a whoop if an unsportsman-like enemy dropped a fire bomb, because right there in the middle of the hideaway are two fuel oil tanks for the oil furnace. Varroom! And away we'd go.

We might as well wait for it on top of the ground, where men are supposed to live.

This 'n That

According to certain industrial experiments, about 19 per cent more energy is required to perform a job in noisy surroundings than in quiet. It takes more concentration to accomplish one's business in a noisy room, which means tenser muscles, stepped-up metabolism and increased consumption of oxygen — and this results in greater fatigue.

The world's greatest eaters of cheese are the Norwegians, who consume an annual average of about 19.6 pounds per person. Following this are the Swiss, with about 18.7 pounds, and the French, with about 17.6 pounds. The world's largest producer of cheese is the United States.

Rubies, for the past 10 years, have been rising in value, due to a diwndling in supplies from Ceylon and Burma. A flawless ruby of good color is now carat for carat more valuable than an emerald, diamond, or sapphire.

Labor Feels It Was Put On The Spot

By Victor Riesel

In two cities, in two days last week, the Rev. Martin Luther King collected at least $105,000 for his Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

Victor Riesel

Virtually all this money was heartily donated by labor leaders. But at the moment they gave him this powerful financial backing, they privately turned down flatly his appeal for the economic isolation of Alabama.

There are many reasons for labor's belief that such a campaign is "imprudent, fantastically complex and bound to affect adversely many fine forces there" — as one very highly placed national labor leader put it.

Here's how the story unfolded behind the scenes: The first news of the proposed boycott came to national labor leaders such as George Meany, AFL-CIO president, over the airwaves.

NEITHER HE nor others in the AFL - CIO high command were forewarned, advised or consulted.

The broadcast broke on Sunday, March 28. Through most of the next day they received no word from Dr. King.

Finally, some time after 5 p.m., just as they were closing shop to head for conferences, negotiations or home, a 56-word telegram arrived at the headquarters of over 60 major unions. Smaller organizations received letters later. All were signed by Dr. King.

The demand for action was stronger than they had expected. The wire called for "a national and international boycott and embargo of the State of Alabama . . . ."

This would mean closing the ports — mostly Mobile — paralyzing the railroads, cutting the air and truck lanes and idling scores of ocean-going ships —as a starter.

ONE LABOR FORCE which would have been affected immediately is the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA) local in Mobile. It's led by an ILA vice president, George Dixon, a Negro whose followers number 1,000 — all Negro Longshoremen.

Mr. Dixon was telephoned by ILA president Ted Gleason, who had received one of Dr. King's telegrams. The Alabaman told his union president he had not been consulted, and his local had contracts with management which it would honor.

Characteristic of another reaction was the development in the Pittsburgh headquarters of the United Steelworkers. This big union deals with the United States Steel Corp. installation close by Birmingham. At these works, there once was a seniority system built on two lines of advancement — white and Negro.

Some years ago the company and the union negotiated the contract and a single "line" of promotion was set up. Now there are at least 300 Negroes in jobs which for decades had been held only by white workers.

STEEL UNION officials said it was "unthinkable" that anyone would contemplate shutting down U.S. Steel plants there.

Basically, the reaction among other labor leaders who talked to each other in Washington and over the long distance phones was the following: The call for a boycott was not their decision. Regardless of what they thought of Dr. King, America's labor leadership could not accept such a decision made outside the labor movement.

They had not been forewarned or consulted. To accept such decisions from a force outside labor would set a very serious precedent.

Furthermore such a boycott would punish the membership of the unions themselves — and affect hundreds of fair employers, private and corporate, such as U.S. Steel. Even a short boycott would work hardship on labor's rank and file and businessmen.

The labor men said, in effect, punish your enemies not your friends. The unionists applauded the action of Dave McDonald, head of the United Steelworkers, for launching a probe of possible Ku Klux Klan infiltration into his vast union.

THIS PROBE came swiftly after Mr. McDonald had learned that one of the alleged killers of Mrs. Viola Liuzzo is a member of USW Local 1013 at the U.S. Steel Corp.'s Fairfield Works.

The accused is the 43-year-old Eugene Thomas of nearby Bessemer.

Mr. McDonald communicated quickly with Marshall Meadows president of Local 1013, asking him to formulize the evidence of Thomas' Klan affiliation, so he could be expelled from the union.

The USW chief pointed out that Article 3, Section 4, of the union's constitution bans Communists, fascists and Klansmen from union membership.

Mr. McDonald then followed this up with a strong letter to all 3,200 USW locals urging them to search their ranks and obey the constitution by ousting violators of the section. He asked to be kept informed.

This sort of action is what the labor men consider practical. They told Dr. King the national and international boycott and embargo not only was impractical but would alienate the nation.

They spoke emphatically in private, but politely in public. They felt strongly they had been put on the spot.

Today In History

Today is Tuesday, April 6, the 96th day of 1965. There are 269 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1917, just after 3 a.m. the House approved a resolution declaring war on Germany. Passed earlier by the Senate, the declaration was signed by President Woodrow Wilson in the White House at 12:30 p.m.

On this date

In 1830, the Church of Jesus Christ of Later-day Saints—the Mormon Church — was organized at Fayette, N.Y.

In 1893, the longest bout in sports history was fought in New Orleans by Andy Bowen and Jack Burke. Referee Jack Diffy stopped the fight in the 110th round and declared it to be no contest.

In 1941, Nazi armies started their invasion of Greece and Yugoslavia.

In 1942, Japanese troops landed on the Island of Bougainville.

Why Delinquency?

By David Lawrence

Problem Linked To Mothers Who Hold Jobs

The objective of most public policies today is to advance the cause of human happiness. The emphasis is on measures to reduce the burdens of poverty, but there is growing evidence that juvenile delinquency and other tragic effects have come about largely because of the neglect of children in the home.

David Lawrence

A government report just issued has some interesting statistics on the number of wives who find it necessary to work and therefore cannot spend as much time with their children as non-working women do with theirs.

The survey was made last year by the U.S. Department of Labor. It shows that, in nearly half of the nation's working families, there is more than one wage earner. In the more than 35 million families in which the husband is employed, working wives make up the bulk of the additional job holders. About half of the 1.2 million married men who were unemployed have wives or other family members with jobs.

The Labor Department's report says that the wives of men with incomes of $3,000 to $7,000 are "more likely to be in the labor force than the wives of men with lower or higher incomes."

WHILE THE REPORT does not discuss the background of such a situation, it's doubtless true that an income between $3,000 and $7,000 is not adequate to satisfy the needs of a family with children. Not only must money be paid for taxes—federal, state and local—but for necessary expenses such as housing, clothing and food.

In many instances, a car is necessary for transportation to and from work.

There is an inclination to regard some of these expenditures as luxuries, but American families are seeking to earn enough to obtain better living conditions.

The significant fact, however, is that, with all the talk about America's high standard of living, it's not possible in many instances for the husband alone to earn enough to take care of his family satisfactorily, much less provide any "luxuries."

Neglect of children has been cited as one of the causes of emotional distrubances and of a trend toward criminal behavior in youths. Certainly the absence of both parents in the daily lives of children is an important psychological factor in a child's development. It has been argued that many youngsters do not have the parental guidance necessary for a balanced life and the instilling of a respect for other human beings.

MANY CLERGYMEN are finding that some of the most serious problems in which their counsel is sought are related to the misbehavior of teen-agers who come home from school when both parents are away. It's estimated that a great many of the pregnancies among teenage girls are a direct result of the lack of parental supervision.

There is room for speculation as to whether the American wage level is high enough to take care of the needs of the American family without the necessity of additional income to be earned by a working wife.

Labor unions have succeeded in advancing the general pay level, but they have also forced upward the price level—the cost of living. This particularly works a hardship on the vast number of people whose jobs are not adjusted to labor-union wage scales.

The whole question of a naturally stimulated economy under the private-enterprise system is one that has not received the attention it deserves.

The erroneous impression prevails that what is happening in the union-organized industries does not affect adversely the lives of many citizens who are compelled to work at low-scale wage or who are thrown out of work when competition forces businesses to the wall.

THE BIG ISSUE today, of course, is whether a constant series of government grants and subsidies will maintain the economy for any length of time without a serious recession.

Mills Of Justice

By James Marlow

The mills of justice grind so slowly it has taken the Supreme Court 174 years to say a man tried for crime in a state court has as much right to question his accuser as a man tried for crime in a federal court.

It finally reached that point Monday in the case of Bob Granville Pointer, convicted in Texas of robbing Kenneth W. Phillips of $375. By the time Pointer was brought to trial Phillips had moved to California.

Since he didn't show up at the trial, Pointer's lawyer couldn't cross-examine him. Instead, the state offered as evidence against Pointer a transcript of testimony given by Phillips at a preliminary hearing some time before.

In the appeal to the Supreme Court, Pointer's lawyer argued that, under the Constitution's Sixth Amendment guarantee of an accused man's right to confront his accuser, his client should have been able, but wasn't, to question Phillips.

The Supreme Court agreed. Its decision was a landmark. And what happened to Pointer in Texas can never happen again — at least in that way — in a state criminal trial.

But why did it take the Supreme Court all these years to reach a decision which might seem obvious to anyone reading the Constitution? This is an explanation, along with two other cases to explain a delay of almost two centuries.

In 1791 the first 10 amendments to the Constitution — the Bill of Rights — were adopted because the states were afraid the federal government might in time encroach upon what they considered the rights of states and individuals.

Two of these amendments — the Fifth and Sixth — are particularly pertinent here. The Fifth said a man could not be compelled to testify against himself.

The Sixth said a person accused of crime not only had a right to be informed of the charge against him but to confront his accusers and to have a lawyer to defend him.

For much of its history the Supreme Court took the view that the Bill of Rights' guarantees applied only to what happened within federal jurisdiction and not to the states at all.

In fact, more than 100 years ago it ruled that the bill's amendments applied only to federal jurisdiction. A change of view set in, but ever so slowly, after the adoption of the 14th Amendment in 1868.

This one, aimed at protecting the newly freed Negroes, said everyone must have equal protection of the laws and that no one could be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law.

Gradually in the years since the court decided, although with a slowness that seems unbelievable, that this 14th Amendment meant various provisions of the Bill of Rights did and must apply to states.

But as late as 1908 the court specifically held that the Fifth Amendment — which said a man can't be compelled to give testimony which might incriminate him — did not apply to state proceedings.

It was only last June that the court reversed itself on that. Justice William J. Brennan Jr., writing the 5-4 decision, said:

The 14th Amendment's guarantee of due process of law for everyone "secures against state invasion the same privilege that the Fifth Amendment guarantees against federal infringement — the right of a person to remain silent unless he chooses to speak in the unfettered exercise of his own will, and to suffer no penalty."

Back in 1942 the court took a step, an extremely timid one, in making the Sixth Amendment's guarantee — that a man accused of crime is entitled to a lawyer — apply to state courts but only if the accused faced the death penalty.

After 21 years the court was ready to go further, and did. In 1963 the court ruled that every state, as well as every federal court, must provide an attorney for a person charged with crime but too poor to hire a lawyer.

And in Monday's case of the Texas man whose lawyer wasn't able to question the accuser — because the accuser wasn't there — the court reversed previous decisions in saying a man accused of crime in a state court must be permitted to cross-examine his accuser.

Board Gives Permanent Contracts To 13 Teachers

Continuing contracts were granted 13 city teachers by the Board of Education Monday night after Supt. Paul H. Blair explained the board is compelled by law to grant tenure to instructors with at least three years' service and the proper credentials.

Receiving the permanent contracts as teachers were Mrs. Rachel Delaney, Miss D. Kay Edwards, Mrs. Raffaela Harrington, Mrs. Velma Jean Jackson, Mrs. Dorothy D. Shepherd, Mrs. Mary E. Walrath, Anthony LaNeve, Robert Lorah, Mrs. M. Jane Rife, H. Dean McKinney, H. Keith Langdon, Vernon Waltath and Mrs. Marie Graham.

ALL ARE instructors with the exception of Mrs. Graham, who is principal of Lincoln and Taft Schools. However, her continuing contract is for teaching since the board does not grant continuing contracts to principals, Blair explained.

The board also accepted the resignation of Mrs. Joyce Chamberlain, a secretary at Westgate School, effective April 15 for health reasons, and granted a leave of absence for the first semester of the 1965-66 term to Mrs. Patricia Kithas, high school art teacher, also for reasons of health.

The board also approved a recommendation of the finance committee that the salary of the superintendent of buildings and grounds be raised $200 a year.

Samuel W. Brown, finance chairman, pointed out that one custodian now receives $95 a year more than the supervisor, George Shuffert. The committee made provisions for the increase in the annual appropriations which were adopted at the last meeting.

THE BOARD authorized the superintendent and finance committee to proceed, if finances are available, with the purchase of 16 IBM "school reconditioned" Selectric typewriters for the commercial department.

Blair explained 15 of the present manual typewriters are 20 years old and one is 25 years old. The firm will allow $25 a machine, a total trade in of $400, or the school may sell the machines to individuals directly, he said.

The reconditioned typewriters originally cost $315 but have been offered for $265 each, a total of $4,240. If one machine is desired with an extra - long carriage, the cost will be an additional $15. The net price with the trade - in of the old machines would be $3,855, Blair said.

The company has offered to take a third payment in August, another third in September 1966 and the final payment in October 1967, but Blair explained he wants to check the law on installment buying.

IN RESPONSE to a question, Blair said the commercial department now has between 65 and 70 typewriters but there is no itention to convert all to electric typewriters.

The board is required to ask competitive bids only on items costing over $6,000, he explained.

The department also needs an automatic calculator, a semi-automatic calculator, a 10-key adding machine and a full - key adding machine, but because of the finances only two machines probably will be acquired this year, Blair continued.

He said the Monroe Co., which manufactures calculators and adding machines, has loaned machines to the school for several years at no charge.

THE BOARD also discussed replacement of runners in the Westgate auditorium, but delayed a final decision until the meeting April 19 in order to obtain more information.

John R. Woomer, chairman of the building committee, reported the committee discussed the replacement of the worn runners in the heavily - used auditorium, painting of the auditorium ceiling and painting or covering the concrete block in the stage

The committee discussed the use of a carpet - type runner rather than the conventional runners as a means of reducing noise in the auditorium, Woomer said.

Blair showed the board some samples, pointing out the material is expensive but can be scrubbed or swept.

A LOCAL FIRM offered nylon set in vinyl for $2,376 plus $3.50 per man per hour for installation, while an out-of-town concern asked $2,250 for nylon set in rubber. Blair said he assumed the out-of-town firm's price included installation.

About 1,800 feet would be needed to cover the four aisles and a walkway at the rear of the auditorium. He estimated the cost of using material similar to the present runners between $1,200 and $1,500.

Portions of the old runners may be able to be used in the gymnasium when there are exhibits, he pointed out.

Rental of five school facilities also were approved by the board.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce was authorized use of Memorial Auditorium April 17 and May 22 for a wrestling show at a fee of $100 a night and custodial charges.

—:—

THE REVIEW was given permission to use the all - purpose room at Westgate for a film for newsboys on April 17 at a fee of $15 plus custodial charges.

The City Federation of Women's Clubs was granted permission to use Westgate auditorium the same day for the annual children's play with custodial fees only being charged.

The Dollars for Scholars committee was authorized use of the Memorial Auditorium April 24 for a "hootenanny" for $60 plus custodial fees.

City Hospital School of Nursing received use of the Memorial auditorium parking lot for a car wash on May 1 with a fee of $5 for water.

In the absence of Miss Kathryn Liebschner, clerk - trasurer, Asst. Supt. George Hargraves was appointed acting clerk. The Rev. John F. Stilts of the Orchard Grove Community Methodist Church offered prayer.

Forms Are Sent 14 Applying For Absentee Ballots

Fourteen application forms for disabled and civilian absentee ballots for the May 4 primaries and special elections were mailed Monday by the County Election Board.

Monday was the first day the applications could be issued, Frank R. O'Hanlon, clerk, explained. The applications may be issued until 4 p. m. April 29 and the ballots must be returned by noon, April 30, if they are to be counted at the polls.

Meanwhile, two more non - partisan candidates for township trustee posts at the Nov. 2 general election have filed petitions with the board.

They are Lamonte Co. Merreot, Fairfield Township, and John W. Green, Unity Township.

The deadline for non-partisan candidates for village, school district and township posts to enter for the general election is Aug. 4, O'Hanlon pointed out.

Hays Lauds Action For New Embassy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, says the House's speedy action authorizing $1 million to build a new embassy in Saigon "shows the world we will not be pushed out of Viet Nam."

The House voted unanimously Monday to provide the funds to replace the embassy bombed by Viet Cong terrorists a week ago. The measure now goes to the Senate.

School Personnel Conference Set

A two - day in-service conference for all city school district employes — administrators, teachers, secretaries, cafeteria workers, custodians, boiler firemen and bus drivers — will be held April 13-14 at Westgate School.

A brief opening program will be held Monday at 7:30 p. m. in the auditorium, which will be open to school district residents along with the public and professional personnel from neighboring school districts.

—:—

FORTY - SEVEN companies, including textbook publishers and equipmnet manufacturers, will have exhibits on display Monday night for those interested.

The exhibits also will be open Tuesday for members of the city staff.

Because of the conference, no classes will be held either Tuesday or Wednesday, giving the pupils two extra days on the annual spring vacation which begins Thursday. Classes will resume April 20.

The opening program Monday night will include a welcome by Supt. Paul H. Blair, introductions and musical selections. Members of the Board of Education will be platform guests.

—:—

A DISCUSSION of the new mathematics program being offered in the first four grades will follow the opening program. Mrs. Helen Braham of the Silver Burdett Co., whose texts are being used, will explain the program to those interested.

The program for the two-day session calls for a brief opening program at 8:45 a. m. Tuesday with four conferences each day.

The conferences will be held from 9 to 10 and 10:30 to 11:30 a. m. and from 1 to 2 and 2:30 to 3:30 p.m. Tuesday. The Wednesday morning sessions will be at the same times, but the afternoon sessions have been scheduled from 1 to 1:45 and 2 to 2:45 to permit a closing session from 3 to 3:30.

EACH GRADE level and department has its own schedule along with programs for special education teachers and school psychologist, cafeteria workers, custodians, bus drivers and boiler firemen, principals, deans, school nurse and attendance officer, and secretaries.

For example, second grade teachers will have conferences on English, reading and spelling on Tuesday morning while fifth grade instructors will view the exhibits and have a conference on writing at the same time.

The program for secondary teachers includes conferences with Robert F. Beatty, city architect, who has designed the new senior high school and will discuss the plans in detail.

Several other local residents also will participate in the sessions.

Atty. William H. Vodrey Jr. and Harold Barth of the East Liverpool Historical Society will discuss the history of the city with the social studies group Tuesday morning.

—:—

IN THE AFTERNOON, the group will hear Juvenile Judge Louis Tobin on "Youth and the Law" and view the exhibits.

On Wednesday morning, the Rev. M. Rudolph Miller, co-pastor of the Trinity United Presbyterian Church, will speak on the Middle East and Don Eckert, chairman, will discuss the functions of the Municipal Planning Commission.

Fred Jackson of the Sayre Electric Co. and Delmas Sanford of Sanford Plumbing will meet with the custodians Wednesday morning.

A special program has been arranged from 1 to 3:30 p. m. Tuesday for school board members along with board members and superintendents from neighboring districts.

Dr. Lewis Harris, executive secretary of the Ohio School Boards Association, will be speaker.

MUSIC TEACHERS will attend a conference and view exhibits in Pittsburgh on Tuesday.

Special meetings also have been arranged for some other groups.

James Angel of the Division of Guidance and Testing of the State Department of Education will meet with the testing committee from 9 a. m. to 1:45 p.m. Wednesday.

Dr. Clayton Schindler, dean of the College of Education at Kent State University, will meet at varying times with some 65 people who have expressed interest in the KSU graduate and undergraduate work.

Miss Amy Allen, state supervisor of special education, will meet with those persons interested in special education and textbook committees will meet with publishers' representatives.

BESIDES THE local residents, 33 other consultants from the State Department of Education, and representatives of utilities, publishing firms and equipment manufacturers will address various groups.

The largest in-service conference ever held here, details of the comprehensive program have been worked out by Asst. Supt. George Hargraves.

Cross a Wildcat engine with a Buick Special, and what do you get?

A car with 9 lives and a very businesslike purr.

Why nine lives? You'll find that we build Buicks to last. That's one of the nice advantages Special has in store for you. As to that purr: you'll find it exciting to have a 210-hp. pet around the garage. Just say "scat," exert a slight pressure with the right foot, and it departs with stunning rapidity. If you're wondering how much one feeds a Special with a hood full of Wildcat V-8, remember that it won its class in the Mobil Economy Run last year. (Specials are friendly, as a rule, but they just don't seem to like gas pumps.) We won't tell you about the Special's lean good looks, its velvet ride, its docile handling, its pampering luxury. Take that up with your Buick dealer. (Also, ask him about an even wilder species we've developed: the Special with a 250-hp. Wildcat engine. And a little more grr in its purr.)

Full Sight Given Ex-District Man Now Hair Stylist

Full sight has been restored to a former district man who was blinded by an explosion in a plane hangar in the Philippines while he was in the Air Force 12 years ago.

David Wargo of Phoenix, Ariz., son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wargo of Salineville R. D. 2, had the vision restored in the right eye after 15 operations, and has been a hair stylist for some time.

Now, after over 15 operations and a three-stage corneal transplant, he can see again with both eyes.

"The doctors said it was one of the most perfect eye transplants ever accomplished," Wargo said. The operations were performed at a Veterans Administration Hospital at Los Angeles.

"Restoration of sight has given me an entirely new outlook on life," he said. Everything is beautiful. I can't express how grateful I am to the person who donated his eye that I might see."

Wargo says he wants to work with the Association of the Blind, and hopes to educate the public on the importance of transplants.

He was a radio serviceman in the Air Force when the mishap occurred. He earned a reputation as a prize fighter, and later worked as a railroad fireman and in construction work before entering the hair styling field.

Merger Flight Explained To School Board

Atty. James E. Rowley appeared before the Southern Beaver County Board of Education Monday night to submit an up-to-date report on a continuing effort to upset a decision of the State Board of Education rejecting Southern Beaver's objection to a proposed merger with two other districts.

Rowley told the board at its meeting at the Hookstown school one of his assistants was to have appeared in the Dauphin County (Pa.) prothonotary's office earlier yesterday in an attempt to get the courts to set aside the state's decision.

Rowley outlined a series of steps he has taken or contemplates on behalf of the school district in its battle against a merger with the Hopewell-Independence and Raccoon School Districts, as proposed by the state board.

In other action, the board authorized Mrs. Marie Andrews, secretary, to advertise for bids for fuel oil and equipment and supplies for the 1965-66 term.

The board approved the request of Mrs. Clara L. Baker to be relieved of additional duties as head cook at the high school cafeteria, but to remain as a regular cook.

The board then approved the recommendation of Mrs. Sara Patterson, cafeteria manager, to employ Mrs. Ruth Matchett as head cook for the balance of the term.

George Russi, music teacher and band director, was given permission to attend the Mid-east Music Conference at Duquesne University in Pittsburgh Sunday through Wednesday.

The request of Mrs. Jean Walton, girls' physical education and health instructor, for 20 members of the Girls' Gym Leaders Club to participate in "Play Days," also was approved.

Ten girls will participate in an event Tuesday at Ambridge and 10 others will participate at Geneva College Friday.

A major portion of the session was taken up by a discussion of a budget to be submitted for approval at the next meeting May 3. David McKenzie, president, presided.

Insurance

claim rose 14 per cent. Property claims rose 5 per cent and the size of the average claim was up 21 per cent.

"Five years ago it cost maybe $500 for certain repairs. Today it's $650," says C. Donnal Behm, head of the Ohio Insurance Department's rating section.

"A hospital room costs 57 per cent more than it did 10 years ago, physicians' fees are up 34 per cent and medical care costs up 37 per cent," says insurance executive J. Robert Oelberg.

Even nature is involved. In the 40s, the United States averaged 155 tornadoes yearly. Now it's 611 a year, says Oelberg.

—:—

THE FIGURES go on and on. But if you've dented a fender or been in the hospital recently, the trend is all too clear.

The conclusion: Increased costs mean increased premiums for auto, fire, theft, health and homeowner package policies. Life insurance is another matter. If anything, its rates are going down.

But public resistance to rising rates is strong.

No one gets very vocal about a $100 increase in the cost of a new automobile," says Oelberg, "but if his insurer asks for an increase in his automobile premium, he whips out his pen and dashes off a letter to his editor."

He might as well save the price of a postage stamp.

Ohio law says that if a company can show it costs so much to underwrite an insurance policy, the company is entitled to charge a premium sufficient to cover the cost of such underwriting.

The companies do the arithmetic; the State Department of Insurance checks the figures.

"Our job is to find out if the rates are adequate, not excessive and not discriminatory," says Supt. Morris.

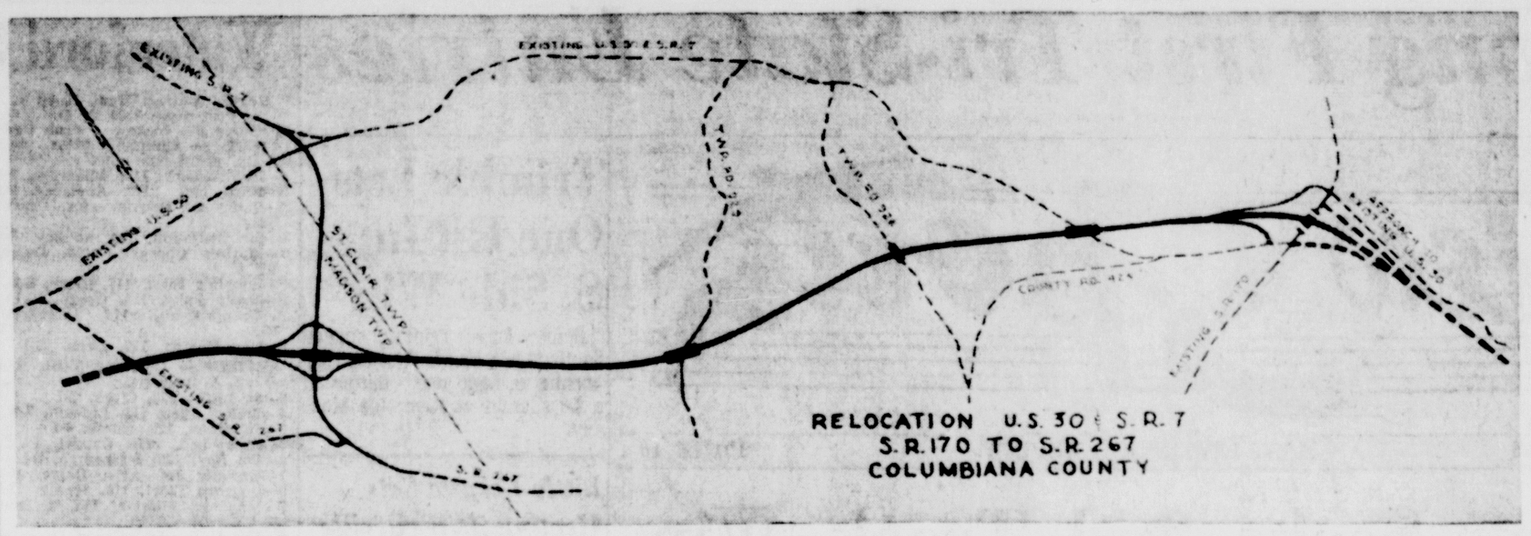
"Unless I prove them (the insurance companies) wrong, they are in business, says Morris.

—:—

WHETHER THE company makes a profit with other investments—and most of them do—is not a factor in rate consideration.

The insurance department agrees that auto casualty companies have taken their lumps in the past few years, mainly because of the increase in accidents.

"There has been a trend . . . where the underwriting losses of these companies has been tremendous," says Morris.



Here's A Sketch Of The Route For The Next Stage Of The Freeway.

Highway

000 persons more than seven per cent of Ohio's population.

The first southern stage of the lake - river road is the so-called East Liverpool Freeway, which extends from W. 3rd and Monroe Sts. to the city limits. The second stage begins at the city limits and runs to a junction with Route 170 at Substation.

The third segment will tie in with the end of the second stage at Substation.

Aside from the two stretches here, the only completed segments of the highway lie in Ashtabula County.

The Division 11 office in New Philadelphia prepared the plans for the third segment. Consulting engineering firms are at work on plans for some of the other segments.

Bids are due Sept. 28 on a 6.5-mile stretch of the highway in the Youngstown area, estimated to cost $6.3 million. The department will open offers Nov. 9 on a 7.5-mile segment near Jefferson in Ashtabula County. It is estimated to cost $5.1 million.

Another Columbiana County segment is scheduled tentatively for bids in 1965. Stretching for 4.8 miles, it will cost an estimated $5.3 million. Together with the third segment, it will take the four - lane highway as far north as Lisbon.

Masheter told the Highway Association in February the state decided to build the road as "a major effort to encourage growth of industry and business in Eastern Ohio.

He called the program "an effort on the part of the entire state to help a section that will react to development."

He said one of the highway's major benefits will be speedier, cheaper transportation between Great Lakes ports and the Ohio.

Council

extension of the Freeway from the Newell Bridge to the state line, but no positive action was taken.

Councilman Floyd Murray made the motion to provide the city's share of the resurfacing project on Pennsylvania Ave., Harvey Ave. and Elizabeth St.

He cited a letter from Bloomgren explaining the state has agreed to undertake the project in the last half of 1965 — probably in September. Any segment not completed this year will be scheduled for 1966, the engineer said.

"I think the work is needed very badly and I don't think we could get it any cheaper," Murray said. The finance committee was asked to study the request for funds and present enabling legislation.

Councilman Norman Bucher moved for the legislation for preparation of plans on the W. 9th St. ramp.

He pointed out that $20,000 was provided in the annual appropriation ordinance to help pay the city's share of the project.

The city's overall share of the job is set at $40,000. The Highway Department and the Federal Bureau of Public Roads will pay the balance. Both agencies were involved in the Freeway project, which led to cutting W. 9th St. in half at the site of former Chestnut St.

Bucher suggested the legislation be presented at the next meeting April 19 "in order that the project can proceed as quickly as possible."

Bucher also made the motion for preparation of plans for the Shadyside improvement.

Residents of the winding, narrow thoroughfare have sought a widening and resurfacing for years, declaring the street is a hazard particularly for school buses which travel it daily.

Bucher said he feels the project "has been thrown in the city's lap." Moving for preparation of plans, he said the city then should "seek to incorporate county aid" for the project.

Murray seconded the motion and it was approved unanimously.

Bucher also commented that he feels it is "vital" for the administration to "see what is being done about extending the next phase of the Freeway to the state line."

New buildings being erected in the vicinity of the Chester Bridge will add to right-of-way costs, Bucher said. The highway will be a vital link with the new Shippingport Bridge above Midland, he added.

Council President George Willshaw agreed with Bucher, but said no survey can be made until Council provides the funds. Bucher said Council would like to know how much would be required. That ended the discussion and Council moved on to other business.

Home Show

Ross, who was Miss Teen-Age Pittsburgh and runnerup in the national contest, will perform Friday night at 7. She does a comedy skit.

The students of Myers Dance Studio will present a show Saturday night. The Jaycee Clowns will perform nightly.

Various free prizes will be given by the Jaycees. As in the past, the exhibitors are providing various types of gifts for the public.

Frank Potts, chairman, said the show should be very colorful, as many of the exhibitors have been planning their displays for some time. The booths have been arranged to provide a continuous flow of traffic and the wide aisleways will allow persons to stop at any booth without interfering with others, he added. Entrance will be from Walnut St.

A loudspeaker system will be operated by the Jaycees for anyone desiring to make announcements.

As in the past, non-profit and charitable organizations have been provided free booth space.

Police protection will be provided around the clock to prevent any damage to the merchandise. Jaycee members will remain in the building at night and an officer will be on duty during the daylight hours.

The admission is 25 cents for adults and 10 cents for children. The children will be admitted only if accompanied by an adult.

The Jaycees use the proceeds for various civic and youth projects.

Potts' committee includes Ray Betteridge, Keith Goodman, Paul Grafton, Bob Owen, Gary White and Al Gloeckner.

Students

Miss Martha Finney, third grade teacher at West Point.

The board hired Mrs. Elizabeth Ames of New Springfield as high school mathematics instructor, replacing Charles Tomer.

A leave of absence was granted Mrs. Janet Baker, high school English teacher.

In other action, the board authorized a Title III project providing encyclopedia for West Point School, and applied for Title III aid for elementary school library books.

The ninth grade classes will again be housed in the Public School in 1965-66 because of lack of room in the high school the board ruled.

Summer school, slated to begin June 7 for six weeks, will include typing with a $5 fee and driver training with a $10 fee.

The Elkton PTO was given permission to transfer playground equipment from the former Oak Grove School to the Elkton School. The Elkton Little League team was granted permission to use the Elkton School field.

The high school Science Club received permission to hold a car wash on the Calcutta School grounds April 17.

Lee Harsha and Jody Rice of Calcutta, high school seniors, were given sixth period work permits. The next meeting will be held April 19.

Meters

next, said he has a stock of newspaper clippings from communities in which the Mississippi meter was in service, but he did not read them. He said the newspaper stories related troubles with the Karpark meter "freezing up and rusting out."

—:—

HE SAID HE understands one of the meters is in use in East Liverpool and it has caused service troubles. Cunningham said he feels the whole question should be probed again by the planning committee.

"What can we do to stop this?" Murray asked. "I would like a legal opinion from the solicitor."

President George E. Willshaw commented that "no meters have been purchased yet."

But Murray replied there has been a legal advertisement issued for new bids.

Davis also said he feels Council should have a chance to investigate the Karpark meter.

—:—

IN ANNOUNCING the rejection, Hall said he had made a personal investigation in several communities using the Karpark meter and found that officials were well satisfied.

"State legislation gives Council much broader power in these matters than it did a year ago," Councilman Donald Hancock said. He said he has a publication on the law change, but forgot to take it to the meeting.

"Council can specify exactly what it wants," Hancock said. "They said they want to save $2,300, but they'll spend a lot more on repairs. I feel this is something that should be investigated further. We are not at all happy with this decision. So many people are telling us all about meters and they don't know anything about them."

That ended the discussion and Council adjourned. Vodrey said the new bids will be opened April 15 on "exactly the same specifications."

Meter Resists Cold, Mayor Hall Reports

The parking meter which the administration favors for use on East Liverpool's streets resisted severe cold in an informal test made by Safety-Service Director Robert E. Vodrey, Mayor Merrill D. Hall commented today.

Vodrey placed a sample of the meter in a deep freeze at a temperature of 7 degrees below zero and the device functioned properly despite the chilling, the mayor said. Vodrey made the test on a meter manufactured by Karpark Corp. of Starkville, Miss., which submitted the apparent low bid for automatic meter, on March 8.

Health

they did not favor the plan initially, but since hearing it explained thoroughly they feel it would be to the best interests of the city.

The Health Board members said there would be no change in the present personnel—a public health nurse, two sanitary inspectors and a secretary who also is registrar of vital statistics.

The local employes would continue to work in the same general area, the Health Board members asserted. Queried about the county's policy on replacements if a local job opened up, they said they assumed it would be filled by a person from this area.

"I'm still not convinced this is the best thing for East Liverpool," Murray commented. He said there are many questions that must be cleared up before Council can make a decision.

Zehnder said the city could withdraw at any time by failing to apropriate funds for its share of the county operation. Then, he said, it could establish its local health district again. He said operation of the present district costs about $24,000 a year, but the combination with the county would cost the city only about $16,000.

Bucher said he wants to find out how many counties in Ohio use combined health districts. He said the State Legislature was asked at one time to enact a law for a general consolidation of health districts, but the measure was not approved.

Zehnder said the local board checked with its employes and they favored the consolidation so long as their Civil Service status is not threatened.

"East Liverpool has no supervision of its staff," Dr. Rugh said. "If nothing is done, the State Health Department is liable to take over the operation."

Davis said the city had no assurance if a local employe quit under the county setup he would be replaced by another local person.

"We're not going to issue a blank check," Hancock said. "We want to know exactly what services we would get and what the cost would be."

He said there is a question what area the consolidated district would cover and how large its governing board would be.

Hancock said Council has scheduled another meeting May 13 with County Health Department representatives. That ended the discussion.

Vocational Talks Begin

Twelve career conferences were on top today as the 19th annual Vocational Conference Week continued at East Liverpool High School.

The yearly event opened with a general assembly Monday afternoon at which the Rev. Alexander K. Davison, pastor of the First United Presbyterian Church, gave the keynote address.

Discussing "The Third Priority," Dr. Davison explained that it is life's work but comes after the other two priorities — the student's personal relationship with the Creator and responsibility to his family.

He told the students the careers they choose will be determined by their qualifications and evaluated by their motives. Natural aptitude will play a great role in selection of their career, the minister said, explaining they will not become concert violinists if they have no musical ability. Regardless of the natural ability they may have, a career still requires diligent application, Dr. Davison continued.

4 Teams Among First Tri-State Entries

2-Day Event Opens Firing Friday Night

A small but talented field is expected to enter the 40th annual Tri-State Basketball Tournament which will hold eliminations for two days beginning Friday and ending Saturday at Memorial Auditorium.

Potters' Opening Meet Is Postponed

East Liverpool's track forces didn't get to launch their season Monday when the duel meet with Western Beaver was postponed. The Potters are scheduled to run at Steubenville Big Red Wednesday.

Four teams are in the fold with the remainder of entries expected today.

Heading the list of early entries is Shaffer's Trucking of Wellsville, which finished as runnerup in the Wellsville Jaycee tourney last week.

Shaffer's will enter the East Liverpool tourney with a star studded lineup including Chuck Curtuss, who was formerly with the Cleveland Pipers of the American Basketball League.

The remainder of the lineup consists of ex-Kent State and Akron U. standouts in Bob Green, Dick Dennis, Skeeter Wallace, Jim Maddox, Charlie Boykin and Jack Arnold.

Amo's Esso of Rochester has entered some former Geneva College cagers in Biff Aultman, Larry Zeh, Jim Irons, Bill McIntyre, George Berkhiemer, Angie Scorcilla, Elmer Reed and Don Lehman.

Another entry is the World Book & Bible Store which gained the semi-final round at Wellsville before losing to Shaffer's. Carl Anderson ex-Midland star and Bob Baker, an all - stater from Steubenville Big Red will head this team.

The Mohawk Rubber team has entered talent from the Akron and Barberton areas.

White Insurance is the defending Tri-State champ and was sparked to the title last year by Ron Galbreath and his teammates from Westminster College.

Oak Glen Seeks 2nd Track Win

In Oak Glen's first year of track competition, the Golden Bears didn't win a duel meet but last Saturday captured their first cinder victory over Steubenville Central.

Competing in the Steel Valley League, Oak Glen will go after its second duel victory Wednesday at Wellsburg beginning at 5:30 against Weirton Madonna.

Coach Bob Starkey has six lettermen returning to the field and five of them are shown in a practice session at Oak Glen. Coach Starkey is shown holding the stop watch over Jim Gracie (left) and Dan Forsythe, while Jack Ring, Marvin Six and John Brand look on. One other letterman, Tim Stover, was absent.

Gracie is a sprinter while Ring and Brand are Oak Glen's hopes in the distance events. Forsythe runs the hurdles and Six and Stover are in the field events.

Starkey has been working with a group of 63 which has turned out for the sport.

Trimble Lets One Hit In S. Side Win

Senior Dave Trimble opened South Side's baseball season by hurling a neat one - hitter in a 2-0 shutout at Riverside Monday.

The victory came in South Side's Section 4 opener.

Trimble was in control all the way fanning eight batters while walking only two.

His teammates provided him with a run in the second and one in the fifth inning. A fielder's choice scored the first run while Dave Ashcroft singled home the second marker.

Junior Ken Peden led the hitting attack with a triple and single. South Side collected eight hits off Riverside pitching.

South Side will entertain Freedom Thursday.

Casper Fattens Up Bank Account

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — Billy Casper has fattened his bank account considerably with unofficial tournament winnings.

Casper is ranked second on the Professional Golfers' Association list of top 10 money winners with $20,898. However, this is only about half of his total winnings so far this season.

Casper has won another $20,106 in tournaments not sponsored by the PGA for total earnings of $41,004.

Doug Sanders heads the list with official money of $29,157 and unofficial earnings of $3,357 for a total of $32,514.

Bob Charles is third with total earnings of $19,298. Sam Snead won $16,100 and Bruce Devlin $16,352.

Good Caddies Help Stars Win, Claims Gene Sarazen

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Gene Sarazen is high on Jack Nicklaus to win the 30th Masters Golf Tournament starting Thursday but he feels the husky blond bomber, four-time winner Arnie Palmer and the other elite of the game have an unfair advantage over the rest of the field.

"They get the best caddies," said the 63-year-old Squire of Germantown, N.Y., who won the second Masters in 1934 with his famous double eagle. "The caddies can make a big difference.

"Only five per cent of the caddies today know the difference between a driver and a four iron," said the veteran, who came out of the bag-carrying ranks to fame and fortune. "The good ones go to the top players like Nicklaus, Palmer, Tony Lema and Sam Snead.

"The way to equalize it would be to have the caddies just as a service. They would not be permitted to give advice."

Sarazen also suggested that the game should be mechanized to help speed up play.

"Golf carts should be permitted in the tournaments," said Sarazen. "You've got to keep up with the times and keep the game from lagging. You can still use caddies for the other functions."

As for Nicklaus, winner of the Masters in 1963 and sharer of second money behind Palmer last year, Sarazen said, "He has everything to win on this long course.

Billy Martin In Middle Of Feud

Twins' Manager Fines Versalles $300 Following Dugout Argument

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Sam Mele is glancing over his shoulder, Zoilo Versalles is peeking in his wallet and Billy Martin is just trying to look innocent. It all adds up to baseball's latest spring training squabble.

Versalles is $300 poorer today after taking on Manager Mele in a Minnesota dugout dispute while the Twins were being thrashed by the New York Mets 8-1 Monday. Mele had yanked his temperamental shortstop and accused him of not going all out on a bouncer by Jim Hickman that brought in two Met runs.

When Zoilo got to the bench, Mele told him to sit down. That's where Martin, a Twin coash who is an old hand at feudin' and fussin', got into the act.

"I sit on the bench for Martin, not for you," Versalles barked. The shortstop was obviously referring to rumors that Martin might replace Mele unless the Twins can improve on last year's disappointing sixth-place finish.

"That will cost you $100," said Mele.

Zoilo wasn't finished though. "Make it $200," the shortstop snapped.

"All right, it's $200," said Mele.

"Why not $300?" asked Versalles.

"That's what it is," Mele replied. "Now get out behind the outfield and do some running."

Martin, in his first year as a coach with the Twins, was angry over getting involved in the spot, especially because of the rumors.

"Versalles shouldn't have said it. He did it in a fit of temper. I guess it was his way of getting back at Sam. He must have used my name because I'm working with him and he regards me as a friend. I'm loyal to anybody I work for."

Versalles said he was angry because Mele warmed up his replacement before the inning was over. "He treated me like a busher. I want respect," the short said.

While the Twins were arguing, the Mets were scoring runs. Tight pitching by Tom Parsons and Larry Bearnarth gave New York its victory.

Elsewhere, John Buzhardt and Bob Locker combined to pitch a one-hitter as the Chicago White Sox blanked Philadelphia 2-0.

Gene Oliver broke up a pitching duel with a 12th-inning bases-loaded single as Milwaukee blanked the Los Angeles Dodgers 1-0. Bob Sadowski and Dan Osinski shared the shutout.

In other games, the Yankees nipped St. Louis 3-2, Washington stopped Baltimore 6-4, Pittsburgh whacked Cincinnati 7-3, the Chicago Cubs edged San Francisco 7-6, Houston dropped Detroit 4-3 and the Los Angeles Angels topped Cleveland 4-1.

Koufax Returns, Future Clouded

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Pitching star Sandy Koufax awaited a joyful welcome back late today to Los Angeles' Dodger bosoms, but with Koufax' return also comes speculation and apprehension.

Does his return to training camp mean the arthritic condition of his million-dollar left elbow has suddenly begun clearing up, or was it not as serious as it looked at first?

Only time will tell, team spokesman say. "We'll just have to play it by ear all the way," said Dodger Vice President Red Patterson Monday on hearing of southpaw Koufax' medical release.

The team's orthopedic specialist, Dr. Robert Kerlan, said the swelling of Koufax' left elbow had sufficiently reduced for him to resume training, several days before anyone had hoped he could.

Kerlan offered no elaboration of the announcement.

General Manager E. J. (Buzzy) Bavasi said Koufax would continue medication treatments to his own elbow under Kerlan's directions, and added:

"Sandy will be permitted to set his own pace on conditioning himself and will not be asked to pitch until he says he's ready to do so, and only as often as he says he's ready."

Koufax' elbow became still and swollen Thursday at Dodgertown and he returned to Los Angeles the next day for treatment. Kerlan diagnosed the trouble as "a traumatic arthritis condition of the left elbow which tends to flare up under repeated stress."

That diagnosis is what creates the speculation attendant upon Koufax' return. A few days of repeated stress may answer the question whether the condition is chronic — thus possibly spelling an end to Koufax' brilliant hurling career — or whether the present treatment will be sufficient to control the condition.

Assault Case Set Thursday

Urging the defendant to obtain counsel for his own protection, Municipal Judge Samuel M. Chertoff today ordered a continuance in the case of George Williams, 18, of W. 2nd St., charged with beating a 15-year-old boy Sunday afternoon on E. 6th St.

Williams originally had been referred to Juvenile Court and lodged in County Jail in connection with an alleged assault on William Howell of Price St., who remains in "fair" condition today at City Hospital with a possible fractured skull and other injuries.

But the defendant was returned here for trial as an adult offender when it was learned he actually is 18.

Williams did not enter a plea today on the charge of assault and battery filed under the State Code. He was arrested by Lt. Kenneth Mooney and Patrolmen Paul A. Burson Jr. and William A. Devon at 1:02 p. m. Sunday.

Queried by the court, Lt. Mooney told the judge Howell still is in City Hospital and is scheduled to remain 10 more days for observation. He is a son of Mrs. Isabel Howell. Police said he was beaten unconscious.

"I advise you to get counsel for your own protection," the court told Williams, "This is a serious charge; if you are found guilty you could be sentenced to as much as six months in the County Jail and fined up to $500."

The judge set Williams' bond at $250.

18 Air Proposed Merchants' Unit For Wellsville

Eighteen attended an organizational meeting held Monday night in Wellsville Council Chambers for a proposed merchants association.

Plans for the group were discussed, including proposals for two groups within the association. One would be to promote business for the merchants and the other would be to work toward obtaining new industry for the community.

The meeting was called by Charles Donaldson of the Modern Shoppe and Arthur Montgomery of the A. & M. Family Shoe Store.

Montgomery said the proposals met with much enthusiasm. A large group is expected at another meeting set next week as each person that attended last night is to invite others, he commented.

The next meeting was set for Monday night at 7:30 at City Hall. A name will be selected and officers elected

Donaldson and Montgomery are serving as temporary chairman until the election.

County Given Custody Of Boy In Auto Theft

LISBON — A 16-year-old Columbiana area youth was made a ward of the county at a hearing Monday before Juvenile Judge Louis Tobin for operating a motor vehicle without the owner's consent and driving without a license.

The youth was ordered to pay a $25 fine on both counts, observe a 7 p. m. curfew for next four months, is not allowed to apply for a driver's license before Aug. 1 and not go near the Arrowhead Bowling Alley, where he took the car.

He was allowed to return home with his parents but was ordered to report each week to Cornelious Csepke, chief juvenile probation officer.

Tickets will be available at the door.

Newell Fund Drive Opened By Firemen

The door-to-door canvass for the maintenance fund drive was discussed at a meeting of the Newell volunteer fire department Monday night at the fire station. It was emphasized that more assistance will be required than in previous years, and that a donation of $5 or more will be requested of each family.

The drive, which began last night, will continue for 30 days in Newell proper, and the Newell rural area will be covered at a later date to be announced.

Two members were granted 90-day leaves of absence: Robert Mercer, due to illness, and Robert Glendenning, to continue his college education.

Purchase of a new helmet for each member was authorized.

It was announced that the Hancock County Fire-fighters Association will meet at the Newell fire station April 16 at 7:30 p. m. with Earl Flesch, president, in charge.

Fire reports were given by Charles Lee, chief.

At a trustees' meeting which followed the regular session, it was decided to receive bids for two new tires for the No. 2 truck.

Out Of The Air

By RICHARD K. DOAN

Steve Lawrence's Doubleheader

As it turns out, Steve Lawrence was auditioning for CBS as well as NBC when he headlined a "sneak preview" special called "The NBC Follies of 1964" last November.

Richard Doan

The singing star of Broadway's "What Makes Sammy Run?" has been signed by CBS, in a surprise move, to appear weekly next season on an hour-long variety show. It will be seen Monday nights at 10.

NBC televised "Follies" as an on-air pilot for a possible series next season, but wound up booking instead a Dean Martin variety show for next fall.

-:-

THE NEW CBS series well could look like "The NBC Follies." CBS also has hired George Schlatter, who produced the NBC special, to produce the Steve Lawrence shows.

Michael Dann, CBS-TV programming vice president, who announced the program, said Schlatter is in New York "to devise a variety form" for the show.

"He has some interesting ideas," Dann promised.

It was Schlatter who produced Danny Thomas' recent ratings smash, "The Wonderful World of Burlesque," and he was one of the producers of Judy Garland's ill-fated Sunday night series.

-:-

EXPLAINING CBS' decision to install a new variety hour Monday nights instead of the previously planned "Password" and a new comedy called "Sally and Sam" with Gary Lockwood and Cynthia Pepper, Dann said, "We think the Steve Lawrence show will give viewers an interesting choice in this time period."

The show will be up against ABC's "Ben Casey" and NBC's new Ben Gazzara drama, "Run for Your Life."

The Steve Lawrence series will be live-on-tape from the Times Square theater where Ed Sullivan's show originates and is understood to have been given a 26-week commitment.

-:-

LAWRENCE expects to wind up his run in "Sammy" before the TV season gets under way in September.

The 28-year-old Brooklyn-born singer broke into show business at 17 and got his first big break on Steve Allen's original "Tonight" show on NBC.

His recordings have sold in the millions and he has toured the night club circuit here and abroad with his songstress wife, Eydie Gorme.

-:-

AL HIRT, the hefty, bearded trumpeter recognized as one of today's giants of jazz, will preside over an hour-long musical show in Jackie Gleason's Saturday night hour on CBS next summer.

The program promises to be one of the few bright spots in an otherwise dull TV summer.

The Hirt show will have the expert guidance of Ed Sullivan and his son-in-law and TV producer, Bob Precht.

"We're very excited about the show," Precht said, describing the 13-week program as basically a musical rather than a variety series.

-:-

HIRT, whose heft has been put at everywhere from 228 to 340 pounds, is accomplished at everything musically from Dixieland to classical pops. He is familiar as a performer on Ed Sullivan's shows.

The summer show will start in mid-June, originating from New York.

CBS' only other new live summer entry, as far as is known now, will be a revival of "Talent Scouts," this time from Hollywood with Art Linkleter in the host role that so many have filled since Arthur Godfrey's early days in this series.

The show will pinch-hit for Red Skelton on Tuesday nights.

One Of 10 Most Wanted By FBI Gets Life Term

CLEVELAND (AP) — Alfred Oponowicz, who had been in trouble with the law off and on since he was 13-years-old, was sentenced to life imprisonment at Ohio Penitentiary Monday night.

He was on the FBI's 10 most wanted list when finally captured last year.

Common Pleas Judge Thomas J. Parrino sentenced Oponowicz, 38, to life on each of two counts of bank burglary, the sentences to run concurrently.

A jury of six men and six women deliberated about six hours before returning a guilty verdict on four counts. Oponowicz also was sentenced to 1 to 20 years and 1 to 5 years on two other counts.

The youthful - looking Oponowicz shook his head when Judge Parrino asked if he had anything to say. He still faces a seven-count federal indictment charging counterfeiting.

Oponowicz was arrested Sept. 2, 1962, at a Cleveland Trust Bank branch, where nearly $800,000 was stored. He was charged with maliciously entering a financial institution, burglary, attempting to force a vault and possession of burglary tools.

Bringing Up A Family

By DR. GARRY MYERS

Eldest Boy Has Feeling Of Insecurity

Suppose you were the mother of the eldest child described in the following letter from Ohio: "My problem concerns my son, 9, who is in the fourth grade. He has two brothers, five and 14 - months, and one sister, seven. "There is somewhat of a personal clash between the boy and myself, which does not exist between myself and the other children. I think he has a feeling of resentment toward me.

Dr. Garry Myers

He is very insecure. If I correct him or try to get him to complete his chores (they are not many), we end up in an argument; then he will downgrade himself tremendously.

"He has even got to the point of saying 'I shouldn't be here, everybody would be better off without me.' He goes to his room, rocks in his bed, sulks and repeats to himself, 'I'm ugly, I'm no good. I'm going to kill myself.' Etc. Etc. I have tried to talk and reason with him when he does this until my patience is exhausted. I have ignored him, which is very difficult.

"HE RIDES the other two children constantly. He is very good with the baby though. This trouble all seemed to begin when the fourth baby was born at the beginning of his third year in school. Both his third and fourth grade teachers have said according to the end of the year testing he should be at the top of his class. He does C work. He seems to have no power of concentration and his mind wanders constantly in class.

"At home he spends one hour and a half on something that should take twenty minutes, because of lack of concentration. Both teachers say they think he will not try because of fear of failure. He wants the 'easy way' out on everything. If he can't be 'Top Dog' in school or with his friends he can't or won't attempt to do anything at all.

"He stands off and will not participate in any activities with the boys at school because he doesn't feel capable. His teacher said he goes into a rage over little things that shouldn't matter at school. His third grade teacher felt he might need a psychiatrist. I took him to our pediatrician. He examined him and visited with him and didn't feel this was necessary.

"HE DOESN'T get along with his friends for any period of time. He generally is the leader in dividing groups, name calling, starting a fight, then either getting the heck beat out of him or running home. How can I keep my patience and get through to this boy to build his confidence and let him know that we do care about him?"

My reply in part. If you were to put yourself in the place of your eldest son, you no doubt would feel that you didn't stand in the family nearly as well as the younger children. You probably wouldn't feel very affectionate toward your mother.

I hope you and Dad can work together in some way to build up this boy to help him feel more worthwhile. Try yourself to win his esteem and affection. Don't let yourself argue with him. Work out with Dad better ways to require him to conform to a few family regulations.

When he must be punished, require him to sit unamused, doing nothing, for thirty minutes, while your lips are still. Do celebrate with him his smallest success at work and play. I'm sure he has a lot of fine qualities.

SEE THAT the younger children don't impose on him and mess up his things. Attract some playmates his age to your home. I hope Dad goes places with him and has good times with him. Dad might find ways to help him learn some skills at play other children would admire.

Perhaps Dad also could do most to help him read better and win more success at book learning. I think you should consult a psychiatrist about this problem.

Former Policeman Sues In Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP)— Francis M. McCune, former Cleveland policeman, sued the city in Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court Monday for $25,673, which he says the city owes him for 8,099 hours of overtime.

McCune, 70, of North Royalton, retired last September after 41 years on the police force.

Prior to his retirement, he told the city about the overtime, related mostly to labor extortion cases from 1937 to 1941, but the city said it could not find enough records to document the overtime.

To Be Keynoter

CLEVELAND (AP)—Dr. Allen Butler, emeritus professor of Pediatrics at Harvard University, will be keynote speaker Wednesday for "Pediatrics 1975," a one-day program sponsored by the Northern Ohio Pediatrics Society.

Ohio Boy, 4, Drowns In Cistern On Farm

DELAWARE, Ohio (AP) — A 4-year-old boy drowned Monday in a cistern on his family's farm northwest of Sunbury, Delaware County.

Gary Alan Boyd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll A. Boyd, was the victim. His mother found the body.

Accord Ends Strike

CLEVELAND (AP) — Members of Sheet Metal Workers Local 486 returned to work Monday at the J. Clytel Manufacturing Co., ending a strike that started March 4. The 104 workers accepted a three-year contract which calls for a wage increase of eight cents an hour. The company fabricates sheet metal.

King Sees Planned Boycott Removing Racial Inequities

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. predicted today that a planned boycott of Alabama will produce action toward removing racial inequities despite "a temporary bitterness and alienation of people."

King said in an interview that a three-stage economic withdrawal was necessary in order to bring hostility and discrimination into the open in Alabama and force the white citizens to deal with these factors.

Answering criticism from various sources, King said the boycott would not cause more harm than good to the civil rights cause.

"It will do just what critics think it won't," he said.

The boycott was announced last week after King met with the executive board of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference which he heads. The economic withdrawal is part of an Alabama civil rights drive, centering on Negro voting, now in its 12th week.

King said he hoped the threat of the boycott alone would produce the desired results. But he said that before calling off the boycott, he would want commitments on voting rights and other issues from Gov. George C. Wallace and Alabama's political leadership.

The Negro minister, winner of the 1964 Nobel Peace Prize, also said some form of demonstrations would continue in Alabama until Congress acts on the new voter-rights bill.

Here are questions and answers from the interview:

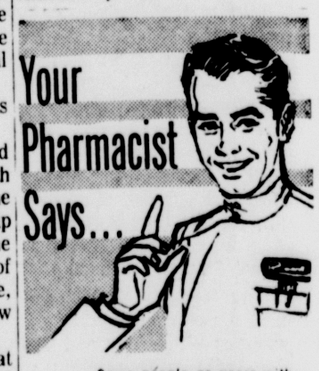
Q: Are you going through with the Alabama boycott?

A: Yes. Very definitely.

Q: It has been reported that the final plan is a softening of your original statement — a backing off of a massive withdrawal program. Is this true?

A: I wouldn't say it was a backing off. When I made the proposal it was in terms of a general boycott. If there's any softening it's only to give Alabama a chance for the decent people and moderates to rise up.

(Under the plan announced, the three stages of the boycott are: an appeal to industries to suspend expansion or building in Alabama; efforts to get private investors and federal agencies to withdraw deposits from Alabama banks; and finally a consumer boycott of selected Alabama products.)



Some people go years without paying attention to their health. Others need a doctor on hand to start the day—everyday. Between these extremes are great numbers of thinking people caring for their health in an orderly manner. They see their doctor at regular intervals for guidance. When he gives them a prescription they take it to a dependable pharmacy.

Hints from Heloise

— By Heloise Cruse —

Dear Heloise: I came up with an idea the other day that could have saved me the expense of having a pair of Venetian blinds retaped.

Whenever one is doing that much - needed housecleaning, switch the Venetian blinds on the sunny side of the house with those on the shady side (or where the porch protects your blinds). You will find, as I did, that your tapes will last much longer.

The side of the house that gets the hot sun and driving rains will finally cause those tapes to deteriorate.

GRANDMOTHER.

-:-

DEAR GRANDMA: You are not only precious but sweet to take the time to write us about this.

It's so true.

I knew that the sun and light rotted beautiful lampshades and draperies and have often warned people to change their location, but even I didn't think of changing Venetian blinds when washing them.

The great part about this is that when one blind falls down (after the tape rots) we naturally must get all in that room restrung so that the tapes will match and all be the same shade. But by using your method they will last years longer.

The window panes magnify sunlight and this is what helps cause quick rotting of products.

HELOISE.

DEAR HELOISE: Recently I bought an expensive loaf of bread and it became dry before we could eat all of it.

So I stuck a fork through a slice, held it over my steaming teakettle for just a few seconds, and then popped it in the toaster. It was just as delicious as any toast we had ever eaten and I could not tell it from freshly baked bread.

ALBERT WERNER.

-:-

It works!

HELOISE.

DEAR HELOISE: I always keep a small scrap of toilet soap in my sewing machine. When threading a needle I moisten the end of the thread and rub it over the soap. You would be surprised how easily it goes through the needle eye. The harder the soap the better.

This method is especially helpful when using embroidery floss or strand thread.

ESTHER LABUS.

-:-

DEAR HELOISE: For those who have trouble with salt and pepper shakers with large holes. . . .

A couple of drops of clear or light colored nail polish dabbed on one or two of the holes will solve the problem without spoiling the appearance of the shakers.

MRS. RALPH CARLSON.

DEAR HELOISE: I have a hint for mothers-to-be:

I had quite a few baby clothes that were stored away from my first baby. This morning I unpacked all the little garments and washed and dried them.

My next baby isn't due for two months so I put the clothes in plastic laundry bags and sealed them shut.

When baby comes, the clothes will be fresh, clean and waiting for him.

This is an especially good idea if you don't have a baby's dresser, and you have no other place to store the clothes. The laundry bags fold neatly and can be stored on a closet shelf until used.

A READER.

-:-

DEAR HELOISE: I have an easy and fast method of stringing beads that have very small holes. I used nylon waxed string and threaded it through a needle threader.

I have also used this method on sequins for trimming. It works.

County OK's Slag Grants

LISBON — Columbiana County commissioners Monday approved slag grants of $300 each to Center and Middleton Townships.

The commissioners also authorized $50 expenses for Commissioner Frank Wilson to attend a hearing on House Bill 376 to reorganize the statewide welfare program. If enacted it would cost the county an additional $19,000 from its general fund, commissioners said.

Robert Bycroft, county welfare director, was authorized $5 travel allowance to attend a district welfare meeting in Canton today.

Two newer employes at the County Home were given a $20 monthly raise. Freda A. B. Pribble and Sandra Himes will get $180 a month.

The Riley Construction Co. of Alliance was awarded $35.51 for extra work ordered done at the new nursing home at the County Home.

Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y members of the county were guests of the commissioners and staff Monday in a Career Day sponsored by the Youngstown YMCA.

They included.

Lynnette Fisher, Salem; Bernice Vulcan, Lisbon; Jim Kelvington, East Palestine, Gayl Gloss, Columbiana, and Gary Wilhelm, New Waterford.

The commissioners will meet Thursday from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Judge Sets New Hearing Date On 3 1964 Charges

Arraigned today before Municipal Judge Samuel M. Chertoff on three charges dating back to 1964, Sherman Mikeals of Dewey Ave. was granted a continuance until April 14 at the request of his counsel, Atty. Bernard Fineman.

Paroled Thursday from Marion Correctional Institution, Mikeals is charged with breaking and entering the Central Service Building on W. 7th St. on two occasions in February 1964 and with receiving and concealing property valued at $159 which had been stolen from the same business place.

Police said Mikeals had been serving a sentence in Marion on a fradulent check charge in Canton. He was taken into custody on his release under a "hold" order placed by the local department.

Judge Chertoff set a total bond of $1,000 on all three counts. Mikeals' counsel said he needed an opportunity to study the charges, as he was not retained in the case until Monday.

The birth of quintuplets is supposed to occur approximately once in 54 million births. Until 1963, the most celebrated "quints" were the Dionnes, born in Callender, Ontario, in 1934 — who were the only known quintuplets to survive beyond infancy until the arrival of the Diligenti "quints" in Buenos Aires in 1943. However, in 1963, two sets of "quints" were born within a week of each other—to the de Prieto family in Maracaibo, Venezuela, on Sept. 7, and to the Fischer family of Aberdeen, South Dakota, a week later.

Council To Study Truck Problems

Council agreed Monday night to continue an investigation into alleged hazards created by heavy trucks traveling Walters St. and other residential thoroughfares in the Oakland area when hauling out of Little England.

Councilman Floyd Murray said the problem is "frightening," particularly as there is a hazard to youngsters at play on streets. He alleged that the trucks do not always halt for stop signs.

The city needs stricter enforcement of traffic laws in the area, even if it means assigning a police car for eight hours at a stretch, he said.

He said the company involved is Sam Bell Associates of Pittsburgh. Murray said five members of Council already have made an investigation of the problem.

—:—

"THE PEOPLE are concerned and I don't blame them," Councilman Donald Hancock said. "We don't want to interfere with this man's business, but we need some kind of controls."

Councilman Norman Bucher said the trucks are driving over blacktop streets not meant for heavy loads.

Council adopted his proposal to write to the Pittsburgh company, seeking a meeting. Copies of the letter will be sent to Safety-Service Director Roobert Vodrey and the Chamber of Commerce, Council stipulated.

—:—

MURRAY SAID Council conferred Saturday with a representative of a firm that makes a new rubberized base asphalt for use on streets. Council may make a trip to Fostoria April 24 to observe streets surfaced with the new material, he said.

Councilman William E. Davis said the intent of the trip is to observe how the material "came through the winter, as it was applied last November and Fostoria has some pretty mean winters."

Murray recommended installation of a new street light on Globe St. between Wedgewood and Palissey Sts.

—:—

HANCOCK said the neighborhood is so dark that residents' autos have been stripped of parts and accessories.

Vodrey reported a new stop sign has been installed at Michigan Ave. and Putnam St. Hancock asked the director when new center lines will be painted on streets.

Vodrey replied the lines can be painted any time, but if the work is done too early, it has to be repeated in the fall. He said the county, townships and the state do not reline highways until May.

Councilman William Davis asked installation of a cover over a storm sewer opening at Rural Ln. and Monroe St. He said there now is danger of a youngster falling into the line.

A LETTER from the Board of Public Utilities reminded Council of an earlier request for legislative authority to advertise for bids on a year's supply of chemicals and other material. Bucher said the bill will be presented at the next meeting.

Acting on a letter from Mayor Merrill Hall, council ratified his action last week in appointing James Grafton too the City Planning Commission to fill the unexpired term of E. L. Wheatley, resigned.

Cunningham said his franchise committee will confer with taxi operators on complaints that some of the cabs are not up to par.

HE SAID he understands a yearly inspection of cabs is required and he will check with Police Chief Americo J. Radeschi to find if the requirement is being met.

Joseph Burcham of W. 4th St., addressing Council from the floor, said he intends to "get up a petition to get rid of Municipal Court because we can't afford to operate it."

Council received a copy of a letter which Jaycee-Ettes mailed to Rep. Wayne L. Hays, opposing the W. 7th St. Post Office site.

Signed by Mrs. Darwin G. Stiles, secretary, it said:

—:—

"THE PROPOSED location offers nothing to the beautification of the city because it would be on a hidden street.

"Traffic congestion (would result) on W. 7th St.

"Although the proposed site is an equal distance from the Diamond compared to the present site, it is much further from the center of the business area."

The letter suggested expansion on the present site.

Council received a letter with four signatures asking the termination of a 90-day trial on southbound one - way traffic in Persimmon Alley between W. 7th and W. 6th St.

THE LETTER was signed by Maude and Margaret Baum, George Najem and Eli Najem. It was received and filed.

Howard Claypool, Health Board clerk, sent Council a letter explaining the appropriation for sanitary police officer's salaries should be $8,880, not $8,800, as was provided in the ordinance approved a week ago. Council said it will be corrected.

Brantley E. Pitts, 1037 Edgewood Ave., filed a $31 claim for damage to the paint on his auto allegedly caused by ashes spread by a city truck. It was given to the claims committee.

Compromise Bill On Strip Mining Control Delayed

By WILLIAM S. VANCE
Review Staff Correspondent

COLUMBUS — A subcommittee considering proposed strip mine legislation failed to reach agreement Monday night and it may be a week before a compromise bill is put to a vote in the Senate Agriculture and Conservation Committee.

Sen. Edmund A. Sargus, D-Belmont, author of a tough strip mine bill, has presented a substitute bill to the two other members of the subcommittee.

He said he has modified his original bill by borrowing features from a milder proposal pending in the House. That bill, sponsored by Rep. Ralph Fisher, R-Wayne, was drafted with the help of officials from the Department of Natural Resources.

Sen. Max Dennis, R-Clinton, chairman of both the full committee and subcommittee, had hoped to have a bill reported by Monday night.

He said if he, Sargus and Sen. Oakley Collins, R - Lawrence, can reach accord early in the week, a special committee session will be called to receive the bill. Otherwise, he said, the subcommittee may not report the bill until next Monday night.

Clam and tomato juices may be combined in equal quantities for a before-dinner beverage. Serve with lemon wedges. Sauerkraut juice may also be combined with tomato juice in equal parts.

Man, 21, Bound Over In Vehicle Theft Case

Larry Joe Vance, 21, of 217 W. 2nd St., waived a preliminary hearing today in Municipal Court and was bound over to the Grand Jury at his own request on a charge he stole a pickup truck March 29.

Vance entered a not guilty plea through his counsel, Atty. William S. Foulks. Judge Samuel M. Chertoff set his bond at $1,000 and said the case probably will be referred to the current Grand Jury session in Lisbon.

Vance is accused of taking a 1957 pickup truck owned by Mike Turk, Inc., from the parking lot at a tavern just outside the city limits on old Routes 7 and 30 where it had been parked by Ralph Boyd.

Woman Charged By Patrol After Route 45 Mishap

A Hammondsville area woman was cited following a collision near Wellsville Monday and a Lisbon area girl was injured slightly in a mishap near Hookstown.

The Ohio Highway Patrol at Lisbon said Ethel Rose, 67, of Hammondsville R. D. 1, headed north on Route 45, made a turn onto Cameron Rd. and sideswiped an auto operated by Glenn David Smith, 26, of Wellsville R. D. 1.

The mishap occurred at 4:45 p. m. The woman was charged with making an improper turn.

Kaye Slider, 17, of Lisbon R. D. 4 received bruises of the head and chest when her car collided with another on Township Rd. 837 a mile east of Route 9 at 5:15 p. m.

Paul Pasco, 40, of Lisbon R. D. 1 had pulled into a drive to turn around and backed out onto the roadway when his 1959 sedan was hit by the girl's 1957 sedan, officers said.

Firemen Donate To Scholar Fund

A $100 donation to the Dollars for Scholars campaign of the Citizens Scholarship Foundation was made by the Wellsville volunteer firemen at a meeting Sunday night.

The firemen also voted to purchase a uniform shirt and jacket for each member.

Don Miller conducted business. A discussion was held on attendance at the fire school to be held at Wellsville April 25 and May 2 by the Columbiana County Firemen's Association.

The next meeting will be held May 9, a week later than usual because of the fire school.

75 At 'School' Held By Regional Firemen

Firemen from the Newell and Chester departments were among 75 attending a regional fire school held at Weir High School in Weirton Saturday and Sunday. The seminar was under the direction of the Appalachian Center of West Virginia University's Mining and Industrial Extension Service.

Six subjects were discussed by Roy Simpson, head instructor, assisted by five state instructors.

Fire departments in four area programs are being held this year throughout West Virginia.

WCTU At Rogers Convenes To Air District Activities

The Rogers WCTU will meet next Tuesday with Mrs. Glenn Baker. The group convened today at the home of Mrs. Lillian Lewton of Lisbon to plan district work for the coming year.

Mrs. Elmer Griffith is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Howard Black of New Waterford.

The choir of the Second Church of Christ of East Liverpool will present an Easter cantata at the Christian Church Sunday night at 7:30.

John Williams of Oklahoma City, Okla., a student at the University of Oklahoma, has concluded a week's visit with Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Swaney, and daughter, Nancy.

Sunday guests of Mrs. Ruth Cope were Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Rudibaugh of Niles and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Exton of Columbiana.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Hampson and children, Sandy and Robert, of Easton, Pa., were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hampson.

Mrs. Jacqueline Eells and Mrs. Maine Hall visited Sunday with Mrs. Helen Huffman and Mrs. Vivian Wiggins and family of Salem.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hall and family of Columbiana were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Hall and daughter, Diane.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ramoldi and son, Kerry, of New Waterford were Sunday guests of Elmer Griffith and Mrs. Milly Cope.

Lions Club At Newell Hears Tomlinson Run Park's Head

N. T. Holbrook, superintendent of Tomlinson Run State Park, spoke on operations of the recreation center near Pughtown at a meeting of the Newell Lions Club Monday evening at the Watson House. Holbrook said the department of Natural Resources of West Virginia, which operates the park, is the second largest department in the state, exceeded only by the road commission.

Holbrook added that Tomlinson is one of the 21 state parks which last year had a combined attendance more than 2½ million visitors. He listed needed improvements in the 1,401-acre center and said approximately $35,000 is needed each year for utilities and maintenance.

Holbrook said the park has every animal native to West Virginia with the exception of the black bear. He said that the admission for the swimming pool is the same as charged for many years at other state parks, and that all funds are returned to the parks for maintenance and improvements.

Thomas Miller, program chairman, introduced Holbrook.

The nominating committee chairman, Richard Brenneman, reported the slate of officers to be voted upon at the next meeting on April 19. It consists of:

Roger Cline, president; Earl Cordray, first vice president; Ronald Eckleberry, second vice president; James Seevers, third vice president; Richard Smith, secretary; L. A. Rush, treasurer; Albert Logston, lion tamer; Edwin Carson, tail twister, and Tom Miller, Gale May and John Robision, directors.

John D. Herron of New Cumberland introduced Ralph Q. Haynes, international counselor of the Charleston West Side Club, who is a candidate for international director.

Emery Boyle and Edgar Fleming of the Grant Jefferson Club were visitors. Albert Logston presided in the absence of Ed Fahnert, president.

4-H News

Approximately 40 Ohio 4-H advisers, including Mrs. Raeanna Colbert of Lisbon and Mrs. Raymond Ikirt of Leetonia, are attending Leader forums at the National 4-H Club Center this week in Washington. The group went by bus.

The forums consist of assemblies and discussions on topics related to young people, citizenship and 4-H; field trips to points of interest in and around Washington, and informal talks with adult 4-H leaders from other parts of the country.

Overall purpose of the forums, according to Miss Beatrice Cleveland, assistant state 4-H Club leader, is to help adult leaders become more effective in working with young people in 4-H.

This is the third year Ohio has sent club leaders to Washington for the special training on the national level, with the 4-H National Foundation conducting the programs, according to Robert B. Lewis, county extension agent in 4-H work.

Patriotic Motivation Or Civic Duty

100,000 Informers 'Tip' IRS About Tax Invaders

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 100,000 informers help the Internal Revenue Service each year by providing tips on people who haven't paid their taxes.

The IRS says many do so "from patriotic motivation or civic duty." A few get paid for it.

The number of persons providing such tips has grown steadily.

An IRS spokesman said the service doesn't solicit income tax tips but merely evaluates those that come in and follows them up if an investigation seems warranted. He noted that the FBI and other law enforcement agencies use informers routinely.

Only one out of every 10 tips results in even a preliminary investigation.

In the fiscal year which ended last June 30, the service collected $18.1 million as a result of tips compared with $12.7 million in the previous year.

The IRS paid $565,000 to 822 informers last year.

It has accepted tips for many years although the practice has been criticized by those who contend the informers are seeking revenge or perhaps are merely envious of a wealthy neighbor or employer.

A Congress member who heard from some of his constituents on the subject asked the service for an explanation.

A recently prepared memorandum from the IRS said:

"It is important to note that the number of persons who volunteer information and make no claim for reward is 20 times as great as the number who do claim rewards. It is reasonable to assume, too, that many of those who do not claim a reward, are impelled to furnish information from patriotic motivation or civic duty.

"On the basis of these factors, it seems questionable that the elimination of rewards will eliminate informing."

$305,000 Seized By IRS Agents In Cleveland Raid

CLEVELAND (AP)—The sum of $305,000 in cash was confiscated at an East Side house which was included in a series of simultaneous numbers and gambling raids Monday by Internal Revenue Service agents and Cleveland police.

Agents said it was "the largest single amount ever seized in a gambling raid anywhere in the country."

The haul was made at the home of Wilbur Dean, 47. Dean was arrested and charged with failure to purchase a $50 federal wagering stamp. He was released under $500 bond at his arraignment before U. S. Commissioner Clifford E. Bruce.

Agents said Dean led them to a second - floor bedroom where most of the cash was found in two steel filing cabinets. There were 51 bundles of $5,000 each in neat stacks, but the rest of the money was not bundled, agent said.

Dean is owner of Dean's House of Jazz, which operates three record shops on the East Side.

IRS agents said the government may sue in court to claim the money as having been earned illegally. Dean would have to contest this action to claim the money.

A total of six raids were made. Four persons in addition to Dean were arrested and six automobiles were impounded. Four of the cars taken belong to Dean.

Council Holds Up Action On 2 Bills

Unable to muster enough votes for immediate enactment, Council agreed Monday night to table two pieces of legislation until the next meeting April 19.

The measures are:

An ordinance tightening regulations for street - opening permits and raising the fees.

A resolution authorizing the administration to call for bids for razing an old city - owned brick building at E. 2nd and Union Sts.

With Councilmen Robert W. Sample and Donald Smith absent, Council had only five voting members present.

Greenisen will speak briefly on this year's crusade and Mrs. Calhoun will show a movie, "The Million Club," which outlines seven cancer danger signals.

Rhodes Reschedules Governors Meeting

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes has rescheduled for May 10 in Cleveland a meeting of governors from eight states in the Great Lakes area to discuss water pollution.

The meeting originally was called for April 28. But Rhodes said a conflict of schedules of federal officials and governors forced him to reschedule the meeting.

Two Boys Escape

LANCASTER, Ohio (AP) — Area police agencies were alerted Monday night to be on the lookout for two boys who walked away from the Fairfield School for Boys. They are Ronald Mounts, 15, of Lorain County and John Stutts, 16, of Lucas County.

Students 'Self-Centered, Frivolous'

Teacher Airs Complaints In Full Page Ad In Paper

WAYZATA, Minn., (AP) — Douglas Sarff, a high school teacher for 10 years, says the students of this Minneapolis suburb are "self-centered, frivolous and lead a slick, empty life" and he is fed up.

Sarff, 30, an English teacher in 10th and 11th grades at Wayzata Senior High School, paid $140 for a full page in a weekly newspaper to air his opinions.

Then he announced he had written to his school board several weeks ago that he did not want his contract renewed.

Donald Freeburg, also an English teacher at the high school said "most teachers expressed disbelief" that Sarff had the letter printed, and added that "a teacher with a family and other responsibilities just couldn't do it."

Roald Johnson, principal at Wayzata High School, would not comment on the letter. He said he thought Wayzata was little different from any other suburban school.

Sarff, a bachelor, said today, "I've saved up some money and after the current term ends in June I'm going to take my car, a tent and a few other things and travel into the Southwest and write a book. Not about the subject of this local tempest, or about suburbia, but a novel."

The ad in the Minnetonka Herald complained about the high school administration and parents of the community of about 3,500. Most of it, however, was directed at the high school seniors.

They are, he said, "frozen with sophistication" and "perpetuate the slick, empty modern living that is seen as its worst in this town."

"It is a shrill, hand-waving, convertible-riding round of trivialities, and for the young a blurred descent into oblivion, because, having exhausted its substance by age 17 and knowing nothing else, they become bored with themselves, with others, and with life," said the ad.

"I tell you, I have seen enough living death. I have been able to absorb everything else, attacks from all sides, the indifference of slow learners required to take my course, even being dropped back a step on the salary schedule last spring, but the petrification of a once-vital young person is a sight so ugly that all my senses reel from it."

Opinion in Wayzata was about evenly divided among those favoring Sarff's views and those opposing them.

A senior girl said, "You learn more from him in one day than you do from the other teachers in a whole year."

A senior boy, John Olson, said he thought the letter "was a lash-out before he slammed the door."

Sarff was graduated from the University of Minnesota 10 years ago, and taught at Winona and Wadena, Minn., before coming to Wayzata in 1960.

Ex-Union Official Faces Trial June 7

CLEVELAND (AP) — Daniel J. Greene, deposed president of Local 1317 of the International Longshoremen's Association, and an aide, Leon J. Ponikvar, will be tried on embezzlement charges June 7 in U. S. District Court here.

The trial date was set by Judge Frank J. Battisti Monday after Greene and Ponikvar pleaded innocent to federal charges brought against them as the result of an alleged job shakedown racket on the Cleveland waterfront.

The defendants are free on $2,500 bond each.

Baker Student Head For Bowling Green

SALINEVILLE — Jack Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Baker of Main St., has been elected president of the student body at Bowling Green University, Bowling Green, where he is a junior.

Baker, a 1961 graduate of Salineville High Schoool, is majoring in pre-law. Baker has been junior class president, sophomore president and has been active in campus affairs.

Bus Service Cut

PAINESVILLE, Ohio (AP)—Bus service here was curtailed by the Lake County Transportation Co. Monday because the city refused to rescind a $10 bus licensing fee. Charles Rosenblatt, president of the company, ordered rerouting so that stops also will be made outside the city. That way the company will not have to pay the fee. Affected will be one bus that picks up and discharges passengers solely within the city.

SECTION 26. The City Auditor is hereby authorized to draw his warrant on the City Treasurer for payments from any of the foregoing appropriations upon receiving proper certification and vouchers therefor, approved by the Board or Officer authorized by law to approve the same, or an ordinance or resolution by Council to make the expenditure; provided that no warrants shall be drawn or paid for salaries or wages except to persons employed by authority of and in accordance with law or ordinance.

SECTION 27. That this Ordinance is by this Council found and declared to be an emergency measure and shall go into immediate effect. Said emergency lies in the fact that it is necessary that this Ordinance be passed immediately so that the various employees of the various departments of the City of East Liverpool can be paid and the expenses of the various departments can be paid, and it is therefore necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety of said City.

Passed this 29th day of March, 1965.

2 IN MEMORIAM

STARKEY—In loving remembrance of Albert G. Starkey who departed this life two years ago April 5, 1963. — The Family.

In loving memory of our dear mother Mrs. Emma Fishback who passed away 7 years ago today April 6, 1958. Sadly missed by her children, grandchildren and all who loved her.

3 CARDS OF THANKS

WE would like so very much to thank all the wonderful people who were so good to us during the death of our son and brother, David Watkins. I would especially like to thank Martins Funeral Home and also Rev. Arthur Seevers, Rev. B. E. McDonald, pallbearers, flower contributors and everyone else connected with it. May God Bless You All.
Mrs. Virginia Watkins and Penny

OUR sincere thanks and appreciation to the many friends and neighbors who gave food and flowers at the time of our sorrow, the loss of our Husband and Dad. Our special thanks to Rev. R. Miller for his consoling words, the Trinity Church Sunday School for their thoughtfulness, and all those who were so concerned during his illness.
Mrs. Robert Martin, son Sidney and Family.

HERE'S HOW PLYMOUTH'S 5-YEAR, 50,000-MILE ENGINE AND DRIVE TRAIN WARRANTY PROTECTS YOU: Chrysler Corporation confidently warrants all of the following vital parts of its 1965 cars for 5 years or 50,000 miles, whichever comes first, during which time any such parts that prove defective in material and workmanship will be replaced or repaired at a Chrysler Motors Corporation Authorized Dealer's place of business without charge for such parts or labor: engine block, head and internal parts, intake manifold, water pump, transmission case and internal parts (excepting manual clutch), torque converter, drive shaft, universal joints, rear axle and differential and rear wheel bearings. Required maintenance: The following maintenance services are required under the warranty—change engine oil every 3 months or 4,000 miles, whichever comes first; replace oil filter every second oil change; clean carburetor air filter every 6 months and replace it every 2 years; and every 6 months furnish evidence of this required service to a Chrysler Motors Corporation Authorized Dealer and request him to certify receipt of such evidence and your car's mileage. Simple enough for such important protection.

OFF THE RECORD

"It was a bad accident but we're not going to let it bother us."

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q.—How can I remedy hard and lumpy putty?

A.—By putting it into a covered receptacle and keeping in the refrigerator for a few days. This will soften it to usable consistency.

Q.—What can I do about warped records?

A.—Place the warped record between two sheets of glass and allow to sit in the sun. The heat from Old Sol will soften the disk, and the weight of the glass will flatten it back into shape.

Q.—What is a recommended way to clean wicker furniture?

A.—By scrubbing with a not-too-hard brush and lukewarm soapy water. To rinse it, put the furniture out on the lawn and turn the hose on it.

Q.—When hanging a new door, how can I make easier the job of keeping the proper amount of clearance under the door?

A.—Before screwing hinges in place, rest the bottom of the door on several thicknesses of newspaper laid between it and the threshhold. Then attach the hinges, remove the paper, and the door should move freely.

Q.—How can I prevent brass articles from tarnishing?

A.—By covering with a thin coat of clear varnish. This varnish forms a lacquer that will not wear off unless the article is handled quite frequently.

Q. — How can I make my handkerchiefs whiter when I launder them?

A. — They'll come out whiter and stay fresh longer if you'll place a little borax in your laundry water. Borax gives the fabric just enough extra body to withstand soiling a little longer.

A Junior Editors Quiz About WATER

QUESTION: What is meant by water seeking its own level?

ANSWER: Water is heavy; think of toting a couple of brimful buckets at the same time and you'll realize it. Also water is a liquid, meaning it is something which flows downhill when it has the chance. Why does it do so? The picture of Earth at upper left explains it. The force of gravity attracts everything on Earth's surface toward the center of the earth; notice the arrows all pointing in. Water, all around the earth, is being pulled in the direction of these arrows. That's why the water in the beautiful falls Joe has been looking at goes spilling and pouring down — wherever it finds a place below its own level to spill into. For the same reason, the soda pop Joe is drinking is spilling down his throat.

How far down does the water go? If it is free to run, it keeps going all the way to the ocean at the bottom. In all cases, water lies still only in the lowest places into which it can flow; this is what is meant by water seeking its own level.

★ ★ ★

FOR YOU TO DO: Take a glass of water outside and throw the water up into the air away from you. Watch to see how the drops arch over as gravity goes to work on them; then down they go, in the direction of the center of the earth.

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: For the first time in two years I have found peace of mind. I want to share it with you.

I was one of those foolish women who felt my husband didn't appreciate me, so I wandered. My sweetheart was married, too, but his wife was not well. (Are they ever?) He assured me that when she was stronger and able to accept the blow he would ask for a divorce and we would be married.

Suddenly his wife died of a heart attack. This put him in an embarrassing position — one which he didn't expect, I'm sure. He told me he could not ask me to leave my husband and that I should forget him.

His wife has been dead less than three months and already he has been seen squiring two rich widows and a loaded divorcee.

I would like to warn these women to listen for the following phrases:

"How sad that we did not meet years ago. We could have had a beautiful life together."

Or this one: "I would know your hands anywhere — just by the touch."

And of course: "This is the most extraordinary thing that has ever happened to me. It's like a novel."

So beware, girls. That Dreamboat could be the Hell. — CURED.

-:-

Dear C: And I hope you will take your own good advice, Petunia. Lonely women have a tendency to repeat the same sorry mistakes.

Paying Own Way

Dear Ann: I'm a boy who will be 17 years old soon. I was fed up arguing every time I wanted a couple of bucks so I got myself a job after school and on weekends. This has cut me out of a lot of social activity, but it is worth it, because I don't have to beg any more.

Now I have another problem. My dad thinks he ought to tell me how to spend my money. I think I should be able to spend my money on anything I want. Right now I'm ready to pack my gear and move out of the house. I decided to write to you first and listen to what you have to say.—MITCHELL.

Dear Mitch: I'd like to suggest a compromise. I don't know how much money you are earning but if you will open a savings account and put away half of it you should be allowed to spend the other half as you please — no questions asked.

Bothersome Brats

Dear Ann: Many of my friends have pre-school children. Most of these young mothers have good sense but three or four in our crowd insist on dragging their children every place they go — this means to club meetings, luncheons, downtown shopping and even to the beauty shop.

What is the matter with them anyway? My children are grown but when they were small I wouldn't have dreamed of taking them where they did not belong.

Yesterday I attended a church luncheon and two women brought their 3-year-olds. The kids climbed all over their mothers, whined, cried, interrupted conversations and spoiled the day for everyone.

Most of these mothers discuss your column as if it were the Bible. Will you please say something about mothers who drag their young children everywhere? They'll take it from you. — LONG SUFFERING.

Dear Suff: Mothers who take their youngsters everywhere do so because it is easier (and cheaper) than hiring a sitter. They don't realize how unfair it is to their children as well as to the women who don't care to share their day out — often their only day out in the week — with 3-year-olds.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Review, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Air Force Lists Steps In Claims On Sonic Booms

The Air Force said today at Pittsburgh that Tri-State District residents with bona fide claims resulting from soonic booms created by B-58 aircraft should write the USAF Claims Officer, Air Mail Facility, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania 15231.

Claimants should give the date, time, location and details of the damage.

Strategic Air Command announced Monday the establishment of a 40-mile wide supersonic corridor from east of Tyner, Ky., to Brookville, Pa., to be in effect through June. The aircraft flying the corridor will pass over Pittsburrgh.

The supersonic corridors, necessary to maintain proficiency of the complex B-58 aircraft and crews, are used periodically for approximately 90 days, and then relocated in a different geographical area.

St. Stephen's Church To End Lenten Series

The Rev. D. R. Salisbury Jr., rector, will conduct the fifth and final Lenten services at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. The theme has been "Human Differences and the Gospel of Reconciliation."

Rev. Salisbury will summarize the first four Lenten programs and give a Biblical rationale for the role of the church today.

The program will begin with a family supper at 6, followed by evening prayer and sermon at 7:30. Children through kindergarten will be cared for after supper in the crib department.

Charged In Shooting

CINCINNATI (AP) — Lacey Calloway, 42, Cincinnati, was charged Monday with shooting to kill in the wounding of Robert L. Todd, 67, shot in the head and chest, police said. Todd was shot in an argument over a dice game Sunday and remained in serious condition.

Pair Gets 5-10 Years In Prison For Kidnaping

CINCINNATI (AP)—Two men convicted of kidnaping a Hamilton, Ohio, soldier, who said he was drugged and thrown into the Ohio River, were sentenced Monday to 5-30 years in prison.

Sentenced were Morgan L. Armes Jr., Norwood, and Charles W. Hughett, 44, Cincinnati.

"You are fortunate you are not here on a more serious charge," Common Pleas Judge Simon L. Leis told the men. "This man could have drowned."

The victim was Carlos Harris, 26, a soldier assigned to the Nike base at Oxford, Ohio.

Had Stopped Traffic 2 Days

Reds Close Berlin Road Again, Then Reopen It

BERLIN (AP) — The East German Communists closed the Berlin autobahn again today, then reopened it after 4½ hours.

It was the second successive day on which the Communists stopped all traffic on the 110-mile express highway between the Communist-encircled city and West Germany.

Traffic was halted for 3½ hours Monday. An East German officer at the Berlin border told West Berlin police the autobahn probably would be closed today until evening.

The three Western Allies in Berlin protested to the Russians in "strong terms" Monday night against the interference with autobahn traffic, a spokesman reported. The United States, Britain and France hold the Soviet Union responsible for free Western access to Berlin.

The barriers came down again at 8 a.m. at Babelsberg, the entrance to the superhighway on the outskirts of Berlin, and at Helmstedt, the West German end.

Both today and Monday the East Germans said traffic had to be halted because of East German and Soviet army maneuvers. The general belief was the Communists were retaliating for the meeting in West Berlin Wednesday of the West German Bundestag — the lower house of Parliament — and the West German Cabinet. The meetings were scheduled to demonstrate West Germany's contention that West Berlin is part of West Germany.

The Soviet news agency Tass virtually confirmed this view, saying that East Germany closed the route to Berlin "to ensure the inviolability of its frontiers." I said certain facts made these measures necessary and referred only to the Bundestag and Cabinet meetings.

Between the reopening of the autobahn Monday and its closing this morning, East German border guards seriously impeded traffic by painstaking examination of vehicles and the documents of their occupants.

Cars and trucks at times backed up in lines four miles long. Some drivers had to wait 18 hours to get through the Babelsberg checkpoint.

Travelers arriving in Berlin reported seeing large pieces of artillery near the city. They said they also passed a group of 50 Communist military trucks and 20 tanks about 60 miles west of Berlin.

Soviet fighters flew lower than usual near Babelsberg and dived over the city, setting off tremendous booms as they broke the sound barrier. As yet there was no interference with Western traffic through the three Allied air corridors to West Berlin.

Goldwater To Take Treatment For Back

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Barry Goldwater, the 1964 Republican presidential candidate, was to enter the neurological clinic at St. Joseph's Hospital today for treatment of a chronic back ailment.

The condition, caused by an old injury, plagued the former senator throughout his campaign last year.

A neurosurgeon, who asked not to be identified, said the trouble is probably centered on a cervical (neck) disc in the spine.

The surgeon said the condition is no cause for concern and that Goldwater will be hospitalized for observation and possible therapy. He said no surgery is contemplated.

Intruder Got $15.50, Woman Tells Police

Mrs. Hugh Thorne, 931 Dresden Ave., reported to police Monday that $15.50 was stolen by a thief who gained entrance to her home through an unlocked basement door.

Mrs. Thorne said the intruder took a bank containing $5, along with a $5 bill, four $1 bills and three Kennedy half dollars. There was no sign of forcible entry, police said.

EAST LIVERPOOL REVIEW

EAST LIVERPOOL, OHIO

TUESDAY, APRIL 6, 1965

Your Porch Or Carport Can Provide Extra Room

Need an extra room? More than you need the use of that porch, breezeway or attached carport?

Any of these three offers great possibilities for conversion into a den or other room because the foundation and roof for the new living area already exist. Once you remove any outdoor partitioning, such as screens or fences, you are ready to build the enclosure around the supporting posts.

Because the posts carry the weight of the roof, the lintels and sills (top and bottom horizontal members consisting of double layers of 2-by-4 framing lumber) must be cut to fit into the spaces between them.

The lintels are toe - nailed into the top headers under the existing roof. The sills ar attached at the bottom, using bolts if the existing floor is concrete.

BEFORE FRAMING out the walls, it is important to select the windows and exterior doors well in advance. In cutting the 2-by-4s for the exterior wall studs, allowance for the windows should be made at the outset. In making these cuts, however, be careful to allow for window sills and lintels at the bottom and top of the cut-outs.

As soon as window height is reached in places ear-marked for windows, the frame should be set in place, as it acts as a tie-in member of the wall. It is advisable to support the frame with temporary 2-by-4 bracing, nailed in lightly, until the wall section is complete and ready for diagonal bridging with 2-by-4 remnants.

Even after the bridging is in place, the structure will gain added strength with the application of exterior sheathing, such as plywood.

It should be nailed into the studs. While it is perfectly acceptable to cut plywood sheets to fit odd - sized areas, the fewer the seams between pieces the more weathertight the room will be.

—:—

WITH THE room enclosed, insulation batts should be stapled to the studs.

At this point, the home owner must make the choice of a wall material, which can by gypsum board, wood paneling or any of the various other products available. Incidentally, under the new home-building market concept, literally all the supplies for creating an extra room may be bought in one place.

There's one outfit which stocks som 3,000 different building centers around the country.

Electrical wiring should be drawn between the ceiling rafters and wall studs before the stapling of insulation batts and enclosing.

However, wiring must be attached to the beams and studs according to local code requirements, with the proper use of junction boxes and wall outlets. Professional help may be required.

The cut - outs for wall plugs should be made before the paneling is set in place. With gypsum board, rough cutouts can be punched later.

—:—

DEPENDING ON preference, the ceiling can be built by nailing sheets of almost any material to the rafters or it may consist of decorative acoustical tiles.

In either case, insulation batts should be used in the ceiling. If the floor is concrete, you can use either asphalt or vinyl-asbestos tile.

If there are to be ceiling light fixtures, cut - outs for these should be made in the gypsum board or the material. If tiles are used overhead, the cut-out should be made only on the tile through which the fixture wires will connect.

Professional help also may be needed for heating, since your choice may depend on the present heating system in the house. Some persons solve this by using electric baseboard heating. In that case, it is important to provide the proper resistance wiring.

The exterior siding can be chosen to match the rest of the house or to provide an interesting contrast. Cedar shingles, hand - hewn shakes or clapboard are in wide use, but aluminum and asbestos finishes are also available and can be very attrative.

Many decorative uses can be made of the windows which formerly marked the end of the house.

Most home owners prefer, however, to take out the sashes, frame in the openings with 2-by-4s, remove the exterior siding and replace it with the material used on the new walls.

The existing door, of course, should remain in place for access to the new room.

Lumber prices are often quoted by the board foot. To figure the number of board feet in a piece of lumber, first determine its square feet. This is the width in feet times the length in feet. Then multiply the square feet by the thickness in inches. However, if a board is less than one inch thick, multiply by one.

Roses Boast Broad Range Of Versatility

Roses do for the garden what no other single plant can do: provide uninterrupted color all season long. And roses take considerably less work to maintain than other plants.

As for planting, there isn't a simpler flower to plant than a rose.

Just find a sunny, reasonably well - drained spot, dig a hole, pop in the rose, cover up with soil mulched with peat, water generously and presto — everything's coming up roses.

Probably the greatest single advantage of the rose is the marvelous range of versatility.

First, consider how many different types of ever - blooming roses there are: tall, medium and low-growing bushes, ramblers, climbers, pillars and fence covers, and even a new hybrid rose species for "living fences", border plantings and hedges.

Best evidence there is of roses' increasing popularity is the large number of home gardeners who are planting roses in their front yards rather than limiting them, as in the past, to formal back yard rose gardens.

By putting more and more roses up front, the home gardener is using these everblooming beauties in place of traditional foundation shrubs which either do not flower at all or flower sparingly only once for a relatively brief period.

Generously spotting colorful rose bushes in and around green shrubs adds more sparkle and color - appeal to the front yard's appearance.

When rust has tightened the joints in pliers, soak them in kerosene for a day or two. After the soaking, rub off the loose rust with steel wool. The final step is an application of penetrating oil to the joint.

Garage Disorder Fades With A Perforated Wall

Most garages are asked to do too much.

A typical home owner's garage must not only house the family car, but is expected to provide storage for a regiment of garden supplies and equipment, maintenance tools, barbecue grills, toys, garbage cans and anything else that does not logically b e l o n g inside the house.

Under these conditions, a garage too often becomes a jungle of implements and a nightmare for the whole family. The challenge of keeping a garage neat, clean and pleasant to look at can often be overwhelming.

One of the best and m o s t imaginative solutions to the problem has been the development of garage liner, 4 feet by 8 feet sheets of perforated hardboard that are available in plain or woodgrained - finished surfaces and in ¼-inch thickness.

Perforations, made to h o l d especially - designed hooks and brackets, cover the entire board except for the bottom 36 inches.

THE SHEETS are easily applied to any wood or masonry surface and not only provide a visually delightful appearance, but are a first major step toward the organization of a well-kept garage.

No special tools are required, and installation can be done by anyone capable of driving a nail. Because properly installed ¼-inch-thick perforated hardboard can support individual items of up to 100 pounds, there is no real limit to its use.

One suburban garage was transformed, in a weekend, from a messy clutter to a neat, efficient storage area for garden equipment, workshop tools and toys.

Nine sheets of perforated hardboard with woodgrained finish were used to line one 29-foot-long brick and block wall. No special preparation of t h e wall surface was required as the masonry had a reasonably true and flat surface.

Since the perforated b o a r d requires a back space for affixing hooks, 1-inch by 2-inch furring strips were employed and patterned to provide t h e most available usable space while still providing adequate support for the board and the loads it would have to support.

VERTICAL furring strips were set on 4-foot centers from the floor to the top of the wall line. Horizontal strips w e r e placed at the top and bottom of the wall and also located between the vertical members at a point just below the bottom row of holes in the perforated board.

This provided additional rigidity without blocking any of the holes. Furring strips were spot glued with an epoxy compound and additionally secured to the wall with 2-inch concrete nails placed to enter the mortar joints between block courses.

With all the furring in place, the hardboard sheets w e r e merely fastened to the furring with 1-inch roundhead w o o d screws.

Short casing nails were used to secure the board to the floor level furring strips since no great loads would be placed on the connections at this point. The hardboard sheets butted on the vertical furring strips and screws were placed on approximately 18-inch centers.

The garage floor sloped toward the front for drainage, but the hardboard sheets were hung vertically true. Inaccuracies at the top and bottom were hidden behind 2¾-inch molding.

—:—

AN ADDED t o u c h was achieved by the installation of shelves on vertical steel tracks secured to the furring s t r i p s. This provided storage for paint cans and other odd - shaped items that did not lend themselves to a hanging arrangement.

The result was 224 square feet of garage wall space that provided an attractive, neat and organized arrangement of work tools, garden equipment and other accessories.

The woodgrained finish was easily cleaned with a damp cloth and flexibility was provided by the fact that hooks can be changed and relocated at will.

Should you attempt a similar project, factory - finished hardboard garage liner panels can be color - coded so that the v a r i o u s garden implements, workshop tools and children's toys can be easily replaced in the same location after each use.

What 'Retirees' Want In A Home

TUSCSON VALLEY, Ariz. (AP) — There are lots of theories about what retired persons want in homes, but as might be expected, low expenses is what they want the most.

At least, that's what the Retirement Foundation, Inc., a subsidiary of the University of Arizona Foundation, found in a survey of elderly persons.

It was found that the average family income of retirees is $3,000 a year.

After low expenses, t h e s e questioned said they wanted to live in a warm climate. Actually, this was an extension of wish number one, since m i l d weather cuts fuel bills, the cost of winter clothing and, generally, medical expenses.

The retirees also said t h e y wanted to be within walking distance of stores and services, considered recreational facilities important, believed a medical clinic a necessity, and liked a house that had non-stoop comforts, such as electrical outlets high above the floor.

The final desire of the retired persons was to live where the neighbors are friendly—and they wanted some of those neighbors to be lots younger than themselves.

Want Prize Roses? These Tips Will Help

Have you ever marveled how your next door neighbor's roses do so well?

Here are some early - bird planting and growing tips that will help you create a beautiful garden this year.

Selct a well - drained site, one which receives full sun all or most of the day. Near coastal areas or where high velocity winds are common, select sheltered locations.

Soil should be prepared several months in advance, using well - aged manure. Do not attempt fertilizing prior to planting time. Using 25 per cent peat moss to 75 per cent soil ratio, mix this combination into t h e planting site.

In selecting a planting site, try to center it in shallow, circular depressions which serve to catch and hold rainwater for future irrigation.

How thick should a concrete walk be? It depends on how much and what kind of traffic will move over it. But the most recommended thickness is four inches. A concrete driveway should be at least six inches.

Hanging Basket For Your Plants Will Bring Color

Easy - to - make, fashionable hanging baskets for your plants can create new eye-level beauty in both indoor and outdoor living.

Anyone who enjoys l i v i n g plants in the house or on the porch or patio will be particularly pleased with the interesting trailing kinds, so perfectly suited for display in hanging baskets.

There are many varieties of attractive trailing ivies, philodendrons and vines to select, as well as flowering plants l i k e fuchsia and lantana.

All these plants are readily available in their clay p o t s and a homemade basket or rolled saucers and will fit nicely into clover-cut aluminum.

To make this metal basket, roll a 6-by-17½-inch strip of clover-cut-out aluminum around a large jar to get a smooth curve, and form into a cylinder by overlapping the ends 1½-inches. Fit snugly below l i p of clay flower pot. Make 1½-inch deep cuts along bottom and bend back strips formed between each cut and lace together with wire.

Mortality Rate Down For Navajo Babies

ROCK DOOR CANYON, Utah (AP) — "The infant mortality rate for Navajo babies is slowly but steadily dropping," says M r s. Doris Bringle, registrar of births at the Seven - Day Adventists Mission Hospital here.

"Where less than one Navajo baby in 10 was born in a hospital in 1945, we now have reason to believe that at least 90 per cent of those born in this area are delivered in hospitals," she said.

You Can Deaden House Noises By Absorbing Steps

If you've ever gone house or apartment hunting — and looked over the place while it was empty — you know how your voice bounces around.

That's because upholstered chairs, draperies, carpets, etc., ordinarily absorb much of the sound that occurs in a room. Without them, your voice hits hard surfaces and bounces back and forth.

There you have the principle which guides experts and amateurs alike in the continual battle to keep sound from building up into noise. Give the sound waves an absorbent surface and they disappear.

Conclusion: if you're trying to deaden the sound in your home workshop or any room in the house, add sound - absorbing materials.

Ordinary ceiling tiles fall into this category. Acoustical tiles have special properties which make them even more sound absorbent. Insulation board panels nailed to both sides of a standard 2 by 4 stud wall system will help to deaden sound.

Apply gypsum board over the insulation panels and the rate of absorption goes up. Another sound - deadening product is a fiber glass product called "noise - stop" board.

Paint Will Add Zest To Routine

What a delight to be surrounded by a touch of splender as you go about the daily household routine.

These tips from the National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association will help you brighten your daily life with color.

Start with the bedroom. What do you see when you open your eyes in the morning? A room painted "just a color?" Or a room painted in singing, eye-filling hues that give you a stimulating lift as you begin your daily routine?

Personalize your bedroom by using your favorite colors in interesting combinations. Strive for an impression of airiness and space. Try painting the walls a favorite color; accent with small quantities of bright hues in accessories or draperies.

ADD LIGHT to the kitchen by painting countertops and cabinets white or a light color. For interest, use a bright color inside the cabinets. Or choose a tint of your favorite color for the walls, using a complementary deeper shade for cabinets. Provide a glamorous setting for everyday china by painting the insides of cabinets a striking, contrasting color.

Brighten a dark hallway by using light colors on walls and woodwork. Put sunshine in washdays by painting the laundry room a warm, sunny color. Shades of yellow are stimulating; shades of pink are flattering and cheerful.

If your laundry room is unfinished, conceal exposed conduit by painting it the same color as the walls. For safety, check all wiring before painting. Use rubber gloves and avoid contact with the metal band around the brush. Cut off the electricity at the fuse box before starting to paint.

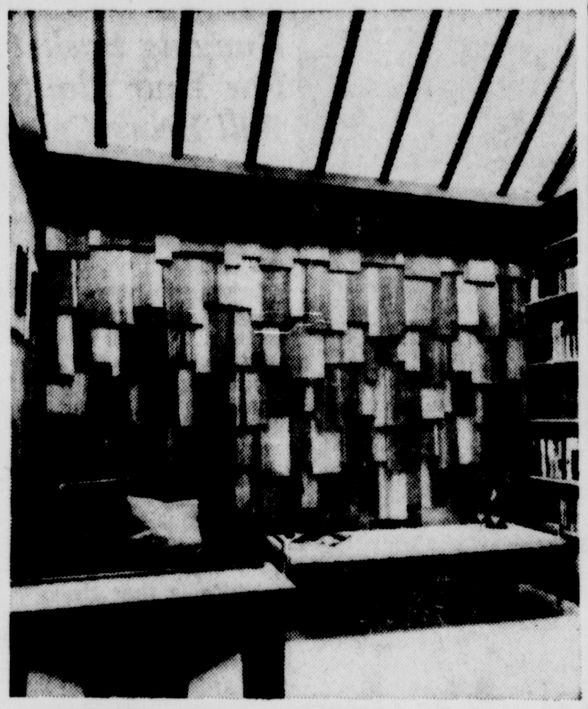
LIVING ROOM walls and woodwork should be painted a color to harmonize with furniture, pictures and draperies. Use deep-toned hues to accent light wood furniture; light shades to bring out the true elegance of dark finishes.

Make dining more pleasant by painting the walls a color conducive to the enjoyment of food. Select a color that stimulates your creativity—inspires you to set a beautiful table.

Don't overlook the bathroom. Surround yourself with flattering colors. Paint the walls a lovely, delicate pastel; add gay towels and bright accessories.

Plan your painting with your future relaxation in mind. Use easy-to-apply latex or water-base paints for the walls; an alkyd or oil-base paint for woodwork. The latter's gloss finish lets you whisk away fingerprints and household dust with little effort.

A cheerful background lifts the spirit as you go about the daily routine of cleaning, cooking, sewing and washing.



COMBINATION STUDY AND DEN features tapersplit red cedar shakes, applied randomly to emphasize informality and warmth.

Are You In 'Hot Water'? These Ideas Could Help

By ANDY LANG

Having trouble with the hot water system in your house? Whether you call a serviceman or correct the condition yourself, it's a good idea to have some idea of what might be wrong.

Here is some data that might be helpful to you:

The heat loss from bare or improperly covered pipes and tanks may run as high as 20 per cent.

This not only runs up the bills for the fuel necessary to heat the water, but it wastes water. The waste occurs when you have to turn on the hot water faucet for several minutes to drain the pipes of the cold water in them.

THERE ARE various types of insulation, made of such materials as asbestos, mineral or rock wool, magnesia, spun glass, hair felt and wool felt, all of which have the necessary requirements of being heat resistant and a poor conductor of heat.

The most commonly - used type comes in hinged split sleeves, held in place with metal straps. Asbestos cement is good for odd-shaped joints. It is also widely used for insulating boilers.

Incidentally, what isn't generally known by non-professionals is that the cement should be applied when the boiler is warm, a maneuver that prevents cracking when the boiler is very hot.

Rumbling noises in hot water pipes are sometimes caused by water that is too hot.

Try adjusting the regulator to lower the temperature of the water. If the rumbling continues, then the trouble is something else, possibly improperly-pitched pipes.

—:—

IF THERE IS sediment in the hot water, try draining some of the water from the heater through the valve on the side of the heating unit.

Rusty water can indicate corrosion in the tank. If it continues, you'll need the services of a professional to determine whether anything can be done or whether a new tank is needed. It is not a home repair job.

When both the hot and the cold water are rusty, the trouble may be outside your house, possibly movement of underground pipes caused by construction work in the area. Check with your water supply company.

One other important point: If there is a smell from a gas heater, turn off the main gas control valve and call a serviceman. Don't try to locate the leak with a lighted match.

Think that advice is superfluous? You'd be surprised at how many times during a year explosions occur from that very cause.

New Light On An Important Matter

Remember when your electric bill gave you an accurate picture of how often and how long the lights had been on in your house during the month?

Not any longer. What with electric irons, vacuum cleaners, washers, driers, television sets, mixers, toasters and dozens of other household power appliances, not to mention Dad's electric tools, lighting has become a minor element in the size of the monthly bill.

From a comparative standpoint, therefore, lighting can be used effectively as a decorative medium at a minimum cost. Yet it is often overlooked in planning decor because its use is not fully understood.

THREE TYPES of lighting are in general use, and all of them have specific purposes. Residential lighting authority Elizabeth Meehan defines them as:

1. — Local or task lighting, which is light provided by a lamp or other fixture to provide the high-level illumination required by a demanding visual task such as sewing or reading.

2. — General lighting, which is illumination around the edges of a room, such as provided by valances or coves, to provide even illumination and soften the pools of light cast by local light sources.

3. — Accent lighting, which is illumination directed on an object to make it stand out, such as a statue, planter or architectural element.

The proper combination of these techniques enhances decor by allowing the eye to see the interplay of line, form, color and texture which are often suppressed by poor residential lighting.

—:—

VIRTUALLY ALL homes have adequate local lighting. But little consideration is given to illumination beyond this point. Homes with only local lighting are easily recognized by islands of light in an otherwise dark room.

General lighting, provided by fluorescent lamps, concealed behind wall coves and valances, minimizes these little islands of harsh illumination.

General lighting does away with much of the shadow found around the edges of rooms. It provides a pleasant lighting level for parties, conversation or other activities demanding low visual perception.

Accent lighting is often the most demanding and satisfying, part of any lighting installation.

By the clever use of lamps and fixtures, unobtrusive yet effective high level lighting can be directed on planters, architectural features, fireplaces or other conversation pieces, creating interesting light - and -shadow effects.

A room with effective local lighting, adequate general illumination and tastefully arranged accent lighting is comfortable, attractive, and makes other decor assume the vibrant colors originally intended by the decorator.

'V-Joint' Suggested If Doing Brickwork

When laying or repairing bricks, the mortar joints should be "pointed" to prevent rain from standing in them and soaking through the pores of the brick and the mortar.

Several types of joints are used by the professional bricklayer, but the easiest for the amateur is the V-joint.

It is made by running the tip of a pointed trowel along the joint at a 45-degree angle, removing the excess mortar and forcing the remainder into a V-shaped groove.

Brickwork should be inspected by home owners at least twice a year to determine whether any of the mortar has begun to crumble.

If so, loose mortar should be removed and replaced with a new mixture. You can buy it ready-mixed, requiring only the addition of water. After the patches have been made, they should be wet down two or three times a day for several days to prevent the mortar from drying out too quickly.

Blood For Records

ROME (AP) — Italian volunteer blood donors are now being offered two free gramophone records as a prize each time they give blood. Previously, donors had been given free theater tickets.

Wood-Panel Kitchen Mounts In Popularity

Those old - time kitchens, with their big open areas, were ideal for family living.

And a lot of modern owners are making the same discovery. They want the conveniences of up-to-date appliances, but they want more space and more warmth to get away from any suggestion of starkness.

Builders and home improvement contractors have noted an increasing demand for wood - paneled kitchens. Not merely paneled walls, but wood cabinets and, in some cases, plank-and-beam ceilings.

Those remodeling can call on paneling stock in many patterns, textures and grains. Built-ins also can feature louvered doors or mouldings that achieve a distinct personality for the kitchen.

The first decision is where to place the stove, refrigerator, sink and other large units.

It is then easier to plan open counter areas with cupboard space below and, where open wall area permits, more cupboards above. All these, plus general closets, double - door closets that may hide the washer and drier, and other cabinets, will be useful as well as eye appealing.

When making plans, traffic patterns must be considered to be sure the refrigerator door opens the right way and storage space for utensils is handy to the place where they are most used. A tall closet for brooms, ironing board and other large items is another convenience.

Special cupboards might well be planned for small appliances such as mixers, blenders, toasters, and the like. A cabinet for canned goods, with a turntable arrangement, to go below a portion of the work area, will facilitate quick, easy removal of any foods stored there.

Cabinets above the work area must not be too deep. China, bowls, or whatever is on the shelves might be needed fairly often, and it's inconvenient to have to get up on a chair or a kitchen ladder to find something at the back of a high shelf that's too deep.

Good lighting is important in the kitchen. Counter work areas should be planned to make the most of natural light and good overhead electric lights and wall fixtures should be worked into any plan. Electrical outlets should be placed at convenient intervals along counter tops and baseboards.

Mildew thrives where it is warm, moist and shady. When it occurs on the outside of a house, it's in a spot where the sunshine seldom if ever reaches, generally because of close-growing shrubbery.

You'll be amazed at the beauty one coat will bring to your rooms. Choose from hundreds of colors

How To 'Wash' Walls With Light

You can wash your walls with light, thanks to a variety of special lighting fixtures now available.

Soft and soothing light will make draperies, wall coverings and nearby furnishings spring to life, as well as add beauty to paintings, murals, planter boxes, etc.

There are two ways to wash a wall with light. One provides a smooth distribution of reflected and diffused light. The other gives a much greater intensity of light with decorative shadow shapes.

THE DIFFUSED lighting effect is achieved through use of a row of aptly-named wall-wash fixtures.

These recessed units use a series of dish-shaped reflectors to spread the light from a regular 150-watt electric lamp against the wall. The widespread beam smoothly overlaps the beams from adjoining fixtures in the installation.

The number and placement of the fixtures — plus the reflective quality of the wall surface — determines how much light this system provides.

The second method provides greater illumination, and accent lights for pictures, statuary and other points of decorative beauty.

A row of fixtures, such as the adjustable-type recessed units, are required. These use a 150-watt R40 spotlight with a built-in aluminized reflector. Mounted on adjustable brackets, the reflector lamps can be aimed at any desired wall area.

The bright, overlapping beams create a scallop shadow effect. Raymond B. Wozniak, illuminating engineer and noted lecturer, points out that the average amount of light reflected by the two different systems is not the only consideration.

ALTHOUGH the adjustable type fixture gives about three times as much light as the wall-wash style, an increase in general room illumination may not be required, or the otherwise pleasing scallop pattern may interfere with the over-all wall light pattern desired.

In these cases, the wall-wash unit is preferable. On the other hand, the adjustable type spotlight fixture permits a change of lighting pattern at any time, as when a housewife is bitten by the urge to shuffle the furniture and furnishings around for that "new look."

Luckily for the average householder, the rules for washing walls with lights are simple.

For one thing, the closer the ceiling fixtures are to the wall —and the closer together—the more light is reflected from the wall surface. For another, the distance between fixtures should be equal to their distance from the lighted wall.

For example, fixtures two feet out from the wall should be two feet apart in the ceiling (and also two feet from the walls at either end.)

—:—

TO MAKE your lighted wall stand out as a featured point of attraction, be sure you illuminate it to at least twice the brightness of the general lighting in the room. By using the two - foot measure, you will achieve this result.

Don't use either type of wall lighting on glass, mirrored, or usually shiny walls.

Although laws of physics say ceiling light should be reflected down onto the floor, it has a habit of misbehaving and striking you in the eye.

Your lighting dealer can show you the several types and styles of fixtures.

The adjustable unit can be obtained with an unobstructed opening, with louvers, or with a black inner collar that traps, or baffles, any annoying stray light at the ceiling level. The wall-wash model needs no baffling because the light emerges at an angle from an inconspicuous opening.

Think also of whether you intend to plaster and paint or plan to install the fixtures with a minimum of mess.

A variety of frame trims are available to cover up or meet the edges of the holes cut in the ceiling. These ring-shaped trim pieces range from wide ones to conceal the rough edges of the holes to rimless types that must have new plaster smoothed up to the outer edge.

Ceramic Tile Will Get Rid Of Mud, Slush

Rain, mud, snow and slush can cause permanent damage to the floor in the entryway of your home.

But a minor do-it-yourself project can eliminate this possibility and, at the same time, add an attractive touch to the area.

No matter what type flooring you have, a rugged material like ceramic tile is ideal for the entryway.

Even an area as small as 10 square feet just inside the door is sufficient for removal of your guests' foul-weather gear, such as raincoats, galoshes and dripping umbrellas.

Mud, snow or rain splashed on the tile won't hurt and can be cleaned up quickly with a mop or sponge.

If your present floor is smooth and sturdy, you will be able to glue the tile directly to it.

Get tile with rounded edges to form the outer border. In case your floor is carpeted, you may wish to cut out a portion just inside the door and replace it with tile. If necessary, you may use an underlayerment of plywood to level or thicken the subflooring.

On most jobs using one-inch-square ceramic mosaic tiles, there will be no cutting or fitting needed, so it is relatively simple to glue the tiles to the sub-flooring with a mastic and then fill the joints between the tiles with grout.

For the ultimate in construction, use the newer epoxy materials both for the adhesive and the grout.

Special epoxy materials that can be cleaned from tolls and other surfaces with warm water have been developed for use with ceramic tiles.

The epoxies are nearly as strong and durable as the tile itself, and will add to the good looks and long life of your new entryway.

Recent developments in the manufacture of ceramic tile have made possible a wider color choice for entryway floors, since an extra-duty glazed wall tile can now be used on floors.

In working with ornamental wrought iron, remember that it can be sent to almost any shape when it is red hot. A liquid-fuel hand torch will do the job for the hobbyist. Manufacturers use an open forge.

Shingles, Shakes Brighten Interior

Red cedar shingles and handsplit shakes conjure up the dream of a country home with a charming rustic exterior.

For these textured, warm materials generally are associated with the outside of a house. But somewhere along the line, somebody had the idea that they might look well on the inside.

The idea was given a trial in offices, entryways and various commercial buildings.

It caught on quickly — and today red cedar shingles and handsplit shakes are seen on the walls of many dens, recreation rooms and even dining rooms.

In applying shingles and shakes on the outside, certain rules must be followed if the home owner wishes to take advantage of the wood's natural durability and resistance to the weather.

But on the inside, there are no application restrictions; the shingles and shakes can be applied upside down, sideways, with staggered butt lines or in whatever design strikes your fancy.

Also, there are several varieties from which to choose. There are four grades of shingles, beginning with the super-smooth No. 1 grade to the knotty No. 4 and shakes come in tapersplit and straight - split styles as well as the rugged handsplit.

While the singles and shakes can be painted if desired, most persons probably will prefer to let the wood grain be visible.

In that event, the wood can be stained, brushed with linseed oil or given a coat of one of the clear finishes, preferably of the non-gloss type.

Outdoor Lighting To Add To Enjoyment Of Garden

Soon your garden will be at its loveliest. Enjoy it to the fullest by using the latest outdoor lighting techniques.

Not only will lighting give you many more hours of viewing pleasure, it will also allow you to dine and entertain outdoors in the evening.

Attractive lighting is possible for any garden, regardless of its size or the size of one's budget, it is pointed out.

Installations can be temporary or permanent, making it possible for those who rent their homes to enjoy the advantages of a beautifully lighted garden.

WHEN lighting, avoid "whitewashing" the entire garden in imitation of daylight; contrasts of light and shadow, highlights and silhouette effects create the best effect. Place lights to illumine a flower bed or other point of interest.

Conceal light sources by hiding bulbs in shrubbery and place bulbs and fixtures so that light is confined to your own premises. Shielding reflectors can be used to keep light source out of viewers' eyes.

As to color, it is best to use white light or blue-white projector bulbs on flowers. Colored lights can be used sparingly on white statuary, walls and trellises and are most effective in pools and fountains.

Those wishing to landscape with light on a temporary basis can use outdoor-type extension cords and plug in on existing circuits in the house or garage.

Avoid overloading any one household circuit. Care should be taken to protect cords against damage from closing doors and windows. Tape all plug connections outdoors to keep connections above puddle level. Permanently installed lighting systems should be handled by an electrical contractor.

Whether you're renting or owning, you'll get more pleasure out of your garden by lighting it up!

NEW OUTDOOR lighting kits on the market are making landscaping with light a simple matter, as well as performing a variety of functions.

One such kit is ideal for lighting walks, garden paths or steps. But by slipping off its shade and tilting its lamp, the unit becomes a flood lamp. Or, using a combination bracket and base included in the kit, the fixture can be hung on a wall and swiveled in any direction.

Mounted on a wall or post, with its bulb pointed directly up and its shade snapped on, the unit becomes an attractive fixture for entrances, or lighting outside areas. Or, placed upright on a table, the unit becomes an attractive waterproof table lamp.

A unique kit is also available for bringing out the beauty of shrubbery and flowers at night. This kit utilizes a special blue-white floodlight bulb that makes plants and leaves take on new night-time beauty which is impossible to achieve with ordinary lighting.

A new dusk-to-dawn lighting kit will be of interest to home owners who want night - time safety but don't wish to be bothered with switching lights off and on. This kit contains an electric eye switching - control adapter unit and a weather - duty PAR-38 150 - watt floodlight bulb. The light turns on automatically at dusk and off at dawn.

The elctric eye unit screws into any regular socket, converting any outdoor lighting fixture into an automatic dusk-to-dawn lighting unit.

THIS WELL-LIGHTED living room has fluorescent lamps over the window valances and in the cove running across the ceiling, with local lighting for visual tasks provided by regular lamps.

10 Reasons Offered For Paint Problems

What are the general causes of paint failure? Here are 10 of them:

1.—Painting in damp weather.
2.—Painting in cold weather. The temperature should be at least 50 degrees.
3.—Using poor quality paint.
4.—Failing to mix the paint as directed on the container.
5.—Applying the paint too thick or too thin.
6.—Allowing insufficient drying time between coats.
7.—Failure to prepare the surfaces properly.
8.—Failing to seal knots or pitchy spots.
9.—Not using a primer when the manufacturer advises it.
10.—Painting too often.

Here Are Some Factors Influencing Home Sales

By ANDY LANG

Talk to a builder or an architect for any length of time and the subject invariably gets around to the whys and wherefores of selling new houses.

What makes a buyer select a house in one development and pass up a similar house in another? Do first - home buyers look for the same things in houses as do those who already own or have owned homes?

First, there isn't much doubt that the price must be within the range set by the prospective purchasers. Occasionally, a couple will look at and buy a new house costing more than they intended to spend.

But this is more likely to occur in the purchase of an old house when, for example, the asking price is $18,000, the couple hopes to get it down to $15,000 and the settlement price is $16,500. A new house has a set price, and buyers know there is no haggling over it.

WHAT ABOUT neighborhood? A factor, yes, but probably more from the standpoint of the convenience of shopping, schools, transportation and other facilities than anything else.

It is sometimes difficult to determine the future makeup of a new neighborhood except to guess at the income level of its residents-to-be.

Then, of course, there's the house itself. It must fill the physical needs of the prospective buyer.

In this respect, it is our belief that most persons look ahead only for about five years, contrasted with the days when a family buying a home expected to hold on to it definitely.

Yet five years is a long time when a family is growing. And flexibility or expandability, or whatever you wish to call it, is something wanted by many buyers, especially young ones.

Newspaper and magazine articles have made new home purchasers more sophisticated about design.

They look for good traffic circulation and other features which generally were ignored 20 or 30 years ago except by a small minority. More simply, buyers have better taste in design.

ALL OF THIS is also true about those who already own houses and are looking for new ones. But they have an additional viewpoint, that of comparison.

They especially are seeking advantages they don't have in their old homes — and avoiding disadvantages they do have. If they don't have a porch or a roofed terrace or a fireplace, any or all of these items have an appeal for them. If they have a small kitchen which has been inadequate but tolerated, they want a larger one. And so on.

Some persons place a certain value on the reputation of the builder. If they have heard of him and know that he has built good houses in the past, the sale gets a big assist.

If they have never heard of him, they still make the purchase if everything else is satisfactory. If he has a poor reputation, the chances are they won't look at his houses in the first place.

As with design, more and more persons are conscious of quality materials in construction.

They are pleased to see products manufactured by reputable companies they know have turned out other good items. Builders who use such products are wise to let buyers know about them.

And finally, it would be naive to overlook the fact that good advertising, showmanship and salesmanship play their part in selling new houses.

Always read the directions on a can of paint to determine whether the paint should be thinned or whether only occasional stirring is required to get the best results.

EYE - LEVEL BEAUTY. Here's a closeup of a Grandiflora that's popularly grown as a tree rose. Many gardeners alternate colors to add emphasis to this proud beauty in the yard.

Nail Set's Handy In Finishing Job

When you want to drive finishing nails below the surface of the wood, a nail set is necessary.

Use it for no other purpose. It is not meant for punching holes, which will damage its cup-shaped tip.

To use a nail set properly, rest the little finger of the hand holding the nail set against the head of the nail. This helps prevent the nail set from slipping off the head of the nail and damaging the wood.

As you hammer, keep your eyes on what you're doing, using a gentle tapping motion. Stop when the nail is about 1/16 of an inch below the surface. Fill the hole with matching wood putty, plastic wood or similar material.

Truth Or Poetry?

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. (AP)— There was either a misplaced letter or a lot of truth in this ad which a restaurant placed in a local paper: "Just a reminder —a book of our meal tickets makes an ideal girthday present."

Rattan stands up well outdoors. But it can be given even longer durability if coated once a year with spar varnish.

Vinyl Homes For Future?

From colonial to split - level homes, Americans hang their hats in just about every type of structure imaginable.

In the years ahead, their choice will be even wider as new materials move into the field of residential construction.

Manufacturers of various products have been building experimental houses using all or nearly all of the items which they produce.

The idea, of course, is to show the practicality of the materials. Now comes word from the manufacturers of rigid vinyl that we may some day see houses made almost completely of this versatile plastic. It's already being used for such things as siding, gutters and downspouts, to mention just a few.

In the years ahead, say these manufacturers, there will be houses which will have vinyl walls, partitions, kitchen cabinets, stair rails, air ducts, water pipes, storm windows, and all the way down the list of building materials.

One authority, T. B. Nantz, vice president of a giant vinyl-producing company, cautions that plenty of industry work is ahead before families can be transported into vinyl wonderlands.

He fears that too-hasty plunge into certain markets might result in a possible misuse of vinyl in the construction industry. He explains it this way:

"Vinyl is used in everything from baby pants to phonograph records, but you can't tack a pair of baby pants to the framework of a house and expect it to give the protection of a vinyl compounded for siding. Nor can you plug a hole in the roof with a phonograph record.

"Rigid vinyl can perform long service in home construction if it is used and identified properly. It will be a disservice to home buyer and the plastics and building industries if they are oversold or tagged with 'cure-all' miracle labels."

What makes rigid vinyl so good for building products?

"First, it can be compounded to be tough and long-lasting and dent and scratch resistant," Nantz says.

"A falling ladder or a batted baseball that puts a deep dimple into metal or splits wood hardly leaves a mark on rigid vinyl. Properly used, it will not split, curl, rot or crack. Its colors are integral, so they cannot chip, peel or wear off.

"In addition, rigid vinyl will not support combustion nor conduct electricity. Also, it will not conduct either heat or cold."

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. — How can I, when cooking cauliflower or cabbage, prevent the cooking odors from permeating my house?

A. — By dropping a few walnuts, shells and all, into the pot while they're cooking.

Q. — How can I insure tenderness in meat after boiling it?

A. — Adding a teaspoon of lemon juice to the water in which the meat is boiled usually helps.

If you're planning to repaint a surface that still gleams, in places, with a former coating of enamel, the National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association recomends that you sand the glossy areas to roughen them slightly. This will provide better anchorage for your new coating. Dust off loose particles of sand and old enamel before painting.

LIKE SO MANY modern mobile homes, this one is rooted to the earth by the addition of a wooden foundation covering the wheels and by patios and canopies.

Mobile Homes Become Larger And Swankier

You'd have a hard time finding traces of old - fashioned car trailers in modern mobile homes.

Air - conditioning, wall - to-wall carpeting, radiant heating systems, vinyl wall covering in the kitchen, customized doors, movable walls and three bedrooms and two baths. All this, and mileage too, you can get in a mobile home.

The term "mobile homes" now refers to the very large units that are moved to their "homestead" sites by truck-tractor. The smaller ones, small and light enough to be drawn across country hitched to the family automobile, are a different breed entirely, and they are called "travel trailers."

Attesting to the growing popularity of mobile homes, nearly 200,000 of these dwellings were purchased in 1964, a gain of about 23 per cent over the previous year and better than double the increase predicted by the industry.

Mobile homes really aren't very mobile. They're hauled to the site in a mobile home park and given an appearance of being rooted to the earth by such additions as porches and landscaping. If it's desired to move again, a special moving firm must be hired to do the job.

Such domiciles appeal to young married couples without children, or to families in which both the husband and wife work.

Most mobile homes are sold completely furnished, which means young married couples don't have to buy furniture. Retired couples also find mobile home living attractive.

The travel - trailer field is also very much on the upgrade. A travel - trailer is somewhat similar to a cabin cruiser on the water — one room divided into kitchen, bathroom and sleeping quarters.

Last year purchases of these trailers were up about 19 per cent over 1963.

Shellac lasts longer in glass rather than metal containers. But it tends to deteriorate in time, so buy only as much as you need or will use in a few months.

You Can Have New Table By Flip And Flop

A simple but clever design enables you to have a special corner or end table with a high-styled appearance.

What makes it special is the flip - top, so named because it can be turned over simply by lifting it out with your hands. When the top is marred by a deep scratch or a cigarette burn, the table gets a new surface in a few seconds without the use of any tools.

Actually, the top is just a piece of plywood 28½ inches square. It fits into a lumber frame to form a table 30 inches square. One by 3 lumber is used for the frame. Remember that 1 by 3s actually measure ¾ inches by 2⅝ inches. The finished table stands 20 inches off the floor.

Plywood to be used for the top can be of several different grades, depending on the finished appearance desired.

A good selection is a special plywood called high density overlay which has a hard, plastic - like surface, applied at the plant. This surface needs no finishing but can be painted if desired.

High density overlaid plywood is commonly used for highway signs.

—:—

IT'S AVAILABLE in a few solid colors as well as a clear, wood grain, surface.

Those wishing to use high density overlaid plywood may have to order it from their lumber dealer, as it is not always stocked as a standard item.

If a painted surface is desired, medium density overlaid plywood may be used.

This plywood is similar to high density except that the resin content is less, leaving a paper-like surface perfect for painting. Ordinary sanded plywood may be used if stained, and other coverings may be applied to the plywood faces if desired.

The legs of the table are cut from 1 by 1 lumber and the frame is a 1 by 3 piece. The leg pieces are notched, then inserted through a triangular corner piece. Small wood strips are mounted on the inside of the frame to help support the top.

Thin pieces of felt or other cushioning fabric may be glued to the corner pieces and strips to protect the under - surface on the top.

—:—

IN ASSEMBLING the table, build the frame first. Legs should be 19¼ inches long, from bottom to top of notched part, to support a ¾-inch-thick plywood top. The notch would then be 1⅞ inches high. The triangular piece may be of any thickness and one inch thick would be about right. Ends of the 1 3-inch frame should be beveled at a 45-degree angle.

After assembling the frame, make careful inside dimensions, then cut the plywood piece to fit.

It's best to allow a small tolerance between the measurements of the top and the inside of the frame so the fit won't be too tight. The kerf of the cutting saw would probably be about right for this.

Other furniture may be designed using the same support system.

CLEVER DESIGN permits table top to be reversed without use of tools.

New Materials Will Help Make Upholstering Easy

Modern materials and techniques have made possible many do-it-yourself tasks that would have been considered purely within the range of the professional not too many years ago.

One project that fits into this category is the reupholstering of a chair.

Such things as exceptionally strong rubber furniture webbing, a staple gun, tough cement, a webbing stretcher, upholstery braid and latex foam rubber cushioning all contribute to good results by the amateur.

The first step is to remove the old fabric padding, webbing and springs.

The bare frame should then be cleaned with soap and warm water and dried with a cloth. Using the new - type rubber webbing, attach the webbing to the frame, weaving the strips in and out of one another and utilizing the stretcher.

All these materials should be available at well - stocked hardware stores or upholstery dealers. The big point here, as the instructions on the webbing container will tell you, is that the webbing goes across the top of the frame, not under it, as was probably the case with the old webbing.

Cut a pattern out of any heavy paper, such as wrapping paper, to match the bottom of the chair.

Place the pattern on a slab of foam rubber two inches thick and trace the outline on the rubber with a pen. Now cut out a piece of rubber, but make it half - an-inch extra all around so that the edges can be tucked in. Using a special rubber cement, glue strips of muslin to the foam rubber cushion.

Make the strips wide enough to reach from the top of the cushion to the frame of the chair. Excess muslin can be trimmed off later.

After the cement has dried, which takes about two hours, place the cushion over the webbing and staple the muslin strips to the frame. Pulling down on the strips will create rounded edges on the cushions. Cut off the excess.

Apply the fabric over the cushion, doubling the edges under and tacking in place with staples.

Take extra care with the corners to get maximum smoothness. Glue on upholstery braid to cover the staples, then step back and admire your work.

This 'n That

Slips and falls often occur in dark hallways. For maximum safety, as well as beauty, the National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association recommends that these areas be painted in light colors and kept well lighted.

In good construction, siding and studs are never allowed to make contact with the ground, since moisture from the soil will enter the wood.

In cutting sheet metal or tubing with a hack saw, select a blade with very fine teeth.

With forced warm - air furnaces, most filters should be changed twice a year. However, electronic air filters can be cleaned and reused, in line with the manufacturer's instructions.

The main purpose of putty or glazing compound in a window frame is not to hold the glass in place, but to keep out dust, drafts and water.

You can paint over old linoleum with floor paints, but every bit of dirt, grease and wax must first be removed.

A block plane, which is used with one hand, is especially useful when the work cannot be taken to a vise or otherwise secured.

Attention pet owners: when the interior of a home is too dry, pets tend to shed more hair than normally.

Shellac Stick

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

It Adds Professional Touch

Know what a shellac stick is? not too many do - it - yourselfers do.

But if you're interested in wood finishing — and would like to try your hand at making a patch in wood—get acquainted with it.

A shellac stick is what the name implies: a stick of hardened shellac that comes in a range of colors. It is used primarily for repairing damaged wood, but sometimes is utilized for filling seams at joints.

Some hardware stores and paint stores carry them in stock. So do some dealers in artists' materials. As a last resort, go to a place specializing in wood finishing products, which almost always will have them.

—:—

USED PROPERLY, a shellac stick will enable you to make a professional repair in any kind of wood, regardless of its finish.

Since it takes some practice to get the knack of it, try it out first on some scrap wood, preferably wood that already has a finish on it.

Besides the stick, you will need an alcohol lamp and a flat, pallette knife — both purchasable where you get the shellac.

Let's assume you have a table with a cigarette burn in it. After carefully scraping away all traces of carbon or other residue from the burn, heat the knife blade over the lamp flame. When the blade is very hot, but not to the point of turning red, hold it against the end of the shellac stick.

Some of the shellac will cling to the blade, which then is pressed into the marred area. A little of the shellac will remain in the gap. Repeat this process until the hole is filled slightly — very slightly—above the surface.

WAIT UNTIL the shellac hardens, then sand the patch until it is level with the surrounding surface.

Use a fine grade of sandpaper, working slowly and carefully so that not too much of the shellac is taken off.

Once you are satisfied that the hole or other damage is satisfactorily repaired, you are ready to begin the job of finishing the patch to match the original finish.

If you are certain the finish is lacquer, do the matching job with clear lacquer, mixed half and half with lacquer thinner.

If the finish is varnish — or you aren't sure what it is—use a 50-50 mixture of varnish and turpentine. In all cases, do the matching with a tiny brush, of the sort used in children's painting sets.

—:—

AGAIN, work slowly and carefully, especially with lacquer, which must be spread once and let dry before going over it a second time. When you think you have a reasonably good match, forget about the whole thing for a day or so, then polish or wax, which will have a tendency to make the patch even less conspicuous.

In buying the shellac stick, select a color darker than the wood, because the shellac in stick form looks darker than it will be when melted.

Some stores carry several colors in packaged form. If so, it's a good idea to buy the package, not only to enable you to make a good match, but to have other colors on hand for use when needed.

Most oil stains on rugs and carpets will yield to a dry cleaning solvent if treated quickly. Haste is especially important with a stain caused by linseed oil.

HIGH, WIDE AND HANDSOME! Horticulturists have come up with a single new rose bush variety with new dimensions; it can be grown as a medium or tall bush, pillar, climber, rambler or fence-cover. Called Joseph's Coat because of its multi-colored tones of red, orange and yellow, this new hybrid rose is the first plant of its kind to provide the home gardner with so many optional applications.

Daughter To Become Boss Of Her Father

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Dr. Edward A. Huth is going to work for his daughter.

Next September, Dr. Huth will turn over his duties as chairman of the sociology department at the University of Dayton to his daughter, Dr. Mary Josephine Huth. Then he'll continue as a teacher in her department.

"We've always gotten along very well," said the 66-year-old Dr. Huth. "I don't anticipate any trouble."

His daughter, an honor student at Dayton in 1950 who took classes under her father, agreed. "I don't think that being head of a department means you have to boss people around," she said.

Mary Jo has been on the Dayton faculty since 1962. Her father has been here since 1939.

Sign Of The Grime

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Sign on a Lexington drive - in car wash: "Grime does not pay."

The screw tip of a bit set in a brace is apt to tear the reverse side of wood stock as it comes through. To prevent this, clamp a piece of scrap wood to the back of the stock and drill into it.

Attractive Entrance Hall Creates Friendly Feeling

Since an entrance hall or foyer is where guests form their first and last impressions of your home and hospitality, it should be made as inviting as possible.

But home owners thinking of redecorating or remodeling that area also will want to plan for long wear and ease of maintenance, as the hallway is always a heavy traffic route.

Among the many possible choices of materials for this purpose, paneling ranks high on the list, adding an extra note of warmth.

It also affords an opportunity for an expression of individual personality. Not only are there many species of wood from which to choose, but there are almost endless color combinations, achieved through stains as well as clear finishes.

PANELING ALSO comes in many different patterns and grades.

Simpler patterns offer the more delicate linear emphasis, while fancier patterns will be stronger in establishing lines of direction. Clear grades of lumber usually achieve a lively contemporary effect while knotty grades promote the traditional feeling.

Paneling may be installed in countless ways. You might want to set it vertically in a short hall with a low ceiling.

In a tiny entranceway, paneling to chair rail or plate rail height might be the perfect foil for a small patterned paper on the upper walls and ceiling.

If you plan to re-do a hall that leads into a modern living room or one with an outdoor atmosphere, you will find that horizontal paneling leads the eye along the wall into the room beyond.

—:—

INDIVIDUAL interests can be brought into play in further decoration, depending on whether you wish a formal or informal atmosphere.

Paneling makes a fin eback-drop for books or a display of art objects. It also sets off prints of animals or outdoor scenes, yet it will lend softness to the sharp lines of a modern figure or painting.

A hanging shelf in matching wood, or recessed shelving, adds to visual interest. Wooden pegs or hooks to hold hats and children's coats are attractive and most useful.

Hall windows can be enhanced by a wooden valance that matches the paneling.

If one side of the hall opens into a room a few feet from the front door, you can create the feeling of a longer wall by building a divider. This can be composed of cupboards, two-way bookshelving, or perhaps a lattice - work of geometric design.

—:—

CUPBOARDS can be particularly useful when it comes to storing games, umbrellas, movie equipment and the like. These built-ins can feature louvered pine doors which will help set the style, be it traditional, modern or a definite period.

If you have sufficient natural or artificial light, you might want to top waist - high cabinets with a shelf to hold plants.

Or in a contemporary home, set plants in a depressed area in the floor and train them up poles. Cedars are fine woods for these purposes.

Your hallway offers endless possibilities and shouldn't be a forgotten area. Though only a passageway, if it affords a friendly welcome it will make guests feel at home.

HEAVY FIR BEAMS across laminated pine ceiling produce interesting contrast and give low, horizontal lines to this large, striking living room.

Land Of Swat

In the peaceful, prosperous land of Swat the big problems are firewood, jaywalking and stocking trout streams. Swat's surplus of emeralds is no problem at all.

The little Himalayan state in West Pakistan is ruled by the hereditary Wali of Swat. Pakistan, however, handles its foreign affairs, defense and communications, the National Geographic Society says.

Maj. Gen. Miangul Abdul Haq Jahan Zeb, the present Wali of Swat, is a progressive ruler. He conducts much official business over the telephone, calling village chiefs every morning. Nearly every villabe has electricity. The Wali has built free schools, a college, half a dozen hospitals and a modern road network.

Courtship

Most songbirds court with both feet on the ground. Only a few have their head in the clouds.

Bobolinks and meadowlarks sing and display on the wing, but other species perform the springtime ritual on the ground or on a handy perch, according to the National Geographical Society's book, Song and Garden Birds of North America.

In a chapter on courtship and nesting behavior, Robert M. McClung writes: "Among most songbirds, the male takes the initiative. He may sing to the female, then spread his tail and show off his fine breeding plumage. He may offer her a bit of food or drop a twig before her, presumably a symbol of a nest."

Once a female accepts the attentions of a posturing male, the two become mates. Some waterfowl and birds of prey are believed to mate for life, but most birds stay together for only one breeding season. Game birds form many temporary and casual liaisons. "One lusty sage grouse was observed mating with 21 different females in the course of a single morning," McClung writes.

After courtship and mating come nest building and egg laying. The female selects the nesting site, and more often than not she does the actual building as well, though her mate may help gather material. By the time the nest is finished, the hen bird is ready to lay her eggs.

Be sure to use a clean, dry mop or cloth to dust walls before painting, advises the National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association. An oil mop or treated cloth may leave a thin film on the wall which will prevent the new paint from adhering properly.

Renewing wrought iron is easy if you follow these tips: First, clean thoroughly. Next, sand away any traces of rust. Prime the spots of bare metal with a quality metal primer such as zinc chromate. Let the primed areas dry, then apply enamel.

Using an eight-point crosscut saw will not leave as keen an edge on the stock as a crosscut saw with more points, but it will cut faster with less effort.

Fence Me In!

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

With Red Roses, That Is

Every new home owner knows that although planting a new lawn may not be costly, fencing in that same lawn can be an expensive production.

But here's good news. Now it's possible for home owners to plant a beautiful living fence of roses, at a cost of only pennies per foot.

An unusual hybrid, Red Glory, has been developed as a non - sprawling, tall-growing, fast - growing fence that grows very upright and compact and is ever - blooming from early spring to late fall.

—:—

FLOWERING with bright red roses from top to bottom, this amazing variety rapidly develops into an attractive, thickly foliaged, impenetrable barrier.

Providing a low - cost answer to the home owner's fencing problem, it is specially mass-produced in order to reduce the cost per plant.

A special type of propagation, not used for most roses, was necessary in order to make it available for use in mass quantity on an economical basis.

Unlike regular rose bushes, the Red Glory fence can be trimmed and trained with regular hedge shears.

Fast - growing, it attains 4 feet or more the very first year, and between 5 to 6 feet by the second year.

Home gardeners can expect almost continuous production of semi - double flower clusters, starting the very season of planting.

—:—

A DENSE hedge or border is achieved quickly by installing the plants 18 inches apart. Less density is achieved by spacing the plants approximately 24 inches apart.

Progress

A Romanian poet once described the people of his Balkan nation as "beggars sitting on a pile of gold."

The description is only partly correct. Industrialization has brought relative prosperity to the Communist - ruled country's 19 million people. The wheels of industry have been turning so rapidly that Romania has one of the fastest growing economies in the world.

The recent death of President Gheorghe Gheorghiu - Dej, the nation's leader for 13 years, focused attention on Romania's progress since World War II.

Bucharest, a capital of outdoor cafes, broad boulevards and flower - filled parks, has gone a long way toward reclaiming its title: Paris of the East.

At Mamaia on the Black Sea, Romanians have built a resort that suggests Miami in looks as well as name. With 30 new glass - faced hotels lining a broad sandy beach, Mamaia attracted sunbathers from 65 different nations last year.

Throughout Romania, modern homes and apartment blocks are replacing peasant - style cottages. Even some rural villages share the benefits of progress. Electricity and natural gas are supplanting kerosene lamps and straw - burning stoves.

Hematology is the study of blood.

'Scalloped' Edge Will Help To Improve Home Grounds

By DOUGLAS TUOMEY

There is a vast difference from a landscaping point of view between a flower bed or shrub planting with a straight or a scalloped edge.

The scalloped edge is by far the best looking and the effort in developing one is well worth the time. Those who have tried to cut a nice scallop usually have some difficulty in getting graceful curves and, therefore, re-cut so often that they gradually have too much bare ground between the shrubs and the lawn edge.

The formula for getting graceful curves lies in the simple use of the garden hose. Believe it or not, it is impossible to get anything but a graceful curve when the hose is used as an indicator. It should be laid on the lawn and adjusted to make long sweeping curves or short rounded curves as conditions indicate.

Edging can be done with a sharp spade, but the best tool is the turf-edger, a half-moon-shaped steel blade with a long handle. This tool is sharpened by setting it in a vise and filing the edge with a fine file.

This produces a raw, sharp edge, that is ideal for cutting through tough turf. A dull edger will break and crumble the turf and fail to produce a clean edge. In using the turf-edger, the best procedure is to push down with the foot on the back of the edger until it is sunk in the ground about three inches. Then it is moved along and pushed again without altogether taking it out of the cut. This produces a continuous cut without breaks or crumbling.

After a bed has been scalloped it will look its best if the bare ground is covered with an inch or two of dark peat moss, raked smoothly. Peat moss not only keeps the ground moist, but also keeps down the growth of weeds.

The quality of materials used is of great importance in achieving a durable paint job. The cost of paint to cover the average house is usually a small fraction of the total cost of labor and materials. It is good economy to buy a quality product in order to lengthen the time between repaintings and thus reduce labor costs.

Hearing Bells? Then You're Okay

If somebody is trying to serve you with a subpoena or you're ducking creditors, this article is not for you.

It's about the failure of your doorbell to produce the generally desirable ring, buzz or chime — and what to do about it.

The bell system usually operates on 6 or 8 volts, although there are a few that require 12 to 18 volts. Thus, working around the doorbell is one of the few electrical repairs you can undertake without turning off the circuit.

MOST OF the time, it is merely the pushbutton that is at fault. Unscrew it from its position outside the house.

You will find two wires connected to two screws on the underside of the button. That is, they should be connected. If one of them isn't, your trouble is over. Merely connect it to the screw which has no wire attached to it, push the button and you'll hear the welcome ring.

But if both wires are intact and everything seems in order, touch both screws at the same time with the blade of a screwdriver. If the bell rings, the trouble is faulty pushbutton. Buy a new one, connect the two wires to it and that's that.

IN A SMALL percentage of cases, the bell will not ring when you touch the screws with the screwdriver blade.

There are then three places to check — the bell itself, the power supply or the wiring. On the bell or chime, look for loose connections or dirty contacts or contacts which do not touch. To test a battery, use a voltmeter.

If you don't have one, connect a wire to one terminal of the battery and touch it lightly to the other terminal of the same battery. If there is a slight spark, the battery is still good. You can also test the battery by attaching a bell or buzzer to two short pieces of wire.

There should be a ring or a buzz when the two ends of the wires are touched to the battery terminals. Testing a transformer (if your bell operates through one rather than via a battery) is similar. But — and this is important — do the testing with the terminals leading to the pushbutton, not those leading to the fuse box.

Fortunately, you probably will not have to test the transformer, since most of them last indefinitely and the trouble usually is elsewhere.

—:—

TESTING THE bell wire means looking for breaks or exposed parts along the section of the wire that is visible.

If you see none — and all must be at fault — then you'll have to string new wire.

To do this, attach the new wire to the old and pull it through, which makes it less difficult than you might suppose.

But we repeat — in almost all cases, you will find that the trouble lies with a defective pushbutton and that once you have a new one the repair takes only a few minutes.

Do You Have Enough Insurance On Home?

The tragedy of a burned-out home is multiplied when the house is under-insured.

Yet the records show that this occurs hundreds of times during the year; sadly enough, more often to the families which can least afford the loss.

Under-insured houses usually are those built 15, 20 or more years ago, because it is the older houses which have risen in value the most.

A house which cost $8,000 20 years ago is likely to be worth $15,000 or more today, whereas a house constructed within the last three or four years probably is worth so much or only slightly higher today.

Conclusion: the older the house, the more important it is to check the insurance to see that it covers its present - day value.

Wall Plaques Use Adhesive For Attaching

Something new for walls this year is a do-it-yourself decor put up without nails, screws or other metal fasteners.

It's a collection of 21 - inch square, press-on plaques which can be used to create anything from a decorative accent to a completely paneled wall quickly and without any technical skill.

The unusual and attractive designs of these panelette plaques are molded in meticulous detail from original hand - carvings to give a rich, deeply-dimensional look.

The variety of patterns and finishes enables the panelettes to be used maximum flexibility wherever desired.

By varied applications of the squares to walls, doors, room-dividers, archways or other surfaces, any number of architectural and decorative effects can be created, each individually designed to suit the particular setting in which it is placed.

The panelettes can be applied to any wall surface in a matter of moments. A special bonding adhesive, new and very strong, is already on the back of each plaque, protected by squares of waxed paper.

All that is required is to remove the paper and press the plaque into position. It will adhere immediately.

Some possible applications are accents for a front door, highlights in a hallway, architectural motifs on closets and archways, abstract sculptural decorations to relieve the monotony of painted walls, neat geometric groupings to function as mirror frames or wall-mounted headboards, or imaginative accents in kitchen or bathroom.

One style is gracefully shaped to resemble a traditional rosette-centered wooden wall panel. Another incorporates fleur-de-lis motifs within a sculptural honeycomb for an elegant effect.

A third offers the provincial charm of row of circular butter-mold motifs. And the fourth is contemporary, with a hand-sculptured texture to a pattern of overlapping abstract shapes.

The range of finishes includes birch and walnut wood tones, delft - blue and paprika-red (for the effect of tile), hand-rubbed white-on-gold or full gold, and metallic finishes in copper and iron tones.

ATTRACTIVE CONTRAST between the dark wood of bannister and lighter paneling on walls and door adds to entry hall's charm.

Here Are Danger Signals That Could Mean 'Fire!'

Last year, close to one million American homes were damaged or destroyed by fire—despite massive safety campaigns mounted by civic, educational, insurance and similarly - concerned groups.

Most of these fires never had to start, says Chief Jay W. Stevens, director of education for the Institute for Home Fire Safety.

Honorary fire chief of 256 United States cities, Stevens has spent 63 of his 80 years fighting fires and public apathy about the fire problem.

From his long experience, he offers the following list of danger signals, any or all of which could indicate that a fire is about to break out in your home.

1.—A blown fuse indicates an overloaded or defective circuit. Do not insert a new fuse until you have checked all devices connected to the circuit: you may be drawing too much current and should disconnect one or more appliances, or one of them may be defective. Then insert a new fuse of the same rating. If fuses continue to blow, discontinue use of the circuit until it can be checked by an electrician.

2.—Dimming of lights suggests that the amount of current available at your service entrance is inadequate.

3.—Small appliances, such as mixers, fans, electric clocks, etc., that are unusually warm to the touch suggest insufficient lubrication and excessive wearing of the machine parts. Overheating due to friction may cause machine parts to ignite dust, lint or nearby combustibles. Overheating also causes insulation to break down.

4.—Vibration noises or other sounds of "rough - running" in large appliances such as washers, dryers and refrigerators, may signify excessive friction resulting in dangerous overheating.

5.—Difficulty in lighting fires in fireplaces, stoves or furnaces points to clogged pipes and chimneys.

6.—Automatic fuel oil or gas burners that go out frequently in high winds suggest presence of dangerous drafts that may cause "blow-back" and subsequent explosion.

7.—Gas ranges and stoves that go out repeatedly warn of possible clogged or leaking fuel lines.

8. — Excessive quantities of heavy, black smoke leaving the chimney indicate possible unburned fuel and the need to adjust the combustion controls. Unburned fuel in the form of soot collected in chimneys or flues can block the escape of combustion gases and may explode or cause a chimney fire.

9.—Presence of loose mortar or tile chips at the base of a chimney warn of cracks that could release sparks and gases into the home.

10. — High temperatures in walls adjacent to chimney signal chimney cracks.

11. — Excessive amount of scalding water from the hot water tap indicates possible damage to the heat-limit controls of the water heater. An explosion or ignition of nearby combustibles by heat radiation could easily result.

Ways Offered To Add Space In Workshop

When power tools begin to move into the home workshop, the walls have a way of appearing to contract.

Lucky indeed is the man (or woman) who has as much space for his projects as he'd like. But a proper placement of the electric machines can push back those walls.

If you have that perennial workhorse, the table saw, provide a space for it against a wall.

There will be times when you won't have enough room to use the saw in that position. The solution is to equip the table on which the saw rests with retractable casters. Keep the casters locked; it's done by pressing a foot lever.

When you have to move the table to the center of the room, unlock the casters, roll the table to the proper spot, then relock the casters. In a large room, you would keep the table saw in the center of the room at all times.

When space is at a premium, consider making one wall of perforated hardboard, using clips on which to hang tools.

If the room has open studding, it's easy to place short pieces of 2 by 4's between them as rough but useful shelves. If you have any tables against a wall, use the area beneath them for storage.

Process Offered For Gold Leafing

Question: I have just purchased some unfinished wooden picture frames.

They apparently are made of some kind of hardwood and have fancy carvings. I originally planned to color them with gold paint, but a friend of mine said there is a better way to do it to make it look like gold leaf. Unfortunately, he read about this a couple of years ago and doesn't remember how it should be done. Can you help me?

Answer: Wood finishers have pet ways of simulating gold leaf, some of which look like the real thing and some of which don't. There have been exceptionally good results with the following process, but it is recommended that you test it first on a piece of wood similar to that of the picture frames. Or, if you have no such wood, then do just one side of one frame to see how it comes out.

Buy shellac and some metallic gold powder. Apply a coat of shellac to the wood. Although shellac should rarely be used without diluting it with denatured alcohol, this is one of the exceptions.

While the shellac is wet, dip a dry, clean brush into some of the gold powder. Hold the brush over the shellac and pass it along the frame, shaking it lightly and allowing the powder to drip onto the shellac. Do not brush.

Finally, take a piece of clean cloth or leather and rub the surface of the wood thoroughly. This will spread the powder properly.

You Can Reap Beauty As Well As Flowers

If you're a lady garden enthusiast, you'll be glad to know that you can also cultivate beauty while you're cultivating those azaleas.

With a little planning, the hours spent in your garden can be a beauty treatment, too.

Start your beauty-growing routine by having a beauty basket handy where you store your garden supplies.

It should contain a pair of heavy - duty rubber gloves, face cream, a rich hand cream, a small box of tissues, skin freshener, sun-glasses and a head scarf or straw sun hat.

Before going out, apply face cream in smooth upward strokes, removing excess with tissues, leaving a light film on your face. The warmth of the sun helps the cream penetrate deep into your skin as you garden.

Gives Poor Trade

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — It would be a losing proposition to carry feed and water to a cow for one year in exchange for all the milk you wanted. Dairy specialists at the University of Kentucky figure that in exchange for 11,000 pounds of milk you would carry nearly seven times that much water and one and one-tenth times as much feed.

The installation of radiant heating is no job for a do-it-yourselfer. It's a job for a professional.

Hidden Surplus

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The City of Lexington started the new year with a hidden surplus of $1,040. Finance Director Robert Johnson said it was an oversight that the money was appropriated for a day nursery. The nursery had gone out of business 1½ years ago.

99% of the people who have a choice choose Gas for heating their new home.

Any questions?

If you heat with Gas, you can be sure you enjoy the best heating fuel available. Why does practically every modern homeowner prefer Gas?

Economy. Gas heat is far and away your best buy—electric heat, for example, costs about 2½* times as much as Gas heat.

Comfort. Gas heating systems have warm, flowing air—much more comfortable than the oppressive, still air of electric resistance heat.

Cleanliness. Tracked-in and air-borne dust and dirt are present in all homes, but Gas forced air heating systems have built-in filters to trap them. Electric systems generally have no filters. No place for the dirt to go but on your walls and furniture.

Good reasons? You bet. Whether your home is old or new, large or small, Gas can heat it best.

Ask your heating dealer or contractor for his recommendations . . . we're sure he'll recommend Gas.

*Based on the lowest residential electric rate, our service area, and the average gas rate. In many areas the cost difference will be even greater.

It Took Some Doing But They Got Raise

BEIRUT (AP) — Lebanon's members of Parliament recently decided that since the country's civil servants were getting a raise, they deserved one too.

Thirty-two of them marched into the office of Speaker Sbri Hamade and asked that their salary (1,683,000 Lebanese Pounds, or U.S. $560 a month) be increased.

"Have you seen the Minister of Finance?" the speaker asked.

Yes, they replied.

"And have you seen the President of the Parliamentary Commission?" Hamade stalled.

Yes, they said.

"Ah, but have you seen the Prime Minister?" the speaker countered.

"We saw him too," they answered in unison.

Surprised, the speaker replied: "You get a priceless show like that and you still want money?"

They got the raise.

To clean a file, use a file card, which is not a card at all. It resembles a scrubbing brush, except that the bristles are metal and tiny enough to go between the teeth of the file and clear it of filing residue.

To remove the rust from outdoor metal furniture, use a stiff wire brush, followed by a sanding or steel wooling. Apply at least two coats of exterior metal paint. When it is impossible to remove all the rust, use one of the paints which can be applied over a firm rust surface, being sure to follow the directions on the container.

'Instant Grass'

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Advantages And Disadvantages

By EARL ARONSON
For The Associated Press

Would you like to have a lawn of "instant grass"? A flourishing lawn is now available in only the time it takes to put down prepared sod.

Raising sod for mushrooming suburban housing developments has become big business in this country. Large sod farms have sprung up.

Special machinery has been devised to slice deep enough below the surface to provide a good base for your instant lawn, roll it in jellyroll fashion, deliver and lay it quickly to preserve quality.

Instant grass will cost considerably more than the lawn you seed yourself. If you are impatient, or lack the strength to do it yourself, you are buying time and convenience that are worth the price.

AND HERE is the view of one of the nation's top grass experts, Robert W. Schery, director of The Lawn Institute of Marysville, Ohio:

"Instant grass is fine for those who want it and have the wherewithal to pay for it, taking advantage of the quickness that is provided; but I recognize that at least as good and probably better turf could be had in the long run from seeding, much more economically, if time and a modicum of home labor are not of great consequence.

"The instant turf lawn has advantages of uniformity of coverage, levelness of the turf. If you buy from a reliable, professional sod-raiser, who uses quality seed blended to the specifications for your area, the sod composition is about as good as you would get from planting your own selection of seed."

Instant grass — even if you have the price — isn't all milk and honey, says Schery.

"For good sod to thrive," he explained, "the seedbed will have to be prepared just about as lavishly, and with as much fertilizer, as if seed were being planted rather than sod being laid. Watering sod will be a little easier than the more delicate job of watering a new seeding, but again the only consequential saving is one's time, not materials."

—:—

IN EXPERIMENTS, Schery said, grass started from seed proved to be better - rooted and had more abundant foliage yield.

"While sod, skillfully laid, will root well, and within a few weeks, you cannot, as some people suppose, simply slap down sod on any kind of ill-prepared soil and have success. If the basic conditions for growing grass are not good, sod is no cure-all; indeed, seeding may be preferable, in that it is recognized certain steps must be undertaken in the preparation of a seedbed. Some folks have the idea you can just throw sod on top of anything."

Now let us consider costs.

Direct seeding is much less costly. The price of enough Kentucky blue-grass-fine fescue seed mixture to yield a square foot of lawn might be one-tenth of the cost of the same coverage in sod.

And when it comes to hauling, you can send several million 'plants' as seed in one pound of seed for a few cents, which as sod would require large scale trucking and handling costs.

SOD COSTS may vary widely in different localities, depending on growing conditions, soil preparations and hauling distance.

One Long Island (N.Y.) landscape designer estimated that sodding a lawn of 5,000 square feet in his area (where there are sod farms) would cost about 18 cents a square foot, or $900 for a completed installation. (add about two cents a square foot for smaller lawns). He said that the same size lawn by direct seeding, including landscape labor and good quality seed, would cost about $550.

In comparing the cost of sodding and seeding, you must consider the value of your own or hired labor. This would vary so much with the individual situation that an intelligent cost estimate would be difficult.

Buying sod requires the same careful consideration that is needed in purchasing grass seed.

The reliable, professional sod-raiser sprays the field for weeds far ahead of sod-lifting time. He also takes precautions that weeds are not in his soil or sod. He starts his sod from good quality seed blended to specifications for an area.

For speculative housing, where all that is wanted is quick green cover for the least possible price, until the house can be sold, any itinerant with a truck becomes a sodman by peeling off the top of a nearby farmer's pasture. But this is instant grass full of instant weeds.

A study now being conducted in the South is designed to create a new flooring concept that would make it easier on the feet of industry workers and housewives. Lumbermen are backing the program. Under consideration is a plan to provide a three-tier arrangement of lumber beneath floors to act shock absorbers.

It Took Some Doing But They Got Raise

BEIRUT (AP) — Lebanon's members of Parliament recently decided that since the country's civil servants were getting a raise, they deserved one too.

Thirty-two of them marched into the office of Speaker Sbri Hamade and asked that their salary (1,683,000 Lebanese Pounds, or U.S. $560 a month) be increased.

"Have you seen the Minister of Finance?" the speaker asked.

Yes, they replied.

"And have you seen the President of the Parliamentary Commission?" Hamade stalled.

Yes, they said.

"Ah, but have you seen the Prime Minister?" the speaker countered.

"We saw him too," they answered in unison.

Surprised, the speaker replied: "You get a priceless show like that and you still want money?"

They got the raise.

Blueprints Are But Part Of An Architect's Work

By EDWIN E. FAIRFIELD
American Institute of Architects

Few Americans realize the extent to which contemporary architects affect their daily social, education and business lives.

Fewer still fully understand exactly what they are paying for in the form of architectural fees when they retain a professional to design their new home, church, school or community facility.

"He makes blueprints," is usually the public definition of the architect's role.

In preparing plans and specifications, however, his understanding of a family's needs can turn wood and plaster into a comfortable home; his knowledge of the proper materials can bring a congregation closer to the faith through their new building; his design of business offices can have a direct bearing on the firm's profits and losses; and his careful detailing of a hospital emergency room can help save a patient's life.

THE CLASSICAL concept of the architect as "the great dreamer," has changed radically with the advancement of technology.

When the introduction of steel and concrete as a building force overshadowed the traditional use of wood, the architect could no longer consider only the aesthetic elements of a building.

He now had to know the types and costs of mechanical and structural systems as well; he could no longer be satisfied with beauty alone, but had to literally make the building stand up.

The depression of the 30's and the war of the 40's precipitated major changes in our economy and the nation began to grow at an unprecendented rate.

After the war, buildings shot up seemingly overnight and the real estate broker, speculative builder and developer stepped forth to surplant the architect as the emphasis shifted from quality construction to cost factors.

Today's architect is no longer the great dreamer of yesteryear; he is a business executive overseeing the aesthetic design, the mechanical aspects of the building and its structural soundness.

He must help a client find proper financing; examine sites for the best location and create a functional and aesthetically attractive building, all within a rigid construction budget and in the face of rising costs throughout the building industry.

—:—

HOW MUCH does an architect charge and how is he paid?

This common question puzzles many who plan to build. Architectural fees are determined on one of three bases: a percentage of the total constructions costs of a project, a lump sum amount for all work or a cost plus arrangement.

The percentage fee is the most common. For the design of an average home you can expect to pay a fee of approximately 8 per cent of your total building costs.

The lump-sum method of payment is exactly what it indicates; you agree with your architect on a specific amount for designing your new project and regardless of what the construction costs may inevitably be, your design costs stay the same.

Under a cost-plus arrangement, you pay two and one half times actual drafting room salaries related to the project. This cost is inclusive of all overhead, profits, fringe benefits, sick leave, holidays, etc.

The cost - plus method of contracting for architectural services is most commonly used where the nature of the work (e.g. an addition or alteration to a building) is more time-consuming than would be indicated by the total construction cost of the project.

ARRANGEMENTS for payment to the architect are made on the basis of the work produced by the office. If, for example, your total fee for services is $1,000, 25 per cent, or $250, would be due on completion of preliminary plans.

Another 50 per cent, or $500, is payable on completion of working drawings and specifications when the job is ready to go out for bids.

The remaining 25 per cent, or $250, is due during the time the building is under construction. Your actual payments are broken down on a monthly basis to distribute the cost over the length of the project.

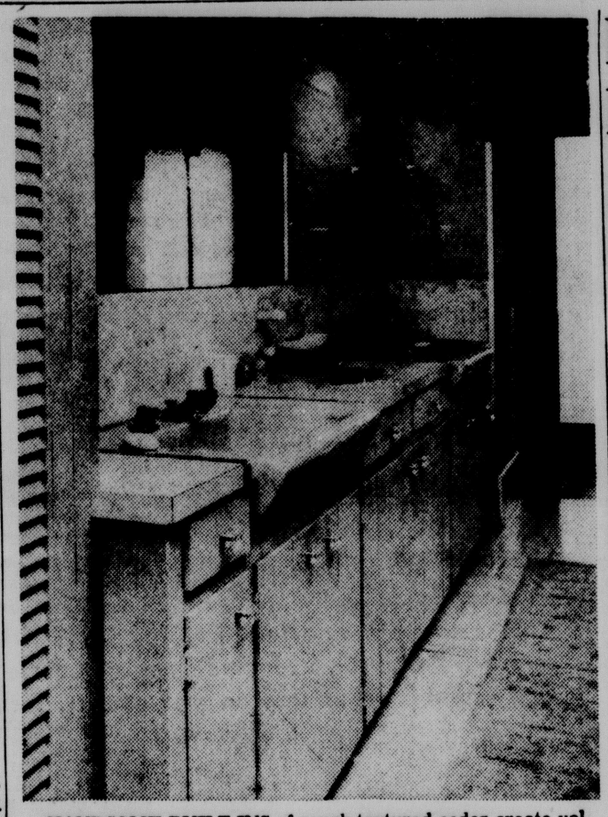
Whether you're building a new home or a member of a community building committee, you will always get the most for your money by choosing your architect as early as possible.

He can then help you select the site that will require the least expenditure for clearing and foundation costs. If necessary, he can help you find sound financing for your new building. Preliminary drawings, outlining the basic design, will be submitted for your approval.

—:—

DETAILED working or contract drawings will be prepared for contractors to bid on. He will select, in consultation with you, the best materials, colors, built-ins and miscellaneous pieces of hardware that will go into your building.

All of these things, in addition to the construction procedures and inspection requirements to assure you of the finest workmanship, will be outlined in a set of specifications.



HANDSOME BUILT-INS of rough-textured cedar create valuable storage space in bathroom.

Flexibility Pays Dividend In Planning Child's Room

Most parents like their children to have separate rooms, large enough to accommodate a bed, desk, storage space for clothing and personal possessions, and an adequate play area. And, of course, the children like the idea even more.

With foresight, such a room can be attractive and reasonbly impervious to the enthusiasm of youngsters at play, yet be so well - planned that it is still an appealing haven to them when they reach college age.

A moderate expenditure to create such an area for the children pays big dividends. However, as children grow, their hobbies and tastes change, so all plans should include as many flexible elements as possible.

WOOD paneling lends itself to refinishing at any time to harmonize with any change.

There is a great scope in woods, ranging from the very light tones of engelmann spruce, ideal for a girl's room, to the darker reddish tones of incense cedar, which might be better suited for boys.

All of these woods are available in clear contemporary or knotty grade traditional, are easy to work with and take readily to any finishing treatment.

Think about special effects when the room is paneled, as one oustanding unit can set a distinctive note.

A built-in bed, for instance, can be placed under a window and lined with shelves for books and prized possessions. Or an interesting effect can be obtained by covering a wall with cupboards and shelving interspersed with wardrobe-type closets.

Storage space is essential for the paraphernalia connected with hobbies and recreation as well as clothing. Shelves and compartments tailored to the individual needs of the young occupant should be included in the plan.

—:—

DIVIDED OR partitioned areas in built-ins assure that stored articles are readily available and easily seen. In addition to increasing holding capacity, convenient storage will usually increase a child's incentive to be orderly.

Check the metal flashing around chimneys and vent pipes to be sure there are not any openings. If so, they can be sealed with roofing cement.

Sea Ranches?

A diver who spent two days and two nights 432 feet deep in the Atlantic Ocean predicts that human colonies will some day tend ranches on the bottom of the sea.

Diver Robert Stenuit reports on his record dive in the National Geographic. He and Jon Lindbergh, son of aviation pioneer Charles A. Lindbergh, spent 49 hours on the ocean floor in an inflatable rubber house. The dive was a vital phase of inventor Edwin A. Link's Man-in-Sea Project.

"We have lived in the depths —in questionable comfort, but at least in security," says Stenuit. "We have gone out and worked. To be sure, we paid for our two deep days with four days of decompression. But if we had stayed two weeks or two months, the decompression would have been the same."

Stenuit adds, "Our successors will stay in the depths that long and longer. They will colonize the sea floor, cultivating its resources instead of pillaging them. Tomorrow the colonist will survey his bottom land through the porthole of his sea-ranch kitchen while a coffee pot simmers on the stove."

The condensation that causes windows to sweat during winter months usually is the result of the failure of normal moisture to escape to the outside. Authorities estimate that, with a family of four, cooking, laundering and even breathing and perspiring can add more than 10 gallons of water a day to the air in the home.

Two - thirds of all serious accidents happen at home. Some causes: improperly - placed ladders, curled - up corners of rugs, lack of skid - proof mats in bath-tubs, broken handrails, sharp projections in areas with minimum clearance, catch - all closets, toys on stairs.

When the introduction of steel and concrete as a building force overshadowed the traditional use of wood, the architect could no longer consider only the aesthetic elements of a building.

He now had to know the types and costs of mechanical and structural systems as well; he could no longer be satisfied with beauty alone, but had to literally make the building stand up.

The depression of the 30's and the war of the 40's precipitated major changes in our economy and the nation began to grow at an unprecendented rate.

After the war, buildings shot up seemingly overnight and the real estate broker, speculative builder and developer stepped forth to surplant the architect as the emphasis shifted from quality construction to cost factors.

Today's architect is no longer the great dreamer of yesteryear; he is a business executive overseeing the aesthetic design, the mechanical aspects of the building and its structural soundness.

He must help a client find proper financing; examine sites for the best location and create a functional and aesthetically attractive building, all within a rigid construction budget and in the face of rising costs throughout the building industry.

—:—

HOW MUCH does an architect charge and how is he paid?

This common question puzzles many who plan to build. Architectural fees are determined on one of three bases: a percentage of the total constructions costs of a project, a lump sum amount for all work or a cost plus arrangement.

The percentage fee is the most common. For the design of an average home you can expect to pay a fee of approximately 8 per cent of your total building costs.

The lump-sum method of payment is exactly what it indicates; you agree with your architect on a specific amount for designing your new project and regardless of what the construction costs may inevitably be, your design costs stay the same.

Under a cost-plus arrangement, you pay two and one half times actual drafting room salaries related to the project. This cost is inclusive of all overhead, profits, fringe benefits, sick leave, holidays, etc.

The cost - plus method of contracting for architectural services is most commonly used where the nature of the work (e.g. an addition or alteration to a building) is more time-consuming than would be indicated by the total construction cost of the project.

ARRANGEMENTS for payment to the architect are made on the basis of the work produced by the office. If, for example, your total fee for services is $1,000, 25 per cent, or $250, would be due on completion of preliminary plans.

Another 50 per cent, or $500, is payable on completion of working drawings and specifications when the job is ready to go out for bids.

The remaining 25 per cent, or $250, is due during the time the building is under construction. Your actual payments are broken down on a monthly basis to distribute the cost over the length of the project.

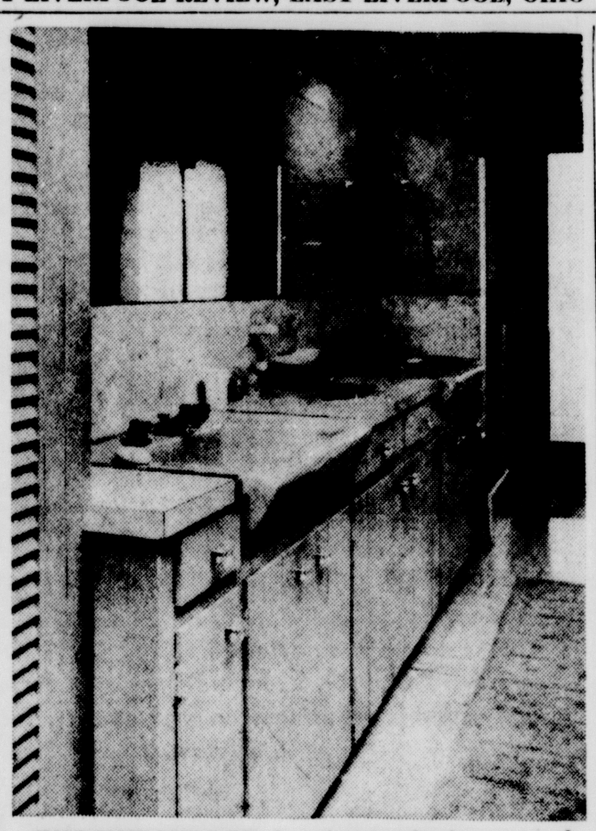
Whether you're building a new home or a member of a community building committee, you will always get the most for your money by choosing your architect as early as possible.

He can then help you select the site that will require the least expenditure for clearing and foundation costs. If necessary, he can help you find sound financing for your new building. Preliminary drawings, outlining the basic design, will be submitted for your approval.

—:—

DETAILED working or contract drawings will be prepared for contractors to bid on. He will select, in consultation with you, the best materials, colors, built-ins and miscellaneous pieces of hardware that will go into your building.

All of these things, in addition to the construction procedures and inspection requirements to assure you of the finest workmanship, will be outlined in a set of specifications.



HANDSOME BUILT-INS of rough-textured cedar create valuable storage space in bathroom.

Sea Ranches?

A diver who spent two days and two nights 432 feet deep in the Atlantic Ocean predicts that human colonies will some day tend ranches on the bottom of the sea.

Diver Robert Stenuit reports on his record dive in the National Geographic. He and Jon Lindbergh, son of aviation pioneer Charles A. Lindbergh, spent 49 hours on the ocean floor in an inflatable rubber house. The dive was a vital phase of inventor Edwin A. Link's Man-in-Sea Project.

"We have lived in the depths—in questionable comfort, but at least in security," says Stenuit. "We have gone out and worked. To be sure, we paid for our two deep days with four days of decompression. But if we had stayed two weeks or two months, the decompression would have been the same."

Stenuit adds, "Our successors will stay in the depths that long and longer. They will colonize the sea floor, cultivating its resources instead of pillaging them. Tomorrow the colonist will survey his bottom land through the porthole of his sea-ranch kitchen while a coffee pot simmers on the stove."

The condensation that causes windows to sweat during winter months usually is the result of the failure of normal moisture to escape to the outside. Authorities estimate that, with a family of four, cooking, laundering and even breathing and perspiring can add more than 10 gallons of water a day to the air in the home.

Two - thirds of all serious accidents happen at home. Some causes: improperly - placed ladders, curled - up corners of rugs, lack of skid - proof mats in bath-tubs, broken handrails, sharp projections in areas with minimum clearance, catch - all closets, toys on stairs.

Flexibility Pays Dividend In Planning Child's Room

Most parents like their children to have separate rooms, large enough to accommodate a bed, desk, storage space for clothing and personal possessions, and an adequate play area. And, of course, the children like the idea even more.

With foresight, such a room can be attractive and reasonbly impervious to the enthusiasm of youngsters at play, yet be so well - planned that it is still an appealing haven to them when they reach college age.

A moderate expenditure to create such an area for the children pays big dividends. However, as children grow, their hobbies and tastes change, so all plans should include as many flexible elements as possible.

WOOD paneling lends itself to refinishing at any time to harmonize with any change.

There is a great scope in woods, ranging from the very light tones of engelmann spruce, ideal for a girl's room, to the darker reddish tones of incense cedar, which might be better suited for boys.

All of these woods are available in clear contemporary or knotty grade traditional, are easy to work with and take readily to any finishing treatment.

Think about special effects when the room is paneled, as one oustanding unit can set a distinctive note.

A built-in bed, for instance, can be placed under a window and lined with shelves for books and prized possessions. Or an interesting effect can be obtained by covering a wall with cupboards and shelving interspersed with wardrobe-type closets.

Storage space is essential for the paraphernalia connected with hobbies and recreation as well as clothing. Shelves and compartments tailored to the individual needs of the young occupant should be included in the plan.

—:—

DIVIDED OR partitioned areas in built-ins assure that stored articles are readily available and easily seen. In addition to increasing holding capacity, convenient storage will usually increase a child's incentive to be orderly.

Check the metal flashing around chimneys and vent pipes to be sure there are not any openings. If so, they can be sealed with roofing cement.

Need More Storage Space? Try A Chest-Bench 'Combo'

No matter how large a home is, there never seems to be enough storage room.

One way to create additional usable space is by building a combination storage chest and bench.

A medium - sized chest of this nature would be 5 feet long, 2 feet deep and measure 1 foot, 6 inches from the bottom to the opening at the top. But these dimensions may be varied to suit individual tastes and needs.

The entire unit can be cut out of a couple of sheets of plywood, some 1-by-3 lumber and a small strip of wood to support the sliding divider tray inside.

How it is finished depends on where it is to be used. A foam rubber pad can be glued to the top to serve as a cushion, but individual cushions can be used instead. In the latter case, the cushions would have to be taken off before the chest is opened.

Simple variations of surface treatment would make this piece adaptable to any room setting.

For living or family room use, a small strip of wood moulding might be attached around the perimeter of the front and sides. For the kitchen, the chest could be painted colors to accent the walls and appliances. The application of a gay paint surface and a few decals would suit the storage chest to a young person of any age.

The paint and decals could be changed as the youngster's age and interests changed. If the piece were to be finished in wood tones, a sanded A-B or A-C grade of plywood for the front and sides would be suitable.

Construction of the chest can be as easy as desired. The joints can be butted by gluing, or by nailing the plywood to the small piece of lumber on the inside of each corner.

Beveling is another possibility. The plywood for the bottom of the chest and the top piece, under the cushion, can be C-D grade for economy and may be cut from a ½-inch panel instead of the ¾-inch thickness needed for the front, sides and back.

A scrap of the ½ inch C-D panel may be used as the bottom of the sliding divider tray. The 1 by 3 lumber is used for the top piece, to enclose the cushion, and for the sides of the drawer. Hardware is standard and may be obtained at any hardware store or building materials dealer.

The Welland Canal carries ships around Niagara Falls.

INTERESTING DOOR treatment is made possible with new panelette plaques, with self-adhesive backs.

Present-Day Outdoor Tools Demand Great Deal Of Care

It's a long way from the stone trowel to the rotary mower.

But all implements, especially those used outdoors, require a great deal more care than those of the past. To insure longer life and better service from your outdoor equipment, we suggest the following "green thumb" hints:

1. — Annoying rust won't form on garden tools coated with petroleum jelly. Hoes, rakes and spades not made of stainless steel should be rinsed and dried after each use, then treated to a fresh coat of petroleum jelly.

2. — Keep pruning and cutting shears in condition to clip neatly along by lubricating them often with petroleum jelly.

3. — Check and repair rubber or plastic handles on mowers, wheelbarrows and cutting implements before initial use; loose grips are harder to use, may be dangerous.

4. — Sprinklers or watering cans may rust if not thoroughly dried after each session. For added protection, coat the sprinkler with petroleum jelly.

5. — Tools with blades should be sharpened not only at the first of the season, but as often as needed for maximum efficiency.

6. — To eliminate misplacing or careless handling of small tools, hang them from a rack. The simplest rack can be made from peg board and a few dime-store hooks.

7. — Even glove-wearing won't always protect the most basic tools — your hands — against chapping and roughness. Before beginning any outdoor work, treat them to a soothing film of petroleum jelly. Rub a little extra around cuticles and beneath nails to discourage hard-to-remove dirt deposits.

Petroleum jelly can be a great aid with many items around the house which are exposed to the elements. For example:

To silence squeaky chains on garden swings, dab petroleum jelly at the top where chain is fastened and at bottom where it joins seat.

Outdoor light bulbs won't rust if the threads are lightly coated with petroleum jelly.

If you putter around the garden, you'll be happy to know that a special moisture - resistant pencil can spare you the headache of trying to identify vegetable and flower beds with the seed pocket. Just attach a tag marked with this pencil. It won't wash out, fade or rub off.

Tips On Proper Use Of Extension Cords

An extension cord can be a handy thing around the house. But that's what it's meant to be: a handy thing, not a permanent installation.

A common mistake made by users of extension cords is in the size area.

The cord you use for a lamp, for instance, should not be used for a power tool. The amperage drawn by the electric tool is too heavy for the typical household extension cord.

If you have power tools in the house and need an extension cord, its minimum gauge should be 18. But if you are using a long cord, which tends to dissipate power, get a 16 or 14 gauge.

Thermostat Is Guardian Of Family's Pocketbook

You family's comfort and your annual fuel bill depend to a large extent on a familiar household servant—the thermostat.

Major improvements in thermostat design have been made in recent years, with the result that today a home owner has his choice of wide range of temperature control devices.

Modern thermostats are efficient, versatile and designed for convenience of operation. In addition, they are attractive, an important consideration from the homemaker's standpoint.

—:—

TEMPERATURE control devices now available range from the familiar manually - operated round thermostat to such versatile instruments as electric clock models that automatically raise or lower indoor temperature according to family living habits.

For air-conditioned homes, there are double-duty thermostats that automatically shift from heating to cooling according to outdoor temperature.

In choosing a thermostat, heating experts point out, you literally present it with a "blank check" to spend your fuel dollars.

An inaccurate instrument causes you to raise the temperature setting in an attempt to eliminate "chilly" periods. This waste of heat, plus costly service calls, can add up to a large amount of money over a period of years. Initial savings will be lost many times over.

As a rule of thumb, any thermostat over 10 years of age should definitely be checked for replacement, and even those more than five years old may not be providing the performance and functions of today's models. Installation of a home thermostat usually is a job for a qualified heating expert.

Broadly speaking, a home owner has his choice of five families of temperature control devices.

Included are manually - operated thermostats, electric clock models, day-night or semi-automatic, indoor-outdoor sets and double-duty heating-cooling controls.

THE STANDARD manually - operated thermostat now available features a unique round shape that makes it equally appealing in either modern or traditional home settings.

The cover of this thermostat can be removed easily without tools and painted to match or contrast with any decorating theme.

Engineering improvements include an enclosed, dust - free mercury switch which eliminates the open contract, chronic maintenance problems of older types.

The electric clock thermostat automatically adjusts room temperature to the family's living schedule. During the day it controls the burner to maintain the desired indoor temperature in the same way as a conventional thermostat.

During nighttime sleeping hours, this thermostat automatically lowers room temperature. In the morning, it automatically raises the room temperature again to the desired daytime level.

—:—

AUTOMATIC temperature lowering and raising also is provided through use of a modified conventional round thermostat.

A single turn of a plexiglas cover sets the thermostat like an alarm clock to bring up the heat at any quarter-hour spot during the next 10 hours.

This type thermostat is used widely by working couples, who turn down the temperature in the morning with the assurance that their home will be warm again upon their return in the evening. It's also helpful in saving on fuel bills.

The indoor-outdoor sets utilize two thermostats, one of which is mounted outside the house (usually on the eave) and the other in the conventional indoor location.

The outdoor unit notes changes in outside temperature and adjusts the setting of the indoor thermostat to call for more or less heat even before occupants are aware of the need.

The electric indoor - outdoor system may be used with a variety of indoor thermostats, including a conventional round, day-night round, electric clock and heating-cooling models.

For air-conditioned homes, there is a double-duty thermostat that automatically selects either heating or air-conditioning. Mounted in the conventional thermostat location, this instrument provides automatic changeover between heating and cooling according to outdoor temperature change.

Thermostat Is Guardian Of Family's Pocketbook

You family's comfort and your annual fuel bill depend to a large extent on a familiar household servant—the thermostat.

Major improvements in thermostat design have been made in recent years, with the result that today a home owner has his choice of wide range of temperature control devices.

Modern thermostats are efficient, versatile and designed for convenience of operation. In addition, they are attractive, an important consideration from the homemaker's standpoint.

TEMPERATURE control devices now available range from the familiar manually - operated round thermostat to such versatile instruments as electric clock models that automatically raise or lower indoor temperature according to family living habits.

For air-conditioned homes, there are double-duty thermostats that automatically shift from heating to cooling according to outdoor temperature.

In choosing a thermostat, heating experts point out, you literally present it with a "blank check" to spend your fuel dollars.

An inaccurate instrument causes you to raise the temperature setting in an attempt to eliminate "chilly" periods. This waste of heat, plus costly service calls, can add up to a large amount of money over a period of years. Initial savings will be lost many times over.

As a rule of thumb, any thermostat over 10 years of age should definitely be checked for replacement, and even those more than five years old may not be providing the performance and functions of today's models. Installation of a home thermostat usually is a job for a qualified heating expert.

Broadly speaking, a home owner has his choice of five families of temperature control devices.

Included are manually - operated thermostats, electric clock models, day-night or semi-automatic, indoor-outdoor sets and double-duty heating-cooling controls.

THE STANDARD manually - operated thermostat now available features a unique round shape that makes it equally appealing in either modern or traditional home settings.

The cover of this thermostat can be removed easily without tools and painted to match or contrast with any decorating theme.

Engineering improvements include an enclosed, dust - free mercury switch which eliminates the open contract, chronic maintenance problems of older types.

The electric clock thermostat automatically adjusts room temperature to the family's living schedule. During the day it controls the burner to maintain the desired indoor temperature in the same way as a conventional thermostat.

During nighttime sleeping hours, this thermostat automatically lowers room temperature. In the morning, it automatically raises the room temperature again to the desired daytime level.

AUTOMATIC temperature lowering and raising also is provided through use of a modified conventional round thermostat.

A single turn of a plexiglas cover sets the thermostat like an alarm clock to bring up the heat at any quarter-hour spot during the next 10 hours.

This type thermostat is used widely by working couples, who turn down the temperature in the morning with the assurance that their home will be warm again upon their return in the evening. It's also helpful in saving on fuel bills.

The indoor-outdoor sets utilize two thermostats, one of which is mounted outside the house (usually on the eave) and the other in the conventional indoor location.

The outdoor unit notes changes in outside temperature and adjusts the setting of the indoor thermostat to call for more or less heat even before occupants are aware of the need.

The electric indoor - outdoor system may be used with a variety of indoor thermostats, including a conventional round, day-night round, electric clock and heating-cooling models.

For air-conditioned homes, there is a double-duty thermostat that automatically selects either heating or air-conditioning. Mounted in the conventional thermostat location, this instrument provides automatic changeover between heating and cooling according to outdoor temperature change.
